Candidate Returns

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

Philadelphia, Oct. 4. — Through a blizzard of confetti and record crowds, Wendell L. Willkie returned to this scene of his nomination today to attempt a last-month blitzkrieg for votes in the East duplicating his Republican convention miracle.

All afternoon his screaming motorcade darted here and there through key Philadelphia communities. Demonstrative thousands, overshadowing police, said, the reception to the President a fortnight ago, heard his seven separate appeals for support.

Then at Shibe Park tonight he outlined what he called the heart issue of the campaign—his indictment of the New Deal for "this blundering attempt to cover up the deficiencies in our national defense in a critical election year."

As in Cleveland, he charged the Administration is "incompetent to achieve defense." He said that today, five years after the President first urged an adequate defense on Congress, the United States is less prepared for war than it was in 1936, compared with other nations.

"On Order" Defense

Willkie declared the United States had "ghost" tanks, armored cars and airplanes "on order" in some factories that have not yet been built. He said the President should have spoken of "factories on order."

Willkie was presented to the 30,000 hoarse-voiced fans at Shibe Park by Gov. Arthur H. James, who had been kept under wraps during the Pittsburgh meeting because of a State factional rift. In opening his night speech, Willkie plugged for the election of Jay Cooke, Pennsylvania's Republican nominee for the Senate, and then took a sharp slap at Senator Guffey, the incum-

The Fateful Seventh

By Shirley Povich

Briggs Stadium, Detroit, Oct. 4.—Detroit's lusty-hitting Tigers went native today. They blackjacked the Cincinnati Reds with home runs in a strong-arm demonstration that produced a 7-4 victory in the third World Series game.

Exactly at the stroke of 3 p. m. Detroit's clocks and Rudy York struck. It was the seventh inning, the score was tied at 1-1, Hank Greenberg was on base. Into the left-field bleachers York deposited a home run and Briggs Stadium was a roaring, high-walled pit of 52,877 Detroit fans who scented victory.

But the Tigers weren't through. Four runs they packed into that explosive seventh inning against Milkman Jim Turner, whose season-long craftiness had earned him this World Series chance. Frank Higgins outdid York. With Bruce Campbell on base, Higgins clipped a Turner pitch high into the left-field upper deck for the third and fourth runs of the inning.

Tonight's betting odds now reflect the plight of the Reds in this World Series. The Tigers have zoomed back into 3-to-1 favoritism, and Manager Bill McKechnie has a pitching problem on his hands for tomorrow's fourth game.

Indications are that the Reds will gamble tomorrow on Paul Derringer, batted from the box in less than two innings by the Tigers in the opening game. McKechnie leans to Derringer in preference to Junior Thompson, his only rested regular. Manager Del Baker, of the Tigers, not so desperate, will send Schoolboy Rowe back to the box despite Rowe's failure in the second series game.

Thin of girth but stout of heart, little Tommy Bridges was the winning pitcher today, fashioning the fourth World Series victory of his

Greeks on Guard After Reports Rome Masses Men in Albania

Athen, Oct. 4.—The Greek army is taking "preventative measures" against any surprise move by Italian forces massing along the border of neighboring Albania, an authoritative source said tonight.

Border advices said some 130,000 Fascist troops were facing the Greek frontier, backed up by 120 tanks. They were said to have arrived from Italy during the last two weeks of September.

Observers from this side said the Italians have been busy digging trenches, with their activity especially pronounced in the last few days.

Axis Drive Seen

Budapest, Hungary, Oct. 4.—With German-made planes cruising protectively over Rumania's oil fields and the Italian army jockeying along Albania's Greek frontier, southeastern Europe looked tonight for a new Axis offensive, probably diplomatic.

A stronger Nazi-Fascist policy in this corner of the continent, including new pressure against pro-British Greece, was indicated.

Balkan political circle were convinced that Adolf Hitler and share of their Brenner Pass meeting Premier Mussolini devoted a good today at discussion of a possible new "prestige" campaign in this area.

They expected new efforts to get Greece to cancel Britain's guarantee to help against any threat to Greek independence.

Some observers believe the new Axis program may include an invitation to Hungary, Bulgaria and Rumania to join the Axis in a military alliance as part of new pressure against Greece and Turkey, which also has British ties.

Axis Envoys Honored

Rumors of government changes favorable to the Axis were current in Sofia, Bulgarian capital, while in Hugary membership in the now United Hungarian Nazi Party was reported gaining rapidly.

Pittman Declares America Never Will Adopt Appeasement Policy but Will Do 'Everything Honorable' to Keep Peace

By the Associated Press

Tokyo, Oct. 4.—Japan thrust two sharp warnings at the United States today that any challenge of the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo Axis would tumble her into a "fight to a finish."

Premier Prince Konoye, in his first interview since the signing of the three-power pact, emphasized Japan's stiffened attitude toward America with the declaration that:

"Whether the Pacific will become the scene of war or peace solely depends on whether Japan and the United States respect each other's position. At the present, there is no concrete idea of taking the initiative in negotiations with the United States."

United States Policy Unaffected

[Government circles yesterday received in casual manner word of the Japanese "warnings" to this country, declined to comment and indicated plainly that the policies of the American Government would remain as before.

[Chairman Key Pittman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said in an article carried by International News Service that "Foreign Minister Matsuoka misunderstands the pacifism of this country. It will do anything honorable to keep out of war, but it will not be guilty of the appeasement of Munich."

[Officials of the executive branch charged with formation and prosecution of foreign policies, however, took no public notice of the Tokyo reports.—Editor's note.]

Konoye, whose interview was with the Japanese press at Kyoto, urged the United States to throw in her lot with the Axis by "positively, cooperating with their construction of a new world order."

"Nevertheless," he added, "should

Berlin, Oct. 4.—For the seventh time in their careers and for the third time since the beginning of this war Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini met today to discuss and decide the next steps they must take in their common effort to erect a "new order in Europe, Africa and the Far East, and, therefore, the world."

Whether today's meeting of the Axis leaders near the Brenner Pass would have the same historic consequences which have followed previous consultations between them was not revealed in the official communique issued in Berlin this afternoon.

Gen. Keitel Present

That document is of the customary perfunctory character and contains only two bits of actual information: First, that the conversations which "covered all questions of interest to both lands," lasted more than three hours, and secondly, that General Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel "was present at the last portion of the discussion."

When Hitler and Mussolini met at the Brenner last March 18, when, it is said here, all plans for the defeat of France were agreed upon, their conversation lasted only two hours. The fact that today's conference occupied three hours and then was continued, "during a luncheon, at which only a few persons were present," indicates that the problems which had to be discussed by the two statesmen were of a more difficult, possibly a more contentious nature.

Waterfront Labor Troubles

Tie-up of Channel Project Threatened as Unions Dispute

Work on the $220,000 Washington Channel improvement project was faced with a tieup yesterday as a labor dispute spread to the waterfront from the Recorder of Deeds Building site at Sixth and D streets northwest.

A. F. L. construction laborers were called off the job at Yacht Basins Nos. 1 and 2 along Maine avenue southwest yesterday afternoon after a subcontractor arrived with C. I. O. laborers to carry out a short assignment. The A. F. L. union—Street and Heavy Construction Laborers, Local No. 456—immediately patrolled the waterfront with pickets.

Only a dozen laborers are involved, but some 50 other A. F. L. unionists—dock workers, pile-driver operators, carpenters—are expected to join the walkout Monday. Work is regularly suspended on the project Saturday and Sunday.

The waterfront project, started last January, is due to be completed this month. It is part of a long-range channel improvement program authorized by Congress in 1935. The whole program, estimated to cost $1,650,000, paid for by both the Federal and District treasuries, is to include three yacht basins and five commercial piers.

The controversy got under way almost as soon as President Roose-

Fredericksburg, Va., Oct. 4.—Northern Virginia went to the dogs here today because of an old Indian custom.

An estimated 5,000 persons left home and business to see approximately 150 dogs, from mountain hound to pampered cocker spaniel, change hands and home in the annual dog mart, which has been conducted in this city since the Indians held the first in 1898.

In all, 503 dogs swarmed the field, barking loudly. Three persons were scratched, with the people bidding, the dogs barking, a band playing and officials wondering why nobody ever got bitten at the marts.

The town takes no financial bite in these shows, gets much publicity, many visitors and promises a continuation, even if war comes, the management said. The cost per show is about $150, most of which is spent in erecting the grandstand, buying a couple bushels of dog food and entertaining the

Dies Witness Links Consul To Nazi Activity

Former Bund Man Declares Members Sought U. S. Seizure

By John B. Oakes
Post Staff Writer

Testimony linking the German consulate-general in New York with Nazi political activities in this country was presented to the Dies Committee yesterday by a former member of the German-American Bund.

Earlier, the committee was told Bund members were instructed to prepare for the day when "blood will flow in the streets of the United States."

The witness, Richard Werner, said he understood that a secretary at the consulate, of whose name he was uncertain, had an even higher post in the Nazi hierarchy in America than G. Wilhelm Kunze, nominal Bund leader, or Fritz Kuhn, former chieftain.

Speaking in broken English, the witness declared that "either the consul general or one of the consuls" attended New York meetings of the American branch of the National Socialist Party—a unit apparently distinct from the Bund.

That the consulate can influence even American citizens who were born in Germany was indicated from Werner's account of two instances where German-Americans were allegedly "ordered" back to work in factories of the Reich.

Werner, a 36-year-old chef, who said he quit the Bund in February, asserted that "storm troopers" of the Bund organization in New York had been given military training for "the day" when the present United States Government would be forcibly overthrown.

"Our leaders told us many, many times how we must be prepared—must be fit for a certain day—that that day was coming," Werner declared.

"What did you understand 'that day' to mean?" queried Representa-

Weather Halts R.A.F. and Bars Any Invasion

Planes Grounded; Gale Kicks Up Seas In Dover Straits

By James MacDonald
Copyright by New York Times

London (Saturday), Oct. 5.—The weather entered the war with all its force last night and today. It prevented British bombers from making their usual nightly forays on enemy targets during the night, but it helped further to stave off any German invasion of Britain.

While British bombing operations were being canceled last night a southeasterly gale kicked up rough seas in the Straits of Dover. Visibility sometimes was "fairly good."

However, for the defenders as well as the potential attackers the heavy clouds hampered operations by darkening the sky and at times sending down showers. Before the squalls set in the fleet air arm and the R. A. F. did plenty of damage yesterday, according to the air ministry.

It was announced that considerable damage had been inflicted on enemy shipping by aircraft of the fleet air arm operating over the Norwegian coast.

British bombers attacked an enemy supply ship estimated at between 4,000 and 5,000 tons which was lying alongside a pier at Haugesund. Direct hits were made upon the ship which was left blazing in her fore and aft holds.

In Djiorne Fiord, British Skuas attacked a German supply ship of about 2,000 tons and the bombs appeared to hit the ship, which was considered sunk.

The navy planes subsequently were attacked by a large force of German fighters and one dive-bomber failed to report back.

Taking full advantage of the low clouds yesterday R. A. F. bombers carried out a series of daylight raids which were directed chiefly against coastal objectives extending from Rotterdam to Dunkerque.

Redwood City, Calif., Oct. 4 (AP).—Wilhelm Muhlenbroich was sentenced to life imprisonment today for the kidnaping of 3-year-old Marc de Tristan, jr. Two hours later Muhlenbroich entered San Quentin Prison.

The German alien was sentenced exactly two weeks after he snatched the little boy from a Hillsborough street in what he planned as the "perfect kidnaping."

He stood as though transfixed as Superior Judge Maxwell McNutt pronounced sentence "to the term and time fixed by law." When the judge had completed the sentencing, the kidnaper still stood before the bench and his attorneys had to call to him to sit down.

District Attorney Ferrell included in the record "that the child was returned to his parents without being harmed," presumably to make it possible for Muhlenbroich to apply for parole after seven years.

Muhlenbroich, after seizing the child from a nurse a few blocks from the Hillsborough home of Count and Countess de Tristan, fled in an automobile to the mountains.

There he was captured by Cecil Wetsel, husky 220-pound lumberman, when he asked road directions.

Chemical Plant Blast Kills One; FBI Investigates

Terre Haute, Ind., Oct. 4 (AP).—An explosion and fire wrecked a Terre Haute chemical plant tonight, and brought immediate indications of Federal Bureau of Investigation activity in the case.

The north section of the Commercial Solvents Corporation's plant—a 200-foot square brick building—was destroyed when a 30,000-gallon acetone still exploded. The still was in a tower atop the building.

One man was missing and feared dead, two other were hurt slightly and four escaped harm.

T. P. Walker, president of the corporation, said the firm was handling no Government defense contracts. Nevertheless Earl J. Winn, head of the FBI office at Indianapolis, left for Terre Haute.

New Axis Attack On Britain Forecast

Moves in Balkans Recalled, However, After Brenner Talk

name in the official German communique, furthermore, implies that questions of military moment formed a prominent part of the afternoon's agenda.

[From erlin and Rome United Press dispatches told of indications that at least part of the program discussed by Hitler and Mussolini concerned plans for a smashing winter blow at Britain to thwart possible United States interventon by spring.

[A United Press Berlin dispatch quotes Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering's newspaper as stating that the Brenner Pass talks forged "a last link" in military and diplomatic preparations for a mighty assault on Britain.

[This newspaper, the Essener National Zeitung, said the winter assault would "crush the enemy without granting him a breathing spell," and added significantly, "The word now rests with the military men." It further stated that the "Euro-African front against England has been extended to form a total front stretching over the whole earth against the British Em-

[The Rome newspaper Messagero said "landing parties" were planned by the Axis "in the near future."

["Landing parties, advances and murderous blows to the structure of enemy resistance are on the Axis schedule and will be produced at the moment the Axis judges opportune and decisive," the newspaper said.

["Thus will be carried out in the near future the decisions reached yesterday by Il Duce and der Fuehrer."]

Italians May Participate

[There were reports in Rome, wholly unconfirmed, that Italian forces might join in the effort to deliver a "knockout" blow to the British Isles, simultaneously with a speed-up of Italy's drive across Egypt toward the Suez Canal.

[A Stockholm newspaper report said Italy and Germany have asked France to conclude a final peace treaty immediately and join in the "final assault" against Britain. In exchange, it was reported, the Axis would advise Japan to "go easy" in French Indo-China.]

It is the opinion in neutral quarters of Berlin that military considerations dominated political ones in today's discussions in Il Duce's heavily armored railroad car, particularly problems presented by the eventuality of the war with Britain being prolonged through the winter.

It is obvious and it is a fact continually emphasized by informed quarters in Berlin as well as in the Reich's press, that the defeat of the British is a necessary prerequisite to the erection of the much proclaimed "new order."

It is believed, therefore, that future joint military action was discussed and some plan of action designed to effect a defeat of the British was agreed upon. In this connection it is interesting to note that the semiofficial news "Service from Germany" accords special emphasis to a statement in an editorial in the Hamburger Fremdenblatt to the effect that the last meeting on the Brenner Pass between the two Axis leaders took place in the decisive days before the beginning of the campaign against France.

As the military situation in the eastern Mediterranean directly affects the Balkans and more especially the status of Greece and Turkey, it is conceivable that that phase of the theater of war also came within the purview of today's conversations.

A semiofficial news service which suggests that "one will do well to prepare for events of the greatest significance" as a result of today's meeting, interestingly adds that, in addition to agreeing on a further plan of action in the war, Hitler and Mussolini may well have reached decisions relative to the "physiognomy of a new Europe"—which might be interpreted as meaning a further change of European borders.

Expect Russia to Be Quiet

The Germans believe their cause has been placed upon a firmer foundation and that Russia no longer represents a menace to the aspirations of the Axis powers, either politically or diplomatically.

Informed quarters here declare that Russian approbation of the three-cornered alliance is obvious from an editorial in Pravda as well as other statements in the Russian press. A news dispatch from Moscow reporting that the United States Ambassador, Laurence A. Steinhardt, called on Foreign Commissar Vycheslaff Molotov was not overlooked here, however, and there is reason to believe the Axis partners are still probing the reaction abroad to the Berlin three-power pact.

It is no secret here that the Axis powers would be pleased to see closer relations between Moscow and Tokyo and there have been unconfirmable rumors in Berlin that some efforts might be forthcoming by Berlin and Rome to bring about the conclusion of a Russo-Japanese non-aggression pact.

A report from Rome that the Spanish interior minister, Ramon Serrano Suner, had delayed his departure to Spain suggests that Generalissimo Franco's personal envoy was instructed to await the outcome of the Brenner talks. While his conversations in Berlin and Rome are not believed to have fully clarified Spain's present relations to Germany and Italy it is now believed that, following today's exchanges between Herr Hitler and Signor Mussolini, such clarification quarters agree that the "new Spain" will soon be forthcoming. For all has a positive role to play in the "new order in Europe and Africa."

The press meanwhile emphasizes that, in the words of the Frankfurter Zeitung, the results of the consultations will not become known through official communiques released immediately, "but only later through historic decisions."

In addition to Hitler and Mussolini, Joachim von Ribbentrop and Count Ciano, the Axis foreign ministers, took part in today's negotiations. Hitler was accompanied to the Brenner Pass by the Italian Ambassador, Dino Alfieri, and his personal staff, as well as his personal and military adjutants. Coming from Rome with Il Duce were the German Ambassador, Gen. George Victor von Mackensen; Mussolini's cabinet chief, and Count Ciano's cabinet chief, Filippo Anfuso.

"THIS IS AWFULLY INTERESTING," said Grand Duchess Charlotte, refugee ruler of Luxembourg, as she arrived in New York yesterday from Europe by clipper. Navy Announces Abolition Of Its European Squadron

The Navy last night announced abolition of the European squadron and the incorporation of its three warships into the newly organized Atlantic Patrol Force.

It was understood that the cruiser Omaha and the destroyers Barry and Goff, of Squadron 40T, as the unit has been designated, were returning from their Lisbon, Portugal, base, although official confirmation was lacking.

Reports from New York said the Coast Guard cutter Campbell was leaving to replace the Navy ships in Europe and that it was expected to be followed by two other cutters, but officials here would not confirm the dispatches.

It was informally pointed out, however, that the Goff and Barry are almost identical to the 50 destroyers recently turned over to Great Britain in exchange for naval bases in the Western Hemisphere and might be mistaken for the latter by Axis ships or planes. The Omaha, possessing four smokestacks, also resembles the destroyers although considerably larger.

In organizing the new fleet patrol force, moreover, the Navy is consolidating all ships in the Atlantic under one command and plans to build up as strong a force on this coast as is possible with vessels available.

The announcement said that the special service squadron, which has been operating in Central American waters, is also being abolished. Its two gunboats, the Charleston and Erie, and two destroyers, the Tattnall and J. Fred Talbott, will become part of the new patrol force.

Rear Admiral David McD. Breton, European squadron commander, will become commander of Battleship Division 5, it was announced. This is made up of the New York, Texas and Arkansas, and the partially demilitarized battleship Wyoming, the dreadnaughts of the patrol force.

Rear Admiral Henry K. Hewitt, Special Service Squadron commander, will take command of Cruiser Division 8, operating with the main fleet in the Pacific, while Rear Admiral John H. Newton, now commandng Cruiser Division 4, will take command of Cruiser Division 5, a group of heavy cruisers operating under the new patrol force.

The present commander of Cruiser Division 5, Rear Admiral Gilbert J. Rowcliff, will take charge of Division 4. He is also commander of cruisers, scouting force. At the same time the Navy announced that Rear Admiral Ralston S. Holmes has been ordered here for duty with the general board. He has been ill on the West Coast.

The new patrol force contains 125 ships of all types and a strong contingent of planes.

the United States deliberately refuse to understand the true intentions of Japan, Germany and Italy and consider the triple alliance hostile to herself and challenge the Axis nations, the Axis would be ready to accept such a challenge and fight to a finish."

Simultaneously, Yakichiro Suma, foreign office spokesman, in a nation-wide broadcast, declared American moves in the Far East "clearly indicate she is taking step after step in the wrong direction, which might precipitate her into the vortex of armed conflict."

Suma contended the United States and Britain were "shocked and surprised" by the new pact, which he described as "a human manifesto elucidating the inevitably rising tide of a new world order; aye, a reorganization which no country can avoid."

Would Define Spheres

Konoye emphasized that the Axis is prepared to recognize the leading position of the United States in the Americas, provided the United States showed the same consideration to it with reference to Europe and the Far East. He reiterated the three-power alliance was not aimed at any other power.

Japan will continue her efforts to reach an understanding with Soviet Russia, Konoye asserted, but declared Japan is firmly opposed to Communism and would not tolerate its spread in the Orient.

Japanese trade negotiations with the Netherlands' East Indies are proceeding smoothly, he added, and "fairly favorable results are expected."

tive Starnes (Democrat), of Alabama, chairman of the subcommittee conducting the hearing.

"The overthrow of this Government and the establishment of a Government like they have in Nazi Germany," replied the witness.

"Morgan" and "Kuhn and Loeb" were among the people whom the Nazis "would hang to the nearest tree" when they marched to Wall street on a day appointed by the "highest leaders," the witness said.

Werner declared that he left the Bund when he decided that he and his fellow-members were being made "suckers" of by the leadership.

Werner said he was born in Germany, had lived in the United States 13 years and had taken out first papers this year. He declared there was "open collaboration" between the bund and the Christian Mobilizers. Another "tie-in" existed with the Italian Fascist organization in New York, too, he said.

The National Socialist Party in the United States is "more important" than the bund, said Werner under questioning of Representative Voorhis (Democrat), of California. "The bund does the noise," but the National Socialist Party, working quietly, does "more harm," he explained.

London Attack Ends 4th Week Of Night Raids

Southeast Towns Also Are Hard Hit; Convoy Is Shelled

By the Associated Press

London, Oct. 5 (Saturday).—All London was under attack early today in the twenty-eight consecutive nightly German air raid, and the streets were littered with spent shrapnel falling from an antiaircraft barrage, which hour upon hour was lifted above the city.

The assault was concentrated in the northwestern and southwestern areas, but bombs fell, too, in the very center of London. One smashed through the glass roof of a railway station, just missing a ticket collector and a passenger, but no casualties were reported there.

[Both the Waterloo and Victoria stations are roofed with glass.]

The attack spread out from here to the industrial Midlands and other areas of England and Wales.

It was the customary follow-up to daytime raids in which the Nazis, flying solo or in tight little wedges, joined the German Big Berthas of Cap Gris Nez in scorching the English shores and ship lanes with bomb blast and shellfire yesterday.

The air ministry news service, describing the day's fighting over England, said British Hurricanes and Spitfires spent many hours searching the skies for the cloud-dodging, hit-and-run raiders.

"In spite of the difficulties," the ministry added, "there were many duels, at least five Junkers 88, Heinkel 111 and Dornier 17 bombers have been hit, two of them being seen to crash."

The Press Association reported that a third German plane was known to have been shot down—this one in Essex by antiaircraft fire.

It was the end of the fourth terrible week of punishment for England's capital. And, tonight, beneath a sky like one vast piece of watersoaked cotton, central London's antiaircraft roared furiously for two hours to keep new raiders at a distance.

Along the southeast shores of the island, over chalk cliffs and feudal castles, the bombers came today—usually one at a time—dropping their loads from low clouds on the areas that might become the bridgeheads for invasion. British officials said their work was "haphazard;" but acknowledged that the towns and villages of the southeast were hard hit and that there were dead and wounded among the people.

Great Bombs Dropped

In one case, six planes attacked together, smashing part of an ancient castle and knocking over houses in two streets of one coastal settlement.

Once, over the Thames estuary, a four-engined super-bomber dived from the clouds and dropped nine great bombs. They wounded nine persons.

In the dawn, the German coastal guns on the French shore opened up through the murk against a British convoy, creeping around the Cap Gris Nez promontory, tugging its own barrage balloons. Six rounds roared, but the convoy kept to its course.

Twice before dusk the sirens howled in London. Bombs fell in the central, northern and eastern parts of the city, demolishing buildings and houses and burying the occupants, living and dead.

Then, earlier than usual, the Nazis came back for their nightly assault on the city.

During one daylight raid, King George himself was in Central and East London, inspecting air-raid shelters with the new "shelter dictator," Admiral Sir Edward Evans, "Evans of the Broke." Guns roared in the distance, but no bombs fell near the King.

For the King it was a cross-section view of life underground in the world's greatest city.

Visiting one east-end rest and feeding center, he told an 85-year-old refugee:

"I think you're all so wonderful—the way you carry on in spite of it all."

Throughout all this, the English turned their scorn upon the meeting of the Axis dictators in the Brenner Pass.

Cheering Words

They likened it to a consultation between two doctors over a patient who has taken a turn for the worse.

There were cheering words for those who are fighting the Battle of England, factory workers and home folk alike.

Herbert Morrison, the new minister of home security, told the factory workers they had already "helped to save our country."

Henry Willing, London's housing commissioner, announced that "London has won its battle" and declared that those made homeless by bombs "practically all have been rehoused."

London's millions, he added, have "only one fear—their own fear of being frightened."

The Gallup Poll

Third Party Vote May Reach Lowest Point Since Turn of Century

By Dr. George Gallup

Director American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 4.—Unless events of the coming month increase the third-party "protest" vote considerably, the proportion of the vote cast for third-party candidates in the November Presidential election is likely to be the smallest since the turn of the century.

The fact is indicated today in returns from the latest Nation-wide Presidential survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion.

Whereas all third parties combined polled 2.6 per cent of the total vote four years ago, the indicated vote for all third parties in the current Institute survey does not exceed 1 per cent.

Much of the third-party vote in the 1936 election, of course, was represented by the vote for Representative William Lemke, of North Dakota, who ran on the ticket of the Union Party. Lemke and the Union Party are not entered in the race this November.

The survey indicates that Norman Thomas, three-time Socialist candidate for President, is about as strong today as he was four years ago, when he polled 187,000 votes throughout the country. If the election were held today, the survey indicates, Mr. Thomas would receive about 200,000 votes.

Communist Candidate Earl Browder is even weaker than he was in 1936, when he polled 80,000 votes.

Results by States

Voters in the Institute survey were asked for whom they would cast their ballots if the election were held today. State-by-State results for the major-party candidates—President Roosevelt and Wendell L. Willkie—will be reported Sunday in The Post.

Not since the senior LaFollette ran on the Progressive ticket in 1924 has a third-party candidate succeeded in carrying so much as a single State. Probably none of the third-party candidates this year expects to accomplish much more than register a "protest" vote.

In addition to Norman Thomas and Earl Browder, the third-party candidates include the Prohibition Party candidate Roger Babson and the Socialist-Labor Party candidate John W. Aiken.

Vote Since 1900

The following figures show the proportion of the vote cast for all third parties in Presidential elections since 1900:

	% Third Parties	Winning Candidate
1900	2.8%	McKinley
1904	6.0	T. Roosevelt
1908	5.3	Taft
1912	34.9	Wilson
1916	4.7	Wilson
1920	5.5	Harding
1924	17.1	Coolidge
1928	1.1	Hoover
1932	2.9	F. Roosevelt
1936	2.6	F. Roosevelt

The large third-party vote in 1912 was chiefly accounted for by the "Bull Moose" candidacy of Theodore Roosevelt, who received 27 per cent of the total vote.

sance flight plane spotted a convoy of 12 merchant ships escorted by enemy war vessels near Dunkerque and attacked it from a low level. High explosives fell among the merchantmen but the low clouds obscured the result of that attack.

Later two principal shipping basins and a Rotterdam dock were located and bombarded. Another daylight raider, following the Maas River, smashed a concentration of about 50 barges lying off the river port of Heusoen but the success of that attack was not detailed. However, a number of barges were hit and the pilot reported that a number of his cargo of high explosive bombs were seen to hit the piers.

A big iron factory between Wesel and Halkern also was attacked yesterday by a bomber which flew across Holland and penetrated western Germany.

Other machines bombed railroad communications and oil storage plants in the vicinity of Cherbourg and from these raids all the planes returned safely, according to the air ministry.

London, Oct. 4—The admiralty announced today the destruction of an Italian destroyer of the Courtatone class—966-tonners equipped for mine laying—and nine submarines, seven German and two Italian.

The destroyer was torpedoed by a British submarine, the admiralty said, and the other vessels by action of British naval and air forces which was not described in detail.

In making the announcement, the admiralty acknowledged:

"The enemy has recently been having a greater measure of success in his U-boat attacks on merchant shipping than during the earlier stages of the war." But it was added, this had been expected "after the collapse of France and the German seizure of the French Atlantic ports."

Senators Hear AAA Violated Hatch Act

Political Activity Especially in Iowa Laid to Agency

By the Associated Press

A complaint that the Agricultural Adjustment Administration is engaging in "political activity" was received yesterday by the Senate Campaign Committee, Chairman Gillette (Democrat), of Iowa, announced.

He said he had asked Agriculture Department officials for a statement and, when it was received, would request the committee to act on the complaint.

He did not disclose the source, but said the complaint charged that AAA "is active in several States, particularly Iowa."

"If this is true," Gillette added, "it would be a clear violation of the Hatch Act." The Hatch law forbids Government employes, other than those in policy-making positions, to engage in political activity.

In another phase of its job of policing the election, the Senate committee went over with Democratic and Republican leaders today questions arising from the Hatch law's $3,000,000 limit on national campaign expenditures.

Senator Reed (Democrat), of Kansas, of the committee, suggested that an investigation should be made to determine possible connection of Chairman Flynn, of the Democratic committee, with the World's Fair in New York, inasmuch as the fair received a Federal contribution. The Hatch Act forbids political activity of most employes paid with Federal funds.

NLRB Aide Denies Making Radical Speech

By the Associated Press

Edwin S. Smith, of the Labor Board, told a special House committee investigating board affairs yesterday that a "false picture" had been painted by his critics about a speech he made in Mexico City before a conference of Latin-American labor leaders.

Smith labeled as "misrepresentation" a critical article on his visit entitled "Red Labor Marches in Mexico," by Hartley Barclay, a New York magazine editor.

Smith said his Mexico City address was a discussion of the Wagner Act before the International Industrial Relations Institute, and that Barclay, who was in the audience, immediately congratulated him.

The Labor Board member denied that the hammer and sickle or any radical symbol was on display at the Mexico City conference where he spoke.

He said Edmund Toland, the House committee counsel, had made such a charge in a recent speech, and that the charge contained "an unfair implication."

The committee's inquiry into the nature of Smith's Mexico City speech began Thursday with Barclay testifying that William Green, A. F. L. president, had refused to attend a labor gathering in Mexico City on the grounds it was sponsored by "extreme leftists and Communists."

Smith told the committee that the labor congress Green shunned and the International Industrial Relations Congress were two of four distinct meetings going on in Mexico City at that time, and that he did not address the labor congress.

Smith disputed a paragraph in Barclay's magazine article which quoted Smith as saying:

"Workers cannot stand aside and listen to an explanation of how capitalism might work."

Smith said he did not make the statement and declared that it was put together by Barclay with single words and phrases picked out of different paragraphs and sentences of his speech.

Smith remarked that the quotation from his speech as it appeared in Barclay's article had "a definite revolutionary trend."

fax and Boston will be reinforced with air stations in Nova Scotia and Newfoundland as well as a heavy concentration of air depots in Massachusetts.

West Coast Plans Similar

Through similar recommendations for defense of the West Coast the board hopes to make the North American continent impregnable against invasion.

Speaking as chairman of the American section of the board Mayor Fiorello M. LaGuardia of New York said:

"The defense recommendations cover both coasts of both countries. In so far as Newfoundland is concerned, we have made specific recommendations to go into effect immediately after the details of the lease of bases from Great Britain have been worked out."

Cost, Benefits Mutual

"Each country will contribute to the defense of the other and each country will benefit by the other's contribution," the mayor added. "By co-ordinating defense we have eliminated the possibility of duplication and overlapping. For the first time in the history of our two countries we have accomplished a definite plan of defense."

LaGuardia was expected to go directly to Washington and report to President Roosevelt.

The board's aviation experts, both Canadian and United States, remained here to continue study of defense plans.

said. This is to make public all information which properly can be disclosed without endangering the National defense, he stated. The publication from time to time of figures on planes on hand would give foreign government a "timetable" of American aircraft production, it was added, information which it has been decided should be kept secret.

There has been repeated criticism from Wendell Willkie and other Republican leaders of President Roosevelt for what they contended was "soft-pedaling" the situation as to number of planes on hand, and talking continuously of "orders."

Last night, in Philadelphia, Willkie returned to this attack, charging that arms production was lagging and declaring that planes listed "on order" were in many cases "aircraft factories on order."

1,500 Combat Planes

The only information as to Army planes in service which would be made available by the War Department yesterday, were figures given orally by Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, at a press conference September 5. This information showed that on that date there were about 1,500 combat planes in service, of which about 500 were listed as "first line" and capable of meeting any foreign warplanes on equal terms. The total did not include training planes and other combat types, it was stated.

Definite figures on production were likewise not available at the National Defense Commission yesterday. Robert Horton, director of information, quoted figures given at a press conference nearly two months ago by Commissioner Knudsen, which listed the expected August output of American plane factories at 895. This included 396 planes for the Army and Navy, 236 for the British, 84 for other foreign orders, 174 for United States commercial use, and 5 unclassified.

Order in California

The present monthly rate, Horton said, is now "more than 1,000," of which "something over 200" are British deliveries. Great Britain now has about 7,000 planes on order in the United States, he stated. At the same time, the Bureau of Domestic and Foreign Commerce of the Department of Commerce, quoting figures received from its agents at export points, said that 270 planes were delivered to Great Britain during August.

The final contract awarded by the War Department in its 18,641-plane program was given to North American Aviation, Inc., of Inglewood, Calif. It was for an undisclosed number of planes to cost $37,770,981. The type was not given.

In another defense development, the War Department announced that all retired Army officers had been given physical examinations to determine how many of them could be called into active service if required. It is not intended to call a large number from the retired list, it was said, and only in exceptional cases will officers over 60 years old be ordered to active duty.

velt dug up the first three shovels of earth to break the ground for the $470,000 Recorder of Deeds Building a week ago Friday.

Shovel Work Sublet

The excavation job had been let out to Sam Merando, Washington contractor, who has an agreement with the C. I. O. to use wherever possible members of the United Construction Workers. He had sublet the steamshovel work to the Atlas Crane & Excavation Co., which employs members of the A. F. L. exclusively.

A. F. L. officials warned the Atlas Co. against working with C. I. O. men, and allowed the shovel to be on hand only for the President; immediately afterward it was removed. E. T. Johnson, who operates an open shop steamshovel, was then brought to the site to continue the excavation, but this move was stymied from several directions.

Under the Federal law, employes on PWA projects must be either union men or those approved by the municipal employment service. Johnson applied to the employment center here for the required certification, but the A. F. of L. announced a dispute was in progress and set up pickets. The employment center, unwilling to enter a union controversy, held up the necessary approval. Here, the C. I. O. union, who were willing to work with the A. F. of L. steamshovel, balked at joining forces with non-union help.

30 Days for Excavation

Merando said last night that unless some other compromise was found, he would ask the C. I. O. to provide a steamshovel operator affiliated with that union. Meanwhile, except for the three shovels of loam dug up by the President, little excavation has been done.

According to specifications, Merando has 30 days to complete all the excavation work. In the meantime, plans for the building are to be drawn and the contract for the building let. Merando, who for several months was an A. F. L. operator, is also involved in controversy at the waterfront, since the subcontractor there is acting under him.

Fredericksburg Holds Dog Mart

visiting press and newsreel men with a spread of Virginia ham, Virginia turkey and whatever else it takes to make them see the proper sentiment of an old Virginia custom.

The civic leaders perform a classic task, not the least of which is to inveigle, as happened today, 503 dogs into a parade through the streets. The dogs didn't object, but the owners had come with bargaining eyes, wanting to sell, but not to parade. So the owners were slow getting lined up, and then, once in line, the hunting dogs, with the autumn smell in the air, wanted to hunt instead of parade. But the parade meandered along.

Then, back at the high school football field, appeared Thomas H. Bullock, 93, of Stafford, with a black cat on his shoulder. This was an issue to be decided, considering the affair was a dog show. And, at this juncture, word came that one of the auctioneers who was to have assisted John S. Heubi on the auction block had sprained his ankle while trying to get a calf in the barn. So he could not appear.

The officials strove to get on with the sale, and into the bedlam of barks came the sound of foxhorns, blown by contestants. Then came a fiddling contest, followed by the runners-up in the horn-blowing contest, with an interlude in which A. B. Gouldman, of King George County, Va., blew mightily on a sea shell that was given to his grandfather 200 years ago by a sea captain.

The fiddler, Mrs. A. J. Sweeney, of Fredericksburg (no one else competed), strummed away at "Turkey in the Straw," while over on the sidelines a brace of hounds took to howling and leaping into the air. Investigation proved that their owner had hunted all Thursday night and at 5 a. m. today had captured a coon. This he brought along to the mart and held at arm's length to excite the hounds. The auctioneer put a prize on the block and announced that he was not putting up any 25-cent dog, and that she was worth about $25.

"This Irish setter," he cried, "pointed seven turkeys that were shot last season." Nobody made a bid, so Heubi, punctuating his sales talk with the rap of a polished walking cane on a table, knocked down a rabbit dog for $1.25.

David Jackson, of Chancellorsville, was announced as the horn-blowing winner, and a report came in from the first-aid tent that three citizens had been scratched by dogs and a couple others were hurt while using can-openers.

Mrs. W. F. Eubank, of Richmond, was called to the platform to learn that Duke, a 20-blue-ribbon English setter, had won the highest honors of the mart's bench show. E. O. Brooks, of Falmouth, who brought in 28 dogs, took a prize on one as the ugliest, a dog said to be part wirehaired terrier, cocker spaniel, collie and other breeds.

The tradition of the mart dates to the Indians of 1698, who went to the early Fredericksburg to trade their no-good dogs for hunting knives and other weapons to harass the same white traders.

Change Demanded In Labor Policy

Jackson's Ruling Called Menace to Defense Production

By Henry N. Dorris

Copyright by New York Times

Threats of legislation to outlaw "punitive" acts by the Federal Government toward firms which have transgressed labor laws, came up in Congress yesterday. They followed Attorney General Jackson's ruling upholding in effect the National Defense Advisory Commission's policy of refusing contracts to corporations adjudged guilty by the National Labor Relations Board of unfair labor practices.

In the face of these threats, it was generally held that the billions in defense contracts already let would not be affected by the ruling. The threats also imperiled the program of Congressional leaders to recess Congress either for a long period, or by the device of recessing every three days until after the elections.

Concern was expressed by many members that in acceding to the pressure of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, the Administration had created the possibility of delay to the defense program, because of the relatively large number of firms which would be precluded from future contracts. Many of these firms, it was said, are the only ones which can produce certain defense material.

Bethlehem Case

President Roosevelt on September 13 sent to Congress a memorandum outlining the basic policies governing the letting of contracts. This was four days after the Navy had let contracts to the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation for approximately $600,000,000 for aircraft carriers, cruisers and destroyes. The Bethlehem Steel Corporation, parent company, admittedly was one of the concens which was in difficulty with the C. I. O.

Representative Smith, of Virginia, chairman of the NLRB investigation committee, suggested that the better way to get at the question would be to call Jackson and Sydney Hillman before the committee.

Representative Routzohn, of Ohio, a member of the committee, brought out that Acting Comptroller General R. N. Elliott three years ago had ruled that agencies could not refuse to let contracts to firms that had violated the Labor Act.

"No Basis in Law"

Calling Jackson a "yes sir" Attorney General, Routzohn said that "even this pliable Attorney General could find no basis in law for this contribution to confusion. In fact, Congress refused to pass such a law last year and the year before. The Attorney General's 'informal' opinion cited no law, no statute, no court decisions.

"Thus, without sanction of law, does he seek to turn our national defense production over to the whims of this intriguing, Communist-infested agency of the Administration, an agency that the record shows has gone out of its way to sabotage industry and create national disunity."

Representative Taber, of New York, said the defense program might be slowed up as much as 30 per cent if the Defense Commission adheres to its policy.

"If a Republican had delivered such a ruling," he said, "he would have been called a 'fifth columnist' by the gentleman in the White House."

New Flag Planned For Norway

(Wireless—Copyright by New York Times.)

Stockholm, Sweden, Oct. 4.—To symbolize a complete breach with the past, Maj. Kidkun Quisling has decided to force a new flag on Norway. Speaking tonight at a large National Union Party meeting in Oslo, the major also announced that Norway would become a corporative state and that the name Storting—which means "great parliament"—would be replaced by Riksting—"state parliament."

The new Norwegian flag proposed by Maj. Quisling will be red with a yellow cross instead of red with a blue cross. This historical decision will undoubtedly render Maj. Quisling even more unpopular with his countrymen than he is now.

Cromwell 'Thoroughly Condemns Burning Of Poll Books in Hudson County,' Stronghold of Democratic Boss Hague

Trenton, N. J., Oct. 4 (AP).—James H. R. Cromwell, Democratic nominee for United States Senator, says he "thoroughly condemns" the burning of poll books in Hudson County, Democratic stronghold of Mayor Frank Hague, of Jersey City, State Democratic leader.

HAGUE

In taking this stand, Cromwell, former U. S. Minister to Canada, joined his running mate for Governor, former Secretary of the Navy Charles Edison, who assailed the poll book burning in a speech Tuesday night. Both are campaigning with Hague's support.

Republicans contend the 1937 gubernatorial election was "stolen in Hudson," and charge the 1936 and 1937 books were destroyed to conceal fraud. Democrats contend the burning was routine, that the law did not require keeping the books more than two years.

Senator Burke (Democrat), of Nebraska, made public yesterday an exchange of correspondence between himself and Senator Norris (Independent), of Nebraska, in which the latter described a Senate hearing on a resolution to limit the President to one six-year term as "an unauthorized Willkie sideshow at public expense."

Burke wrote Norris September 27 inviting him to clarify for the subcommittee "the conflict in position of those who supported the La Follette (anti-third term) resolution in 1928 and are today urging a third term for President Roosevelt."

Norris in his reply dated September 30 declared Roosevelt was "almost indispensable."

New York, Oct. 4 (AP).—The announced "nonpolitical" speech on national defense which President Roosevelt will make October 12 from Dayton, Ohio, was termed "pure subterfuge" today by Samuel F. Pryor, jr., Eastern Republican campaign manager.

"While we are struggling to keep our budget within the Hatch (clean politics) Act and operate honestly," Pryor said, "we see pure subterfuge in a trip like this."

New York, Oct. 4 (INS).—Thomas E. Dewey, unsuccessful in his bid for the Republican Presidential nomination, will speak in behalf of Wendell Willkie in the Midwest next week, it was announced today.

The district attorney will discuss "the price of the third term to the American people" at Chicago, stronghold of the powerful Kelly-Nash Democratic combine, at Peoria, Ill., and Saginaw, Mich. He also probably will make a brief visit to his home town, Owosso, Mich.

Dewey also has scheduled a speech for Kingston, N. Y., but the date is uncertain.

Pictures of Wendell Willkie were being sold in the House yesterday by—of all people—an ardent New Dealer from the utility-conscious State of Washington.

At 10 cents a photograph, about a dozen of the pictures went like hotcakes to pages, House attendants and Congressmen.

And Representative Knute Hill, the promoter, said he had a lot more back in his office. He had even sent one to President Roosevelt. The photos were boldly labeled "The Challenger," and showed the Republican candidate apparently pointing to his lapel.

But there was one little catch. Representative Hill had superimposed on Willkie's overcoat a big, shiny star-spangled button marked:

"ROOSEVELT."

Recess Expected Early Next Week

Democrats Urged To Return, Vote for Ramspeck Report

As Congressional leaders hoped for a recess early next week until after election, telegrams were sent to absent Democrats yesterday urging their return to vote Monday on the Ramspeck civil service conference report.

The messages were sent out in an effort to insure enough votes to sustain the Ramspeck report when it is brought up on the House floor Monday. Already approved by the Senate, the compromise bill is in serious danger in the House because it no longer contains the Keller-Nichols amendment.

This amendment, which had been approved by the House, but knocked out in conference, would prohibit positions brought into civil service through the Ramspeck bill to be filled by residents of States which are over their quota, as long as any under-quota States remain.

One telegram sent out yesterday to an absent member read: "Have been requested by the House Democratic leadership to wire all out-of-town members . . . that it is important that all Democratic members be present."

Meanwhile, Representative Nichols (Democrat), of Oklahoma, declared he was confident that the civil service bill could not pass the House without the Keller-Nichols amendment. He pointed out that 32 States are under their civil service quota in the District.

The Republicans are expected to vote against the conference report, inasmuch as both House Republicans on the conference committee disapprove the bill in its present form.

The type of recess to be taken by the House early next week still appeared undetermined last night, and probably will not be finally resolved until Monday.

Assistant Democratic whips have been trying to poll members on their views on a recess to mid-November, but have been handicapped because so many are out of town.

However, Senate Majority Leader Barkley said he hoped an agreement could be reached early next week to quit until November. Pointing to the number of conference reports still to be passed upon, Senator Barkley asked his colleagues not to leave Washington before midweek.

While leaders on both sides of the Capitol hope for a cessation of all Congressional activity until about November 18, the other alternative would be recesses through the pre-election period for three days at a time, taking up no business at the biweekly sessions.

Army Displays Might of New Armored Force

Fort Benning, Ga., Oct. 4.—The United States Army's streamlined Second Armored Division took the "Heights of Fort Benning" in "blitz" fashion before the interested eyes of 20 visiting Latin-American army chieftains today.

Maj. Gen. Charles L. Scott threw 11,000 men with 2,500 military vehicles and 400 light and heavy tanks into the simulated fray which climaxed a day crammed with demonstration of two tactical problems and an inspection of extensive training activities of the thousands of recruits over the 97,000-acre expanse of the post.

The day's "war games" emphasized lessons learned from Europe's current conflict.

The military leaders witnessed the firing of Springfields, Garands, automatic rifles, light and heavy and 50-caliber machine guns, 60 and 81 mm. mortars and 37-mm. anti-tank guns, in fact every weapon at the Infantry School—North America's largest.

As the demonstration started, a fully equipped battalion marched before the visiting chiefs of staff and ranking officers from Bolivia, Colombia, Costa Rica, the Dominican Republic, Guatemala, Honduras, Panama, Peru and Uruguay in extended formations designed to give the least target to an enemy's attacking planes.

The day's display of Uncle Sam's growing armed power drew repeated praise from the visitors.

The visit to this post will have an anticlimax a few minutes before the departure tomorrow morning for San Antonio, Tex., when the Army's experimental parachute troops will give a demonstration of jumping.

Red Cross to Hear Taylor Report

Chalfield Taylor, American Red Cross European delegate for war relief operations, reported to headquarters here yesterday after a year's absence abroad. He returned aboard the Clipper plane on Wednesday.

Taylor, former undersecretary of the Treasury, brought with him confidential reports on conditions in war-stricken countries and is scheduled to confer with national Red Cross officials today and during next week. Red Cross headquarters explained he would be unavailable for comment until after his conferences with executives of the organization.

Local Willkie Boosters Off to Hear Nominee

Roosevelt Cites Story of Axis Dislike

The Washington Post.

Saying he was just quoting the press to his questioners, the President read to them the following passages from the dispatch:

"So far as the United States is concerned, the Axis is primarily interested in keeping her out of the war and trying to prevent or minimize her help to Britain. The three-power alliance was intended to be one step in this direction. It well may be that another step may be taken.

"Moreover, the Axis is out to beat President Roosevelt, not as a measure of interference in American internal politics, but because of the President's foreign policy and because of everything for which he stands in the eyes of Italians and Germans. This election is realized to be of vast importance to the Axis. Therefore it is normal strategy for the Axis to do something before November 5 which would somehow have a great effect on the electoral campaign."

Asked if his reading of the dispatch had any connection with charges made by his running mate, Henry A. Wallace, that the Axis would welcome the election of Wendell Willkie, the President declined to comment.

The President's pre-election speaking and traveling plans announced yesterday include an enlarged itinerary for an Ohio trip starting October 10, and a major speech during the week of October 21.

The President told his press conference that he would address the Nation sometime during the week of October 21, probably from the White House but said he had no expectation of speaking in Madison Square Garden the night of October 28.

The Democratic National Committee has leased the Garden for the twenty-eighth, scene of President Roosevelt's windup campaign speeches is 1932 and 1936.

According to a tentative itinerary for his trip beyond the Alleghenies next week, the President would leave the White House shortly before midnight October 10, arriving at Johnstown, Pa., the following morning for a brief stop.

From Johnstown the Chief Executive would go to Pittsburgh, inspecting the Carnegie-Illinois armor plate mill and other industrial units at noon, and reaching Youngstown, Ohio, for a defense plant tour in midafternoon.

To Inspect Plants

Next the special train would move to Columbus, Ohio, where President Roosevelt would leave it about 10 a. m. the next day to visit Fort Hayes, headquarters of the Fifth Army Corps Area.

After an hour in Columbus the President would move to Dayton for a day of defense inspections and a visit to the home of James M. Cox, who was the Democratic Presidential nominee when Mr. Roosevelt ran for the Vice Presidency in 1920. The President is scheduled to make a hemispheric report on defense at 9 p. m. that night from his private car in Dayton.

May Address A. F. of L.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said after a White House call yesterday that the President had "indicated a willingness" to address the federation's annual convention, starting November 18 in New Orleans, if he can arrange it.

Also on the President's engagement list, he said yesterday, is a brief talk to the New York Herald Tribune Forum, but this will be a mere "howdy do."

Questions of foreign policy and national defense dominated the President's press conference yesterday.

In response to a question, the President said he thought aid short of war was going to Britain as fast as is humanly possible.

He disclosed that discussions have been going forward on the possibility of training Canadian fliers in this country during the winter. Hinting broadly that he would approve such a scheme provided the fledglings attended private schools, the President said that what a Canadian did with flying knowledge gained here was a matter for decision after he returned to Canada.

Denies Hull Will Quit

Asked about American World War tanks that have been reported going to Canada in recent days, the President said the Canadians had bought some of the obsolete tanks, but he doubted if most of them would move under their own power.

Laughingly the President characterized as just another story Japanese reports that Secretary Hull plans to resign January 1, regardless of the outcome of the election, and other reports that Ambassador Joseph E. Kennedy would leave his London post to be replaced by William C. Bullitt, now envoy to France.

Asked if the United States and Latin American nations were planning joint use of defense bases in this hemisphere, the President said that discussions were going on about facilities and American officers were continually exchanging information with officers of the southern republics.

New Nationality Code

House approval sent to the White House yesterday a new nationality code clamping tight curbs against Fifth Column activities and barring subversive alien groups from United States citizenship.

The Senate, meanwhile adopted a conference report on legislation that would require "organizations subject to foreign control" to register with the Attorney General and disclose their membership and the sources of their finances. Legislators said the measure would apply to the German-American Bund and the Communist Party. The House has yet to act on the report.

U. S. Files Suit To Split G. M., Finance Firm

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Oct. 4.—The Federal Government moved today to divorce the General Motors Corporation and the General Motors Acceptance Corporation.

Alleging violation of the antitrust laws, the Government filed a civil suit in Federal Court which Assistant Attorney General Thomas A. Daly said was designed to divest General Motors of all ownership and control of the financing concern.

The suit charged that General Motors Corporation and General Motors Acceptance Corporation, acting together, "through coercion and discrimination," required dealers to finance with General Motors Acceptance Corporation on both wholesale purchases and retail sales of General Motors cars.

A Federal jury at South Bend, Ind., on November 16, 1939, convicted the General Motors Corporation, General Motors Sales Corporation, General Motors Acceptance Corporation, and General Motors Acceptance Corporation of Indiana, of violating the Sherman antitrust act. Each concern was fined $5,000, but defendants filed an appeal, which is still pending.

Willkie said he urged Cooke's election not only because he is qualified "but because the elimination of Senator Guffey would be a substantial gain to the Senate."

Guffey, 100 per cent New Dealer, was author of "Roosevelt Again," one of the first third-term pamphlets.

Much of Willkie's speech was an attack on the President's "on hand and on order" defense speech, and the Republican nominee said the country will be "looking for the catch" when further official figures are released on defense program progress.

"A Job in Every Home"

Willkie received his loudest applause when he called for voters to "awake, and take this country away from this kind of leadership."

Fate of democracy "everywhere in the world," he said, depended on Republicans winning this fall.

He promised if elected "to mobilize American industry for the production of armaments" and in so doing to "lead the fight for peace." He said his first step will be "to put a job in every home" and his second to launch a defense program that would be "the greatest industrial undertaking in the history of the world."

It was 14 weeks ago today in this city that Willkie won the Republican nomination in an eleventh-hour campaign that left old-line politicians staggering from its speed. Since his nomination, Dr. Gallup has placed this one-time Republican stronghold in the Roosevelt column.

Willkie chose it today as the jumping-off place for his Eastern and New England campaign before doubling back through the West in an effort to repeat his June performance.

Philadelphia called out 2,000 police to handle the thousands who met Willkie at Broad Street Station. All were needed to hold back the crowds that crushed in on the procession as it wound through the financial district. Then for three hours Willkie sped about the city making speeches.

There was booing by some groups as the caravan skirted industrial districts. At one of these stops Willkie said certain political "bosses" had organized "booing clubs" in the belief it would hurt him. He said it hurt him to think that some people "permit political bosses to do their thinking for them." Everywhere he renewed his appeal for "open minds."

Once his procession drew to a stop beside Cramp's Shipyard, which hasn't been in operation for a decade. This plant is now being made ready to handle a reported $109,000,000 in contracts to start work on six 10,000-to-12,000-ton cruisers.

He used this ship yard to hammer home his speed-up production demands. He said if he were President "places like this would not be standing empty. They would be functioning."

In his first speech in Philadelphia, on Reyburn Plaza, he recalled his nomination here more than three months ago. He said he had dedicated himself then to three objectives—jobs for the jobless, production for defense and national unity. Now he said, he was ready to report "progress."

Willkie's tour of the city carried him past historic Independence Hall. The Republican nominee paused to view the Liberty Bell. He was greeted here by the Betsy Ross Band and Veterans' representatives. Women's Willkie groups presented his wife with a bouquet of orchids.

It was in the downtown Broad, Walnut and Chestnut street section that Willkie received the loudest cheers and the most confetti since the Chicago Loop. A sound truck blared, "Vote for Willkie," as the caravan passed under street-wide opposition banners flaunting, "Willkie—the hope of our country" and "America needs Roosevelt," over the Union League Club was the sign, "Willkie-McNary — love of country leads."

At Harrisburg, Republican-dominated capital of this State which G. O. P. leaders think they must swing in order to win, Willkie charged the Administration with fostering disunity by preaching "class distinctions."

A parade through crowded streets to the Statehouse Plaza preceded his pledge there to bring "unity and economic progress" by "ending class hatreds and starting faith in free enterprise."

At Lancaster he told a station-side crowd they should vote for him "if for no other reason than to remove those smart boys from Washington."

He said he had pledged himself to rid Washington of the New Deal "intelligentsia" because "instead of those bright boys being bright, they are tremendously dumb."

Money Empires Control G.O.P., Wallace Says

Election Is Called 'Struggle' Between Wall and Main Streets

By the United Press

Aberdeen, S. D., Oct. 4.—Henry A. Wallace, addressing a State-wide gathering of Democrats, tonight assailed the "giant financial empires" which he charged control the Republican Party.

The Democratic Vice Presidential candidate declared that the 1940 election is a "continuation of the struggle between Wall street and Main street that has been going on for over 70 years."

The Roosevelt Administration, Wallace said, is fighting the farmers' battle against "those short-sighted financial, journalistic and political interests" which have opposed farm aid.

The address was the last major speech on his 7,000-mile coast to coast tour that included stops in 13 States. Commenting on his tour, Wallace said he found "the situation in all States very encouraging."

"We Americans," Wallace said, "have been trying to protect capitalist business, which includes agriculture, against the growing powers of high finance."

Asks If Roosevelt Would Quit

Minneapolis, Oct. 4 (AP).—Roy E. Dunn, Republican National committeeman for Minnesota, today issued a statement asking Henry A. Wallace, whether he expects President Roosevelt to retire within a year if he is reelected so that Wallace would become President.

Dunn said:

"We have the word of M. W. Thatcher (general manager of the Farmers Union Grain Terminal Association) intimate adviser of Mr. Wallace and apparently also of the President, that Mr. Roosevelt intends to retire pretty soon so Wallace can be President. That is based on the assumption that Roosevelt will be reelected.

"What we would like to know from Mr. Wallace is this: When the delegates booed him at the Roosevelt-Kelly-Hague Convention in July and when these delegates accepted Mr. Wallace only because the White House ordered it, was Mr. Wallace gloating inwardly with satisfaction because he knew that within a year he would be President?"

U. S. Recruiting Sets Record

The most men ever to enlist voluntarily in the United States' armed forces in one month were recruited in September.

Army, Navy and Marine Corps officials said yesterday that an incomplete tally showed 50,036 recruits for the three branches of the service. The figure raises the total standing forces of the Nation to 512,355 men.

There were 41,124 recruited into the Army, 5,471 into the Navy and 3,441 in the Marine Corps. The September total exceeds by more than 3,000 the enlistments in August.

Locally, it was said that between 150 to 200 inquiries are being received daily at the Army recruiting station. In August 133 men were recruited at the District station and 32 in the first four days of October.

Lewisburg, W. Va., Oct. 4 (AP).—Harry Frazier, sr., 79, consulting engineer and retired chief engineer of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad, died today at his home after an illness of 18 months.

Jones Family Here, All 17 of Them

The Jones family from Bluefield, W. Va.—15 boys ranging in age from 3 months to 23 years, their father and their mother—toured Washington yesterday as guests of Representative and Mrs. Kee (Democrat), of West Virginia.

Their day in the Capital began with a luncheon in the Senate Rules Committee room — hardly large enough to seat the family of Mr. and Mrs. Grover Cleveland Jones—and included a visit to the White House later.

Second youngest of the clan, incidentally, is Franklin Delano Roosevelt Jones.

Bomber Force Chief Put at Head of R.A.F.

Led Counter-Invasion Blows; Chamberlain Quits as Party Head

By Robert P. Post
Copyright by New York Times

London, Oct. 4.—As anticipated, Neville Chamberlain today resigned as leader of the Conservative Party, a position he held first as prime minister and later after he had relinquished the premiership.

Chamberlain's resignation was contained in a letter he wrote to the party organization which will meet next week to decide on his successor. It is said to be a foregone conclusion that the post will go to Winston Churchill. Thus the prime minister who has been in and out of the Conservative Party for years will return to his first political love.

This was not the only change announced today. Sir Cyril Newall, chief of the air staff, who has long been slated to leave, will become the Governor General of New Zealand. His place as head of the air force will be taken by Air Marshal Sir Charles Portal, who up until now has been head of the bomber command and thus the officer directly responsible for Britain's air offensive against Germany and the so-called invasion ports.

Has Fine War Record

Air Marshal Sir Richard Peirse, present vice chief of the air staff, succeeds Portal in the bomber command. This is somewhat surprising as it was logical to expect that Peirse would succeed his immediate chief.

The new head of the British air effort has had a long career both in the army and air force, despite the fact that he is only 47. In his early life he was a racing motorcyclist and joined the army in the last war as a dispatch rider. In 1915 he joined the air force as an observer and shortly afterward scored a hit on a plane flown by the famous Immelman. He ended the war as a colonel at 25, with the Military Cross and the D. S. O. He continued afterward in the air force and went through all the training courses.

Sir Richard Peirse, son of an admiral, started with the navy and then joined the air force. He received the D. S. O. for attacks upon submarine bases at Ostend and Zeebrugge.

Come-down for Newall

Sir Cyril Newall succeeds Viscount Galway as Governor General of New Zealand. The governor-generalship of New Zealand is an important position, but obviously a come-down for a man who had led the entire air force of Great Britain.

Herbert Morrison started his new position as home secretary today with a tour of one of London's few deep shelters. He picked one with which he had had something to do in building, as head of the London county council. He refused to be drawn out on the question of providing deep shelters, saying he had the whole country to consider, and must examine the situation before he made up his mind on the controversial problem that confronts him.

District Leaders Mourn Death Of Mrs. Coyle, Social Worker

Succumbs in New York; Funeral Services to Be Held There Tomorrow

MRS. CHALICE KELLEY COYLE

The death in New York Thursday of Mrs. Chalice Kelley Coyle, 46, wife of David Cushman Coyle, economist and author, was mourned yesterday by leaders in Washington social and economic circles with whom she had worked for five years.

She died after a short illness in Roosevelt Hospital, New York.

Mr. Coyle was traveling with the campaign party of Henry A. Wallace, Democratic Vice Presidential nominee, in Montana when he received news of his wife's death. He flew to New York, arriving yesterday.

Services Tomorrow

Funeral services will be at 3 p. m. tomorrow at 117 W. Seventy-second street, New York, according to word received last night at the Coyle residence, 1719 H street northwest. Burial will be in Bronxville Cemetery.

Mrs. Coyle was a training specialist with the United States Civil Service Commission. Her husband was formerly consultant to the National Planning Board and was a member of the Technical Review Board of PWA.

Mrs. Coyle was born in Colorado and spent most of her early life there. She met Mr. Coyle while lecturing in New York and was married to him five years ago. There she was personnel director for a concern.

An experienced sociologist, she received her B. A. degree from the Colorado State Teachers College and her M. A. from the Univeristy of Chicago.

Mrs. Doyle Pays Tribute

"In her death, we have suffered the loss of a keen mind that had an intelligent approach to educational and social problems, as well as a personality which was enthusiastic and indefatigable in working for the underprivileged," Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, president of the Board of Education and executive secretary of the Washington Self-Help Exchange, said last night.

Mrs. Coyle was one of the first members and served as secretary to the exchange. In the winter of 1937 she directed a survey of relief needs in the District made by a joint group of the Voteless District of Columbia League of Women Voters and the American Association of University Women.

Mrs. Louis Ottenberg, president of the women voters' group at that time, yesterday called Mrs. Coyle's death "a great loss to the community," and praised the work she had done in obtaining larger relief appropriations for the District through her study.

Urged Housing Reforms

Mrs. Coyle was a leader in the committee which a few years ago conducted wives of Congressmen through Washington's alleys, to show them District housing conditions at first hand. Both she and her husband believed that conditions of the underprivileged must be presented graphically if they are to be improved.

She was active in the Institute of Professional Relations and a member of the American Association of University Women. Speaking of her work there, Miss Jessie Arndt, club editor of The Post, called Mrs. Coyle "one of the finest club women with whom I have come in contact in Washington. She was completely unselfish in her service."

1937 Sugar Act Given Another Year of Life

By the Associated Press

The Senate approved and sent to the White House yesterday legislation to continue the life of the 1937 Sugar Act another year.

Fearful lest a legislative jam bottle up any sort of sugar legislation this session, Senators agreed to the measure in the same form as voted by the House in early summer.

Under existing law, the sugar quota system expires at the end of this year. If President Roosevelt signs the House bill the expiration date will be December 1, 1941.

Senators from all producing areas said they were dissatisfied with a simple continuation of the quota and benefit system.

Beet-State Senators agreed to it, however, when it appeared that a revision of the system could not be passed this session.

Man's Suicide Blamed on Dispute With Woman

Despondency following a misunderstanding with a woman was blamed by police last night for the suicide of Ellis J. Fuller, 35, of 1110 M street northwest, a solicitor for a downtown photographer.

Fuller was found unconscious in his room by his landlady, Dorothy Teano, who told police she had investigated the odor of gas. Two burners on a small stove were open but unlighted, she told police. Detective Sergt. Dewey Guest said the doors and windows of the room had been sealed with paper.

Guest said he learned Fuller had had an argument with a woman and that an attempted reconciliation failed Thursday night. A certificate of suicide was issued by Deputy Coroner Christopher J. Murphy.

Rome Looks For Axis Move In the Levant

Gayda's Paper Denies Hostility but Reports Troops on Greek Line

By Richard G. Massock.
Associated Press Staff Writer

Rome, Oct. 4.—Behind the curtained windows of an armored train in the mists of Brenner Pass, Benito Mussolini and Adolf Hitler agreed today on their next moves in war which may find its main winter theater in the eastern Mediterranean.

Rome's most authoritative journalist, Virginio Gayda, said the meeting was not to plot against the peace of any country not in the war.

But in another column of his newspaper, Il Giornale D'Italia, he republished without comment from Swiss newspapers reports that large Italian troop concentrations are gathering on Greece's frontiers in Albania.

Some foreign observers speculated that the Axis powers might try to swing Greece away from her guarantor, Great Britain, into their own camp—peacefully if possible, but with military means if the Greeks are persuaded by what the Italians call "British intrigue."

The attitude of the United States toward the war probably was discussed, well-informed persons said, as well as Mediterranean matters and the Axis services of supply.

It was the first direct contact beeween Duce and Fuehrer since the American sale of destroyers to Britain and the leasing to the United States of British naval bases in the Western Hemisphere.

Since it was declared by a competent source that "Russia . . . Spain . . . a peace move" all could be excluded from the probable subjects of discussion it was assumed in foreign circles here that any plan to attack Gibraltar from Spanish soil had been indefinitely postponed.

D. C. May Have to Help Maintain New Airport

By James D. Secrest

The District was warned yesterday that it may have to pay a share of the cost of operating the $16,000,000 Washington National Airport as the House and Senate adopted a conference report on the last deficiency bill expected this session.

Representative Taber (Republican), of New York, demanded that the District be saddled with a part of the maintenance cost of the airport, after calling attention to a $200,000 item for administration in the $228,132,013.35 supply bill.

"If your town or mine gets an airport we have to pay for the land, part of the construction cost, and for its maintenance," Taber said. "I serve notice now that the District ought to have an opportunity to pay part of the cost of maintaining the Washington National Airport."

Boundary Bill Pending

Representative Nichols (Democrat), of Oklahoma, called attention to the District-Virginia boundary bill pending before the House District Committee and stated that were it to pass without amendment the airport would be entirely within tre jurisdiction of Virginia.

He added that if his amendment were adopted the airport would be entirely within the District and that he agreed that the National Capital should contribute to its support.

Senate House conferees reached compromise agreements on the two major controversial provisions of the bill.

Would Restrict Contracts

They restored $40,000,000 for the construction and improvement of not to exceed 250 airports over the country for national defense purposes and restricted authority to negotiate construction contracts to urgent defense buildings.

The airport projects must be designated by the administrator of the Civil Aeronautics Authority and approved by a board composed of the Secretaries of War, Navy and Commerce.

The compromise was based on a letter from Jesse Jones, Secretary of Commerce, explaining that between 200 and 300 airports would have been developed under the original $30,000,000 House appropriation and $50,000,000 authorization as a start on a 4,000-airport program proposed by the CAA.

Bids to Be Advertised

House provisions permitting the negotiation of contracts were retained for a new wing on the Navy Building, five hangars at Washington National Airport, and a heating plant. They were eliminated for two $3,200,000 temporary Federal office buildings.

The latter two buildings, as well as the $9,850,000 General Accounting Office structure, will be advertised for bids.

The supplemental supply bill, as finally prepared for the White House, is $21,000,000 more than the original House measure and $40,000,000 above the Senate bill.

Representative Taber said that it brought total appropriations and authorizations by Congress for the year to $24,700,000,000—the largest expenditure voted since 1918 for any one year. Approximately $13,000,000,000 of this amount is being spent on national defense, he said.

RFC Receives $1,000,000,000

Appropriations totaled $20,107,000,000, he said, while authorizations for construction added $3,596,000,000. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation was given $500,000,000 for loans to industries and an equal amount for loans to Latin-American countries.

Chairman Woodrum, of the deficiency subcommittee, told the House that the Appropriations Committee had been in practically continual session since last Thanksgiving and had been burdened with more work than at any time during his ten years' association with it.

The Senate adopted the conference report without any discussion.

The Polish Embassy said yesterday Ignace Jan Paderewski, the aged and famous Polish pianist, had been released by Spanish authorities and allowed to continue his journey to the United States.

This word came from the Polish Legation in Madrid, in a message which gave no further details, the embassy said.

District Churches to Take Part In World Communion Sunday

150 in Capital Area Will Join in Token Of Christian Unity

Worshipers of more than 150 local and nearby Protestant churches tomorrow will "break the bread" and "lift the cup" at a symbolic "25,000-mile Communion table" as World-Wide Communion Sunday is celebrated.

Sponsored by the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America and their affiliated State and local bodies, such as the Washington Federation of Churches, the observance will emphasize the need of spiritual fellowship and Christian unity in a "distressed and confused world."

Important preparatory phase of the National Christian Mission, now being held in 22 metropolitan areas, and which comes here from February 2 to 9, the Communion plan does not contemplate union services, according to the council. Each church will call its own members together for Communion at a table — where symbolically there will be many creeds and tongues, including those of war-blighted lands.

Leader for the Defeated

The Federal Council, in its September issue, said, in part, regarding the Communion observance:

"How grateful we should be that the high and universal Sacrament of the Christian Church is a celebration of both suffering and victory! Only a church which has at its altars a place for anguish and tears could gather humanity into its fellowship today. Only a religion which leads through seeming frustration to victory can satisfy this world's needs."

National City Christian Church, whose pastor, Dr. Raphael Harwood Miller, general chairman of the local committee of the mission and national committeeman, will conduct Communion at 10:50 a. m., preaching on "To Love and Not Forget," expressing the "thought of our remembrance and our inheritance and of our gratitude to those who have given us our Nation and our fatih, as well."

Chevy Chase Baptist Church, like many other congregations, will welcome new members during its Communion observance, with the Rev. Edward O. Clarke, pastor, preaching on "Four Steps Forward." The chorus choir, directed by Howard Moore, will make its fall debut.

River Road Service

River Road United Presbyterian Church, led by the Rev. Virgil M. Cosby, will combine its third anniversary service with the Communion Sunday celebration, the cleric speaking at 11 a. m. on "A Memorable Occasion." First regular evening worship services will be launched at 8 o'clock.

The Universalist National Memorial Church, also joining in the Communion celebration, will hear Dr. Seth R. Brooks, pastor, preach at 11 a. m. on "Universalism and Little Men." The National Capital Choir, under Miss Jessie Masters, will sing, with H. Jerome Graham at the organ.

Dr. Gerhard E. Lenski will lead his Grace Lutheran worshipers in a Communion preparatory service at 10:45 a. m. and preach at 11 a. m. on "The Message of the Cross to a World at War." Senior and junior choirs will sing, the former, directed by Mrs. Carl Rasmussen, rendering Sebastian Matthew's Communion anthem, "I Am the Bread of Life."

For Ninth Street Christian Church, tomorrow will be a threefold service—Rally Day in the Bible School, the World-Wide Communion and the first Sunday of "Loyalty Month." Dr. Clifford H. Jope will preach.

Worshipers of Covenant-First Presbyterian Church will observe the Communion in a freshly renovated auditorium, with Dr. Albert J. McCartney, pastor, giving the sacramental address at 11 a. m., and special Communion music being rendered by the choir under Theodore Schaeffer's direction.

Mrs. Gates, at 78, Pioneers In Her 2d Methodist Society

Long a Mission Leader, She Also Becomes Charter Member of New Women's Service Group at First Church

By Robert Tate Allan

Seventy-eight-year-old Mrs. Jessie Gates, charter member of the Woman's Missionary Society of First Methodist Church in 1890, recently attained distinction of also becoming a charter member of the new Women's Society of Christian Service there.

REV. RAUM

Successor to the Woman's Auxiliary, which in 1936 merged the Ladies' Aid and Missionary societies, the new society, a plan of the new Methodist Church, elected Mrs. Gracie Powell as president; Miss Eunice Hartley, Mrs. Gates' niece, vice president; Mrs. Cecil Watts, secretary, and Mrs. Delano, treasurer. They will be installed on October 17.

Mrs. Powell will represent First Church at the conference charter meeting in Baltimore on October 11.

Lifelong member of the 112-year-old First Church, of which her parents were among the earliest members, Mrs. Gates and her family have long been especially active in woman's work there.

Her late sisters, Mrs. Harriet E. Risler and Mrs. Sarah F. M. Hartley, were once presidents of the Home Missionary Society of the old Methodist Protestant Church, of which First Church was a part before Methodist unification.

Her daughter, Mrs. Hattie Campbell; her granddaughter, Mrs. Lester E. Steele, and her niece, Miss Dora Hartley, are charter members of the new Society of Christian Service. Mrs. Gates lives with the Steeles at 321 Maryland avenue northeast.

Among Washington's oldest congregations, First Church was one of the first congregations which in 1828 withdrew from the then Methodist Episcopal Church, principally on the issue of lay rights.

MRS. GATES

An outgrowth of Trinity (then Methodist Episcopal) Church, Fifth street and Seward Square southeast, the congregation was formally organized on January 14, 1829, with services in its church at Fifth street and Virginia avenue southeast. The present property, at 516 Fourth street southeast, was bought in 1890 under the pastorate of Dr. J. W. Gray.

Dr. William Sexsmith, uncle of Dr. E. A. Sexsmith, pastor of Rhode Island Avenue Methodist Church here, was among former pastors of First Church, whose original minister was the Rev. James Hanson, according to yellowed Baltimore Conference records displayed by the Rev. A. F. T. Raum.

Mr. Raum, who came to First Church in 1934, following six years as pastor of Calvary (then Methodist Protestant) Church in Baltimore, explained that his congregation is now expending $2,500 for church and parsonage improvements, including painting, roofing and other items.

Among leaders of his church are William Watts, Men's Brotherhood president; his son, Harold Watts, Sunday school superintendent and Methodist denominational representative on the Southeast Interchurch Council; Miss Mildred Watts, the latter's daughter, Christian Endeavor Society president, and others.

Gordon Burroughs will give an address on the subject, "Spiritualism in a Chaotic World." Max Kobre, violinist, will be the soloist. A meeting of the board of trustees will be held at the close of the service.

The regular midweek services will be resumed on Wednesday evening of next week when the minister will give a short lecture followed by messages.

'First Draft—God' to Be St. Paul Sermon Topic

McCallum, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Twenty-third street near Washington Circle, tomorrow at 11 o'clock at services of Holy Eucharist. The other services will be Holy Communion at 7:30 and Evensong and Adoration at 8 p. m.

The service of Communion will be held at 8:30 a. m., and at the conclusion of the 11 and 8 o'clock services. The Rev. Ralph W. Loew, associate pastor, will give the meditation at the early service, using as his subject "A Song in the Night."

Text of Willkie's Defense Speech

'Ghost' Tanks, Guns and Planes Assailed In Philadelphia

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Oct. 4.—Following is the prepared text of a speech by Wendell Willkie, Republican Presidential candidate, in Shibe Park tonight:

I am very happy to be in Philadelphia. I have an exceedingly pleasant recollection of the treatment I received the last time I visited your city.

It was the spirit of Philadelphia that started this campaign off as a crusade. It is that spirit that the Republican Party will win through to victory next month.

Tonight I want to talk to you about national defense. There can be no better place than Philadelphia to discuss this question. It was from this city 164 years ago that the call went out to the Thirteen Colonies to take up arms in defense of their liberties. The American people will never be persuaded to take up arms in any other cause.

But I have another reason for wanting to talk about defense in Philadelphia. Yours is one of the greatest manufacturing cities in the world. For many years you have typified the industrial genius of America. And it is in that industrial genius that the present hope of this Nation lies. You men and women of Philadelphia know that if we are to make America strong, we must get to work.

Phrase "On Order"

And you are not likely to be confused by the difference between something that is on hand and something that is on order.

I have pointed out many times that production—and only production—can provide us with a base for economic prosperity.

I now say that only production—not orders—can defend us from aggressors.

Incidentally, I should like to know just what that phrase "on order" means.

Last May, the third-term candidate told us over the radio that we had 1,700 modern tanks and armored cars "on hand and on order." It so happens that at that time we had on hand 142 tanks and armored cars.

But I happen to know of a large manufacturing company in Michigan. It has orders for many hundreds of tanks. Those were included, I assume, among the ghost tanks "on order" that the third-term candidate spoke about. But this particular manufacturer has not yet built the building in which those ghost tanks are to be manufactured.

Prosperity Also on Order

I happen, also, to know of an aircraft company which has several million dollars worth of "orders." Presumably these airplanes are among the ghost airplanes on order, to whch the third-term candidate referred. But that company is still working on the architectural and engineering designs—not the actual walls, but the design—of the building in which the aircraft are to be manufactured.

So what we are really talking about is not tanks on order or airplanes on order—but factories on order.

For seven years we have also had prosperity on order.

The purpose of the Republican Party in this crusade is to have prosperity on hand.

Now it is easy for us, sitting here tonight, to laugh at this ridiculous phrase, "on hand and on order." It is easy for us to make fun of this blundering attempt to cover up the deficiencies in our national defense in a critical election year.

But I pray God, my fellow Americans, that our laughter does not die in our throats. I pray God that our descendants, turning the pages of their history books, may at least be able to smile at this attempted hoax.

Grim Task Ahead

Yet, as I survey the perils with which we are even now confronted, I confess that I do not anticipate much laughter. I do not think that our sons, or our grandsons, will find much cause for humor in the record of the past five years.

Certainly, the next time any official figures are announced concerning the progress of the defense program we shall be in a wary mood. We shall be looking for the catch.

For I see ahead of us a grim task: the task of arming our democracy so fully and so rapidly that the aggressors will not dare to strike.

For every moment we have lost in the past, and for every moment we are losing now, I see for our children and our grandchildren a harder task, a more dangerous world.

This is the challenge to our generation. For our own sake, but still more for theirs, we must arm America now.

In Cleveland last Wednesday I listed a number of things we still need to equip a modest army of 750,000 men. It will take at least 13 months to get some of these things. It will take two years or more to get all of them.

Facing Facts

For instance, we need 1,400 37-millimeter antiaircraft guns. To get them will take 13 months.

On August 1 we had on hand no 8-inch howitzers whatever. We need 48, and it will take months to get them.

We need many 16-inch coast-defense guns. It will take at least 2½ years to get them.

It takes a year to build a pursuit plane and a year to train its pilot. It takes two or three years to build a long-range bomber and about two years to train its crew. The pilot of a four-engined bomber must be trained for four years.

These are not political arguments.

These are facts—hard facts. We must face these facts before we can defend democracy in a dangerous world.

But now we must meet this further question: What chance is there of obtaining these vital necessities under the New Deal? What chance is there of obtaining them before it is too late? That is the question I want to lay before you tonight.

There is, I think, a false notion that our defense problem is a recent problem; that it came upon us suddenly.

The fact is that the New Deal has known for many years that we were faced with this problem. The third term candidate told Congress in January, 1936, that America must save itself from foreign quarrels and foreign attack through adequate defense.

Today is October 4, 1940—nearly five years later. All the democracies on the continent of Europe have collapsed. Britain fights with her back to the wall. Three ruthless aggressors have banded together in a pact aimed at the United States. Attack is closer than ever. America is still unsafe.

Our defense is still inadequate. Compared with the rest of the world, it is far less adequate than it was in 1936.

For nearly five years the New Deal has been aware of the growing need for defense. It has expressed that need on many occasions.

For example, in his message to Congress in January, 1938, the third-term candidate said, "as commander in chief of the Army and Navy . . . it is my Constitutional duty to report to the Congress that our national defense is, in the light of the increasing armaments of other nations, inadequate for purposes of national security and requires increase for that reason."

The Reason Sought

Yet here we are in 1940, and we find that it will take one, two and even three years to build a modest defense system.

What is the reason for this?

The New Deal has not lacked information. Through the State Department and the Army and Navy its total knowledge regarding foreign powers and military developments has been as good as any in the world.

The New Deal has not lacked money. In those five years it has spent a total of $43,000,000,000.

What, then, has it lacked? It has lacked the ability to get things done.

It has lacked a fundamental understanding of the forces of production.

It has lacked a fundamental regard for the forces that make democracy strong.

Think about this. Turn it over in your minds. It is the very heart of the issue of this campaign.

Without increased production we cannot defend ourselves.

I want to place before you the example of France.

France was defeated in 34 days. But the Battle of France had been lost before it began. It had been lost in the wasted years when France was floundering under the Blum government—her own New Deal.

Downward Trend

For instance, French production of steel, which had slowly increased from 1932 to 1937, declined again in 1938—just when France should have been producing more steel than ever before in her life.

At the close of the World War, in 1918, France was producing about 1,000 airplanes a month. In 1936 she produced 150 a month. At that point the Blum government decided to nationalize the aircraft factories. They were almost all taken over by the government—and production dropped to 50 a month.

At the time of the Battle of France, the best that the French aircraft industry could produce was 300 airplanes a month.

We, too, in America increased our general production level from 1932 to 1937—though our rate of increase was slower than that of most other countries. But we, too, turned downward in 1938.

Creative Forces Blocked

We turned downward two years after the present third-term candidate had observed the necessity for an "adequate defense." We turned downward because the New Deal was absorbed in its own political objectives: The attack against business and the attack against the Supreme Court.

While total industrial production was declining in these critical years, our airplane industry made some progress. But it was not enough for adequate defense.

At the close of the World War, the United States, like France, was producing about 1,000 airplanes a month. In 1937, one year after the Administration had recognized the need for an "adequate defense," we produced less than 1,000 military planes during the entire year.

Even in 1939, three years after the New Deal announced the need for a defense program, we produced only 3,000 military planes.

And this year, with all the desperate need of Britain and ourselves, we shall be lucky to produce 7,000 military planes—little more than half the rate of 20 years ago.

Think what a difference it would have made to the democracies of the world if the American aircraft production of 1940 had been attained in 1939. Seven thousand airplanes from America in 1939 would have given the democracies another lease on life. Seven thousand airplanes in 1938 would have meant 10,000 or 15,000 today. It would have changed the course of history.

The reason for our failure was that the New Deal theorists and the New Deal politicians blocked the creative forces of our people.

They could have provided new jobs for thousands of young men by building American aircraft production up to defense requirements. Instead, they kept those thousands idle on the relief rolls. Relief was politically more attractive than defense.

Factories Don't Exist

You know and I know that the system of free enterprise can outstrip any dictator on earth. The slave labor of modern Europe cannot compete with free men, well fed, well housed and working reasonable hours.

I have earned my bread both as a worker and as a manager. I know what free men can do. Given a chance to go to work, American labor and American industry can outstrip the world.

Don't be fooled by all the money that the New Deal now is talking about. Don't be fooled by all the power that it has been granted. Money and power have been the New Deal remedies from the beginning. And neither money nor power has ever solved any fundamental problem in American life.

You can't buy tanks if the factories don't exist.

And politicians, however powerful, don't build factories.

So long as money and political power remain its only remedies, this Administration will be incompetent to achieve defense. Its record with the present National Defense Advisory Council is an example. The able men on that council cannot get things done because the third-term candidate has kept all the power in his own hands.

Job in Every Home

The results of incompetence are written large upon the history of the last few years. Incompetence invites bold action on the part of other powers. The longer the United States remains incompetent to defend itself, the closer are we drawn toward war.

We must stop that drift toward war. We must stop that incompetence.

Fellow Americans, I want to lead the fight for peace.

I know how to lead that fight: I will lead this Nation back to work.

The first step toward peace is to put a job in every home.

The second step toward peace is to mobilize American industry for the production of armaments. This would be the greatest industrial undertaking in the history of the world.

I dare to imagine such an undertaking because I have faith in the American people.

I also have faith in many able men, both in labor and industry whom I know personally, and whom I would trust with temporary authority.

Bitter Dreams

Our entire experience in American industry demonstrates a project of that size cannot even be imagined if it has to pass over the desk of one man.

And the New Deal has not imagined it. The New Deal is afraid of it. The spokesmen of the New Deal have been afraid to give the public any idea of its total cost.

Fellow Americans, so long as we are haunted by fear we cannot hope to preserve our precious liberties.

We must, rather, awake from the bitter dreams, from the discouragement and despair, the poverty, the unemployment, and the fear.

We must awake. We must awake. It is not true that our days are finished or that our industries are dead. These are bad dreams that we have had. But now I am calling to you. I am telling you to awake. I am pleading with you to brush aside what was never true—to join me in building America, in rebuilding America, in building a new America, so strong, so full of hope, that we can keep the peace that we want, the democracy that we want, and the liberties that we want. That is my plan for America.

JESUS was heavy of heart when he partook of that Last Supper with His beloved Twelve. A few hours ahead lay the betrayal by one He had considered a friend, the taunts of the throng inspired by those who feared His influence, the tears of the humble people who saw His final anguish on the Cross. But even on that dark day Our Lord remained calm. He knew that whatever the mob would do with His body, it could never kill Him.

"The Last Supper," considered by many the greatest of the paintings of the famous Italian genius, Leonardo Da Vinci, was done on the walls of a convent dining room in Milan, Italy. The original is badly faded; but many faithful copies of this masterpiece were made by students of Da Vinci. During Napoleon's invasion of Italy the hall containing this painting was used as a military camp, and it is said that the soldiers amused themselves by throwing bricks at the figures.

Forty-Ninth State?

For residents of Hawaii the principal issue in the November election will not be, as elsewhere, the third term or the New Deal, but the admission of the islands into the Union as a sovereign State.

If the citizens of Hawaii should express by a substantial majority their desire for Statehood, Congress will have an important issue dumped into its lap. For Hawaii occupies a position somewhat different from that of the Philippines and Puerto Rico, which came to us as a result of the peace treaty with Spain, or that of Alaska and the Virgin Islands, which were acquired by purchase mainly for strategic reasons. Hawaii was annexed to the United States at the request of its own inhabitants, following the revolution which overthrew the native dynasty.

This request was largely inspired by the descendants of the American missionaries who played such a prominent role in the nineteenth century history of the islands. Thus if Hawaii, having now attained many of the requisites of Statehood, should demand that its present territorial status be exchanged for a place in the Union as the forty-ninth State, there would seem to be little logical or historical ground for refusal.

The difficulty, of course, arises from the admixture of races in the islands, which is now far more complex than it was in 1900. Considerably more than half the present population is of Oriental origin and more than a third of it of Japanese origin. Citizens of American or North European ancestry are decidedly a minority, although still the most influential minority. Meanwhile the aboriginal Polynesian stock is, as is well known, rapidly diminishing, partly because of its high death rate but principally through intermarriage with persons of Asiatic, European or Malaysian origin.

Of all these groups, it is only the Japanese who are now the cause of concern, since the Chinese, Korean and Filipino minorities are said to have been pretty thoroughly assimilated and Americanized. A considerable portion of the Hawaiian-born Japanese, on the other hand, show a not unnatural disposition to cling to their hereditary customs and language, and to retain a close cultural relationship with Japan. Some of them are suspected, whether justly or unjustly, of employing their American citizenship to further Japanese purposes and interests.

Overshadowing every other consideration at this time is the fact that control of the Hawaiian Islands is strategically indispensable to the defense of the United States. So the question of Statehood cannot be decided on grounds of precedent or constitutional theory. At present all other factors must be subordinated to the place of Hawaii in our defense system.

Reasonable Compromise

Senate and House conferees on the first supplemental civil functions appropriations bill have reached a reasonable compromise on a ticklish problem. The House, in order to expedite the construction of certain buildings in Washington necessitated by national defense activities, had voted to permit the negotiation of contracts without advertising for bids.

The Senate, after some discussion of the dangers of abolishing competitive bidding at a time when billions of dollars are being spent rather hastily, struck out the provisos allowing negotiation of contracts.

The compromise was based on a division of the projects as between those urgently needed to expedite the defense program and those of lesser importance which afford less cause for haste. Negotiation of contracts was authorized for an addition to the Navy Building, a heating plant to serve Federal buildings now under construction, and hangars at the Washington National Airport. Two temporary Government office buildings will be advertised for bids.

Negotiation of some contracts as a means of expediting national defense has become a necessity. But there is no valid reason for extending this practice to all Government contracts that are only indirectly related to national defense. To abandon the principle of competitive bidding in the routine expenditure of large sums of public money would be inexcusable.

As Senator George warned his colleagues, negotiated contracts invite bureaucratic rule, discriminations between States or sections and favoritism between private concerns. Congress intended to prohibit those abuses by enactment of the law requiring advertising for bids, and that policy should be applied wherever practicable.

A Defense Labor Policy

The National Defense Commission recently announced that Army and Navy contracts would be placed only with firms complying with the provisions of the Federal labor laws. This statement of policy applies only to negotiated contracts. Contracts awarded competitively go to the lowest bidder in accordance with the law.

With the object of giving effect to its labor policy, the commission recently asked Attorney General Jackson to define the status of a firm refusing to comply with an order of the Labor Board. In an informal opinion just made public, Mr. Jackson states that if the board holds an employer to have violated the Labor Relations Act, its findings are "binding and conclusive" unless and until reversed by the courts.

In other words, the board's orders have the force of law and a company refusing to obey them is, therefore, technically a lawbreaker, even if the courts should subsequently decide otherwise.

No doubt the opinion is legally sound, but it has very alarming implications if accepted as the basis of a labor policy in the defense industries. Various large companies, whose cooperation is absolutely essential to the effective prosecution of the defense program, have refused to obey NLRB decrees and appealed to the courts for relief. Under the Jackson ruling they are technically lawbreakers, and as such disqualified for award of negotiated contracts, unless the Defense Commission should modify its announced labor policy.

There is no law compelling the commission to boycott concerns which insist on appealing NLRB rulings. The commission has, however, quite properly required compliance with existing labor laws by concerns engaged on defense work. To do otherwise would amount to official condonation of lawbreaking. But this general principle has become unworkable as a result of the ruling of the Attorney General. It is plainly necessary to restate the Government's labor policies to prevent the defense program from bogging down disastrously.

As The Post stated a few days ago, the situation is too grave to permit suspension of operations by defense industries because of labor disputes. The situation is also too grave to permit adoption of labor policies that would shut out from participation in the defense program companies appealing from orders of the Labor Board.

This does not mean that the Government ought to tolerate deliberate violations of protective labor laws. On the contrary, new and improved machinery should be established to deal promptly with armament manufacturers engaged in unfair and illegal labor practices or seeking to make the existing emergency an excuse for exploiting labor. It is clearly the duty of the Government to see that labor laws are obeyed.

But law-enforcement efforts must be wisely carried out. We cannot permit our national security to be imperiled by boycotting as lawbreakers every concern that appeals from an order of the discredited National Labor Relations Board.

O Tomatoes, O Mores!

You will remember, perhaps, that when we last reported upon the general state of culture and civilization, the outlook was pretty black. Since then, however, things have been looking up a bit. Here and there the better natures of people are reasserting themselves over the primordial instincts, and the long dormant virtues of sportsmanship and magnanimity are beginning to crop out in strange places.

For example, the municipality of Pontiac, Mich., has formally apologized to Mr. Willkie for the eggs that were thrown at him during his visit there the other day. The Acting Mayor of Cleveland has informed Mr. Del Baker of that city's profound regret for the cantaloupes and cauliflower which the populace, in a moment of emotionalism, heaved at the Detroit Tigers. And in Indo-China, Japanese soldiers suddenly begged the pardon of the American Consul whose premises they had raided.

But the high-water mark of Christian gallantry to date has been achieved in, of all things, New York politics. Representative Bruce Barton, now a candidate for the Senate, assured his Democratic opponent that he intends to conduct his campaign on the highest intellectual plane and with the utmost decorum.

Senator Mead did not, to be sure, quite rise to that exalted level of magnanimity prescribed by Emerson. It cannot be said of him that he

> " . . . from speech refrained
> Nobility, more nobly to repay . . . "

Nevertheless, the Senator did assure Mr. Barton that "the kind of campaign you propose will be the type of campaign I will conduct."

These, certainly, are encouraging symptoms. Best of all, this spirit is highly infectious; it might even spread across the water. One of these days King Christian of Denmark, for example, may send his apologies to Hitler for all the Danish cheese, butter and poultry that have been thrown to the German people. And we are virtually certain that, if Sir Nevile Henderson should ever be so unfortunate as to get in the way of a bomb, Marshal Goering would keep his promise about sending a wreath for the funeral.

Pan-American Defense

Hemispheric defense has come to be accepted by a large majority of the American people as a fixed policy. Likewise our Latin-American neighbors have indorsed that general principle. As a group, the nations of the two Americas have recognized that a threat of aggression against one of them is a threat against the entire New World.

The importance of this solidarity in defense of the Western Hemisphere has been so frequently emphasized that it has become commonplace. Yet every citizen of the American republics ought to remember that the detailed arrangements for their protection against aggression from Europe or Asia have not yet been effected. The policy of mutual aid in resisting attack has been accepted in principle. It has not yet been implemented.

The world has recently experienced some frightful demonstrations of the fact that mere defense policies and agreements are no guarantee against invasion of countries and subjugation of their peoples. Power in the air, on land and on the sea is essential to stop the ruthless forces that have destroyed the peace of the world. The despair and suffering now so characteristic of Europe afford ample evidence of the fact that good intentions and statements of policy are no barrier in the way of dictators on the march.

It would be extremely dangerous to assume, therefore, that hemispheric defense is an accomplished fact. The objective of coordinating the military and naval strength of the American republics in a common defense effort is yet to be achieved. One long step forward was taken when the United States acquired a protecting belt of naval and air base sites from Great Britain, and made them available for use by any American nation in defense of this hemisphere.

Scarcely less important are the joint defense efforts of the United States and Canada. In actually working out specific defense problems these two North American countries have made much greater progress than have the United States and Latin America. Yet progress in the latter field is undoubtedly being made.

The current tour of high ranking officers of various South American armies to inspect this country's military establishments is indicative of the valuable preliminary work that is being done. No doubt this visit will afford opportunities for many discussions of mutual defense problems.

In any event, the question of establishing bases in Latin-American countries, from which strong military or naval operations could be directed, must be faced. South and Central America cannot be defended without such facilities. Nor could the United States fulfill its pledge to the other American republics without arrangements for joint use of bases far beyond our own borders.

Reports frequently indicate that negotiations for a closer integration of defense forces in this hemisphere are going forward. Those discussions must be regarded as a truly vital part of the preparedness programs of this and other American countries. Solidarity resolutions will mean little unless they are backed up by ships and airplanes based near the areas vulnerable to attack.

"Women in increasing numbers are taking up law," reports a magazine writer. Even so, they'll never be able to take up as much of it as they have laid down.

It is a source of wonder to us that by now the world isn't knee-deep in pencils that disappear from newspaper offices.

'Hope Chests'

From the Des Moines Register.

The New York Daily News sent its "Inquiring Fotographer" to a corner on upper Broadway and asked the girls, as they came along, whether they clung to the old custom of having hope chests.

Half of the clerks, models, and dressmakers questioned were indignant at the suggestion that it was old-fashioned. Of course they had hope chests, with the usual linens, lingerie, and "little white things" in them, and they had hopes, too.

Most of the others believed in the custom, but just hadn't got around to doing anything about it. When they had hopes, they'd start!

Only one sniffed at the idea.

"Suppose I had a full hope chest containing the necessary baby apparel," she asked. "Today it would be old-fashioned, definitely, because we have modern diaper and other services."

But she was the exception that proved the rule. She had her hopes, too—but they ran to money instead of goods.

Reply To Mr. Lindley

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

In Ernest Lindley's column of October 2, he writes, in discussing our latest official jab at Japan:

"It is whether, looking ahead, we want to see a vast military and naval power arise on our western flank—especially when there may be another empire, perhaps even more powerful and aggressive, on our eastern frontier."

The thought is that we, as a Nation, must knock the neighbor boy on the head now for fear he may grow up to be a "toughie;" that it is proper for us to grow strong and expand, but nobody in Asia should. Again, it is said that "especially" when there "may" be another empire on our eastern flank. When in our history has there not been an "even more powerful and aggressive" empire on our East?

We have always had a more powerful and aggressive empire on our East, from which we were partially liberated by our revolution, but, which is now bleeding us more by a million fold than it did when we revolted. It is assumed in the column that such does not even exist.

As to the subject of the column, namely, our official trade thrust at Japan, the truth of the matter is that for over 30 years the Japanese have engaged in trade to our mutual benefit, taking over half of our cotton export, and during that period with true Oriental patience have swallowed their native pride to endure the most persistent and unwarranted official insults, diplomatic meddling and discriminatory treatment ever taken by one sovereign state from another.

The propriety of stopping scrap iron export is not material, but if we shut off one friendly nation, we should shut them all off, if we need the scrap for "defense."

Better Musical Programs

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

It has been reported, with apparent reliability, that in the munitions factories of Britain, the music of Beethoven and Chopin is now played, and that since the inauguration of this practice, the volume of work has been stepped up 6 to 12 per cent.

This further increase in production of British factories, when Britons have been working almost beyond endurance for months, is of great importance in Britain's valiant struggle of defense, but the salutary effect upon the mental and physical well-being of these harassed people is inestimable.

The importance of good music, and the limitless opportunity for bestowing its benefits, are so largely ignored in broadcasting that it is nothing short of deplorable. A breakfast-time program of inspirational music before workers leave their homes for the day would uplift and put a song in our hearts.

Thanks to one local station, a musical prelude is broadcast from 6 to 7. But for one reason or another many people are unable to turn on their radios that early.

Is there any reason why the broadcasting stations in the National Capital cannot cooperate, so that at least one of them would be broadcasting something good at any hour that anyone had the opportunity to listen?

Incidentally, this might, in a degree, voluntarily promote a better work production in return for Uncle Sam's enormous investment in salaries in the Capital every year, and be a contribution toward our defense from the terrible emergency which British workers are forced to meet.

SEC And Corporate Holdings

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Two recent issues of The Post refer to a secret investigation made by the Securities and Exchange Commission to ascertain the extent to which any group or persons hold or control the stock of corporations in the United States. It is stated that the Rockefeller family controls about a billion and a quarter in round figures of the corporate stock of 200 corporations, out of an aggregate total stock of about 33 billions of dollars.

That such a secret investigation by an agency of the Government should be made and the facts incidentally disclosed in the last days of the campaign for a third term for the New Deal President is not surprising.

The favorite, as well as the oldest, campaign material for socialism and communism has been to point out that some have more property than others. It carries to the end of the campaign the policy of this Administration to make class distinctions among the citizens of the United States. Pointing to the difference in such ownership by individuals is rated by communists as the best method of breaking down the private ownership of property.

It is common knowledge that John D. Rockefeller began life as a poor boy and worked at his first job for less than $10 a month. He believed in the American way of life. He had ambition. He was industrious. The hope of reward for individual effort inspired him. He had the courage to try what nobody else had tried in all the centuries of time. He took a commodity that had been dormant through all the ages and made it useful to mankind. Petroleum and its products are today universal necessities in peace time and in war, in all parts of the world.

Rockefeller created billions of new wealth that had never appeared in any form before. He made new and profitable investment for billions of capital. He made new and profitable employment for millions of men and women. He added much to the American way of life and to the comforts and happiness of mankind.

Out of the billions of new wealth he created, he retained only a small part for himself and his family. Out of the part that was retained, he and his family have done much for mankind. Hundreds of millions of dollars have been spent in making discoveries that have added to the health and happiness of the poor and needy in every part of the earth.

The philanthropy of the Rockefellers has lessened disease and contributed to normal health by providing prevention and cure for preventable and curable diseases. The standard of health has been raised and the span of life has been increased through the discoveries made by scientific research under the direction and at the expense of the Rockefellers.

The Securities and Exchange Commission should be making secret investigations in behalf of the citizens of the United States to carry out the beneficial purpose for which it was created. It should not waste its time and public money in making communistic propaganda for communism in the United States.

On Prayers

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

A few months ago many good people in England believed, and very many more hoped, that prayer would influence the course of the war in favor of the Allies. When Belgium, Holland and France were about to tumble, such beliefs and hopes must have been put to a severe test.

When things first went wrong in France, the French had a ceremonial national service in Notre Dame in Paris; but the situation steadily grew worse. A week later there was a day of national prayer in England, which was followed by the defection of the King of Belgium and the separation of the northern Allied armies from the rest.

Several weeks after, as the plight of France became more desperate, the Archbishop of Canterbury decreed a Sunday of prayer for France. Before that week was out the government of France had capitulated to Hitler.

Don't the Christians know that "the Lord is a man of war; the Lord is his name"? (Ex. XV, 3.)

A Freethinker.

Washington, Oct. 2.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

I am glad that you did print the letter in The Post of September 30, from "Episcopalian," for the same idea has been worrying me; and when I have dared to mention this to friends, I have been accused of being an heretic.

I can not conceive of a God who would bless any nation in preference to another. In fact, ever since I participated in the first World War, I have never yet been able to understand why the churches could bless battle flags, send forth soldiers to combat with the blessings of God, etc., and then repeat the Lorld's prayer, "Forgive us our tresspasses as we forgive those who tresspass against us."

Christianity should be based upon the teachings of the Christ who came to bring "Peace on earth, and good will toward all men" and not one who would intercede for a prayer which demanded victory for one nation over another in a conflict where the very forces of Heil were let loose in a mad desire for personal victory and conquest.

A Bewildering Age

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

One reads in the papers that there is a scarcity of skilled mechanics for work on the defense program. The very next day, the same papers quote labor leaders as saying we are training too many skilled workers, for after the defense program is over, there will be no more work for them.

One also reads in the papers and hears from politicians that we should hurry our defenses, yet workers in the key industries and in the Government Navy Yard are allowed to work only so many hours, even they though they may be willing to put in more time.

The Government established a minimum price for soft coal, thereby causing the consumer to pay more for coal than heretofore. Yet on September 30 the Government brings suit against the major oil companies for charging too much for oil, which is in direct competition with coal as fuel. Raising the price of one fuel and trying to reduce the price of another fuel just doesn't seem to make sense.

These seeming discrepancies have me puzzled. Confused.

"Longies"

WHEN PSYCHOLOGISTS, psychiatrists, alienists and other Grade A minds ponder the allegedly screw-loose and non-artistic qualities of my generation, I sometimes marvel that in their learned summaries of cause and effect they completely ignore the degrading influence which long, woolen underwear played in the formation of our characters and the emotional wear and tear to which we were subjected as children in our annual bouts to evade this most horrible of all curses.

It is now some 16 or 17 years since I last hoisted myself out of a suit of "longies," but something of the horror of those early days has carried over into the present, and I find glorious fall, with its bright colors, its smoke and haze and its hound dogs running in the hollows, merely a season during which I'm subject to five-alarm nightmares featuring a pair of long underwear hanging dejectedly and heartbreakingly prophetic on the backyard clothesline.

There was a time when I wondered who it was that first got the idea for these esthetic outrages, but the other day I saw a picture of a man who can take a bolt of cloth, a few pins and some odds and ends, and turn out an evening gown in less time than you can say "Gosh!" and so now I know who designed long underwear.

THE TIME to don these offensive garments usually came when fall classes were being organized at the Y. M. C. A., and I remember some of us would slip into the locker room and get into our gym togs before the rest of the class showed up, but there was always that inevitable moment when we were chased out of the pool, stark naked and dripping wet, to get into our clothes, and then our secret burdens became public property. We'd give ourselves a brisk rubdown with old sweatshirts, a piece of the carpet or most anything that wasn't nailed down (in order to have towels we had to carry them from home and only sissies carried towels), and then we'd sit around talking big and some guy would say he guessed he'd get dressed. Since we couldn't very well prolong the agony much longer, we'd all turn to and start untangling our long underwear so as to make sure we didn't put our feet into the places where our arms were supposed to go.

These "longies" had a positive talent for getting all balled up, and frequently, after spending seven minutes getting them straightened out, you'd cautiously slip one leg into place and before you knew it you were almost hog-tied. I had no desire to die young and in order to stave off strangulation, I usually found it advisable to place the underwear out flat on a bench and then get off and take a running jump before it curled up on me.

Some of our gang had older brothers, and for them there was the added indignity of having to wear hand-me-down "longies" which could be wrapped twice around the body and looked something like a man's overcoat on a wet dog. A mild windstorm in that locker room could have produced incredible human wreckage and, just possibly, taught our parents the error of their ways.

One of our gang usually showed up in his father's castoff "longies," and how he managed to get into and out of that outfit without a road map constituted one of childhood's more fascinating mysteries. It was mainly an assembly of holes held together with safety pins and had he made one false move he surely must have bled to death from pinpricks.

Reprieve for me finally came in the shape of an older sister who was not required to wear longies and whose inability to contract pneumonia furnished me with an argument which I kicked around for five or six years before wearing down my mother's resistance.

TIME, AS THEY SAY, marches on, and I am happy to report that long underwear appears to be in a steep decline. I cannot say this for a certainty, because I have no manufacturer's statistics at hand and it would be something less than nice to go around from door to door asking the man of the house what model underwear he goes in for. However, many of my friends who have children refuse to make them wear "longies" and I take this as a sign of the inexorable march of civilization.

Not to be too optimistic, it should be recorded that the big mail order catalogues still feature striking displays of positively handsome men decked out in alluring models of long underwear and engaged in animated conversation about the stock market, their blooded horses or something of the sort. However, I've never yet seen one of these figure in a catalogue that I didn't feel like the farm boy looking at his first giraffe.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Sleepwalking In Washington

THE ATTORNEY GENERAL has made an informal ruling that companies which have been held by the National Labor Relations Board to have violated the Wagner Act may receive no further contracts under the National Defense Program. In order to qualify themselves for contracts these companies must comply with the rulings of the Board even though the courts have not yet passed finally on the case. The ruling, it is said, will not be applied retroactively so that existing contracts will not be affected. But, apparently, companies which already have contracts may not receive other contract unless they first conform to the rulings of the Board.

It may be that under the law the Attorney General had to make this ruling. That is a question for the lawyers. But whether this is the law or whether this is the New Deal's interpretation of the law, the fact remains that the state of mind revealed in his situation is enough to bring consternation to everyone who is seriously concerned about national defense.

FOR WE FIND ourselves with a law, or with an interpretation of the law, based on the theory that national defense contracts are favors granted by the Government to industry, and that these favors may be withheld as a penalty to insure compliance with this particular law. This is dangerous nonsense. This amounts to saying that if the Government cannot enforce its laws against a company, the Government shall punish the Nation by depriving it of the warships, planes, tanks, guns that the company is capable of producing. To roast pigs we must burn down a barn; to strengthen the Wagner Act we must weaken the national defense. If this principle were carried to its logical conclusion, we would announce that no man who violates the traffic laws may be drafted into the Army.

Here is the Administration administering two laws: the Wagner Act and the various national defense acts. When it is thinking of the Wagner Act, it thinks of a defense contract as a profitable privilege which may be denied to a manufacturer in order to enforce the Wagner Act. But when it is thinking of the national defense acts, it thinks of a defense contract as a duty which the manufacturer must perform under penalty of having invoked against him the power to commandeer. The right hand does not know what the left hand is doing; the left hand proposes to refuse contracts under the Wagner Act and the right hand to impose contracts under the commandeering provisions of the national defense acts.

THE CONTRADICTION is ominous because it reveals how little the Administration has as yet understood the realities of National Defense. The notion that the Nation can afford to let plants stand idle in order to punish manufacturers for the alleged violation of a law is a hangover from the days when there were more contractors clamoring for work than there was work to be done. But surely today the situation is reversed. Today there are not enough plants able to produce the munitions of war that are needed, and the obvious and imperative rule should and must be that every plant capable of producing shall be put to work at top speed and at its maximum capacity.

If a firm is accused of violating laws, or the law about parking automobiles, the case should be tried and enforced on its merits and with appropriate penalties. But to attempt to enforce such laws by suspending the production of weapons for the national defense is too idiotic for words.

THE FACT OF the matter is that, far from our being in a position to pick and choose which manufacturers we are willing to favor with contracts, we are under the impelling necessity of putting under contracts, every manufacturer who can now, or could by changing his installation, produce for the national defense. Far from our having plants which we can afford to ostracize, we are under the impelling necessity not only of utilizing all our plants but of enlarging them and of building new ones.

For, though the British have resisted successfully this summer, we must not allow ourselves to forget that the Axis controls the manufacturing capacity of the whole continent, and that the British capacity is bound to be reduced by the air raids and the submarine blockade. If Britain, on the one side of us; if China, the Netherland Indies and Australia, on the other side of us, are we to be armed for a victorious resistance into 1941 and 1942, the full industrial potentiality of this country must be brought into production. They can win the war only if the United States becomes the workshop and arsenal of the free nations. If the war is to be held at a distance from this hemisphere, if the war is to be decided in Europe and in Asia, rather than in the Americas, we must do what we are quite able to do if we mean to try: we must outbuild Germany, Italy and Japan. All the more must we do this if the worst happens in Britain and in China. For then we shall stand alone, and unless our full capacity to arm ourselves is usable, we shall be disastrously weak.

YET THE TRUTH is that our present program is far below our capacity and far less than what we shall need. The politicians of both parties still treat armaments as a sideshow to business, as usual. It is time that the President and Mr. Willkie concentrated their attention upon making the country realize that the National Defense is our main business. Neither the President nor Mr. Willkie has candidly told the people what the National Defense requires. Both of them talk about defense. But as yet neither of them has told businessmen and employes, consumers and taxpayers what has to be done to transform commercial industry if the defense program is not to be another case, and this time the final tragic case, of too late and too little.

Bygone Elections

By Paul N. Furman

Winner Becomes Loser

QUITE WITHOUT parallel was the Presidential election of 1824. General Andrew Jackson, of Tennessee, was high man in the popular vote, high man in the Electoral College and yet John Quincy Adams, of Massachusetts, was chosen President by the House of Representatives.

JOHN QUINCY ADAMS

This election marked the passing of nominations by caucuses of the members of Congress.

CONSEQUENTLY, the campaign became a free-for-all. The candidates were John Quincy Adams, Secretary of State; John C. Calhoun, of South Carolina, Secretary of War; Henry Clay, of Kentucky, who had been Speaker of the House for 10 years but was then in private life; William H. Crawford, of Georgia, Secretary of the Treasury, and General Jackson, then a Senator.

Calhoun withdrew, as a candidate for President, and there was a concentration on him for Vice President by the anti-caucus forces.

THE RESULT of the popular vote in the 18 States was: Jackson, 152,901; Adams, 114,023; Crawford, 46,979, and Clay, 47,217. The vote in the Electoral College was: Jackson, 99; Adams, 84; Crawford, 47, and Clay, 37. Thus, as no one had a majority, for the second time the election of a President was thrown into the House of Representatives. Calhoun was chosen Vice President with 182 of the 261 votes.

On the first ballot in the House, Adams was declared elected, as he received the votes of 13 States; Jackson, 7; Crawford, 4. Kentucky, Missouri and Ohio, which had supported Clay, voted for Adams, and Clay became his Secretary of State.

New Life For A Leper

"TELL THEM I'M DEAD," said Ned Langford. He had just learned that the queer, numb spot on his arm meant leprosy. . . . "Who Walk Alone" (Holt, $2.75) is the title Perry Burgess gives his book about an American leper. But Ned Langford did not walk alone. He built a career for himself in a leper colony.

Perry Burgess has for 15 years been a national director of the Leonard Wood Memorial (American Leprosy Foundation), and for ten years its president. He is, I take it from his sketch in "Who's Who," a professional money raiser for "good causes," and I suppose "Who Walk Alone" is what the Germans call a Tendenzroman, a crusading novel. Most such books are unutterably bad. "Who Walk Alone," if it be regarded as a novel, is not so good, either. Read it as biography and it still leaves something to be desired. Yet, simply to read it is an experience. It has the ring of truth and the fire of hope, and it is the story of a Missouri leper who died.

"Leper" is a terrifying word, and has been since Biblical days. Within recent decades, faintly and to the few who knew, it has sometimes become a word of hope. Yet there are supposed to be 3,000,000 lepers in the world today, and only 3 per cent of them are under medical treatment. For the rest, life is living death—or, for the ignorant and careless among them, a living menace to others. And they are all human beings. Most of the lepers are in tropical or subtropical Asia.

"Ned Langford" is not a real name, but "Who Walk Alone" is a true story. Perry Burgess says he knew the man, out at Culion, in the Philippines. "Ned" volunteered for service in the Spanish-American War and was sent to the Philippines 40 years ago. He fought all over the islands; he was billeted in native homes. And nine years later, when he had built up a good business in Missouri, the doctor asked him about some spots on his arm.

The doctor did not know what they were; few doctors in the United States have ever seen a case of leprosy. It was after Ned had been badly burned, saving his horse from a fire, that attention was first called to the numb, white patches, where he felt no pain. Had he ever been hurt in a football game? Had he fallen from a horse? No? Well, never mind. But Ned began thinking; and among other thoughts that came to him was the memory of a letter from Bob Sellers, who had stayed in the Philippines. Bob had said that Sancho, in whose house they had stayed in the mountains of Luzon, had leprosy. Ned thought, and went to see a specialist in St. Louis. The specialist was an old Army man, and he knew.

NED WAS engaged, but he never saw Jane again. He saw his brother, and he told him what he had decided. He would, officially, die. Under another name, he would enter a leper colony. He went to New York and sent his car rolling off the end of a pier into the water, the door beside the driver's seat wide open. Jane would never wonder if she had been infected by a leper; Ned's mother would never know. . . . And Ned, after a year of treatment in isolation in New York, sailed for the Philippines on an Army transport. The first leper colony in the world was, and is, on the Philippine Island of Culion. There, for the first time in more than a year, Ned shook hands with a fellow human being.

Culion is a world in itself. It has its own money; its policemen and shopkeepers are themselves lepers. But when Ned Langford went there it was still a world of lazy beauty and of death, and of little hope. Ned began in his garden. He found a blue orchid new to science in the mountains—most lepers are still vigorous physical specimens—and he cleared a garden worthy of being its home. He hired other men to help. On the ship, island-bound, he had made friends with a 10-year-old Filipino boy, Tomas Aguilar; Tomas became his house boy and his friend. Soon he organized a fishermen's co-operative. Later he built and operated a power plant, of which Tomas is today manager.

It served the colony and made $20,000 for Ned before he left Culion to die. Before he left, science had added to the lepers' hope; some of the patients were returning to the world outside, the disease at least "arrested" and incommunicable. For Ned there was no such hope; he had not recognized the spots in time.

The story of that growth of hope seen through an American's eyes, as Perry Burgess tells it, is exciting. I do not know whether the episode with Carita is, as he tells it, true, or added to make a better story; I wish it had been omitted. But the drama of Culion is one of the great dramas of our day, and one in which the Americans and the Filipinos who have played a part in it have a right to a growing pride. . . . And the photographs of Culion, in which the leper colony appears as an island paradise, add much to the effect of the book.

Registration Day

Officials Urge Staggered Hours

To prevent disorganization of local and Federal business October 16, selective service officials yesterday proposed that merchants and Government branches stagger hours allotted employes to register.

In offering the plan, officers pointed out that should all employes of stores and financial firms between 21 and 36 years of age leave their posts to register at approximately the same time, business would be brought to a standstill.

Registration day, it was announced, will be a school holiday throughout the District. Originally, Administration and selective service heads had planned on a Presidential proclamation of a national holiday for the selective service men's send-off.

Schools to Be Used

This proposal was discarded and President Roosevelt asked merely that employers allow their employes sufficient time to register. The calling of holidays was left up to the States and the District.

The school holiday was necessitated here because an average of two schools in each of 24 local board areas will be devoted throughout the day to the registration. The entire school personnel will be employed as registrars.

Meanwhile, Dr. Chester W. Holmes, assistant superintendent of schools in charge of registration, reported that by late yesterday more than 2,000 persons had volunteered as registrars.

The volunteers, who with the approximately 3,500 schoolteachers and officers bring the registration staff to 5,500, are principally from small business firms, independent Government departments and civic groups.

Dr. Holmes said he was confident the gap between 5,500 and the 7,200 required for the manpower inventory would be forthcoming from larger Government departments by Monday. The Federal branches had been asked to report the number of their employes volunteering after department canvassing not later than that day.

Drills for registrars will be held the afternoon and evening of October 14, Holmes said. White registrars will meet at 4 p. m. in four schools—Wilson, Coolidge and Eastern High schools and Langley Junior High School—while colored workers will attend classes at 8 p. m. at Armstrong High School.

Schedule for Day

Officials have adopted a schedule anticipating three peaks on registration day. It is thought that workers will flood the registration places between 7 and 9 a. m., on their way to work, from noon to 1 p. m., and from 4 p. m. to 9 p. m., after work, when the bulk of men are expected to register.

Holmes said approximately 35 per cent of the registrars would be assigned to duty in the morning and 65 per cent would assume their posts in the heavier afternoon hours.

Registrars will be bulwarked by a "flying squadron" prepared to rush to any overcongested area. Registrars will be relieved in regular shifts, one-half working while the other half rests. The idle 50 per cent will be held in reserve in the same manner as the flying squadrons.

Holmes, Butler Clash on Latter's Anti-Nazi Dictum

New York, Oct. 4 (AP).—A charge that Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, "has established the Nazi rule—obey or get out," was made today by Dr. John Haynes Holmes, chairman of the board of the American Civil Liberties Union.

Dr. Butler told faculty members yesterday that the position of Columbia in the "war between beasts and human beings" was clear and suggested that those whose opinions were in conflict with the university's stand should "in ordinary self respect, withdraw of their own accord."

Osteopaths See Test of Technique In Conclave Here

Three hundred members of the Middle Atlantic States Osteopathic Association convened here yesterday to see powers of "educated" fingers demonstrated before them.

While delegates acted as "patients," Drs. Perrin T. Wilson, Cambridge, Mass., Thomas L. Northup, Morristown, N. J. and James A. Stinson, St. Petersburg, Fla., lectured on proper technique—showing what and what not to do while treating a stiff neck.

The osteopaths made it a strong point that they don't pretend to treat diseases.

"We treat the body, itself," said Dr. Stinson, "to help the patient throw off disease through natural powers of nature."

The Legal Rake-Off

WELL, HERE we are, back on Topic A.

I have discussed before the career as a labor skate or mercenary unioneer of Oscar F. Nelson, a judge of the Superior Court of Chicago, who served as vice president of the Chicago Federation of Labor for 25 years and now has the gall to run for the office of county prosecutor or State's attorney, which, of course, has to do with the punishment of labor racketeers among other crooks.

I have found Judge Nelson's word unreliable because he told me his law firm never received much more than $10,000 a year from the flat janitors' union in the 12 years during which he admitted that the firm represented this organization, but later admitted, under pressure of the evidence, that $30,000 a year was nearer to the truth and that one year the legal rake-off was $42,000. He says he is not a member of the firm nowadays, being (God save America!) on the bench of a rather important court, but just the same he occupies an office in the firm's suite, in which I interviewed him. As to the number of years that he and/or the firm has represented this group of laboring men, I have to entertain some doubt, for some members or ex-members say this relationship has existed 14 years, not 12. A little inaccuracy like that wouldn't be remarkable in a man whose regard for figures is so casual that $10,000-plus is practically the same as $30,000 or $42,000.

I HAVE TO ASK you to be patient here because I am working up to the enormous size of the take which this altrustic pal of Labor with an upper case L has received from this union, alone, but among others.

The judge says the union's membership is between 4,300 and 4,400. The union itself has long claimed 7,000 or 7,500, and individuals who want to know more about the money, and may exaggerate, say there have been times when the membership has been up to 9,000. The union used to have a standard take, or lug, for legal service of $8 per year per member—an arrangement which has now been modified, but in what manner I do not know.

What I want to do is speculate on those beautiful box-car figures.

Let us start with the judge's own figures and work up. At $8 a year per head for a membership of 4,350 members, which is splitting the difference between 4,300 and 4,400 for a period of 12 years, labor's legal pal would have siphoned off the earnings of the flat janitors of Chicago, for whom his noble heart beats with brave and selfless loyalty, the not-to-be-sniffed-at sum of $417,000. If we add two years more to the term the lug comes to $487,200, or damned near half a million bucks, and we aren't sure that we are anywhere near the right total yet.

BECAUSE, figuring that the judge and the firm were paid off on 7,250 members, which is splitting the difference between 7,000 and 7,500, and using the same $8 per head as our supercharger, we find a figure of $696,000 for 12 years and $812,000 for 14 years.

And now, if we believe that there were 9,000 head-paying fees for 12 years, we boost the total to $864,000, and, adding two years more, we give the judge $1,008,000 for his trouble and heartaches.

Now, as I say, the figures aren't solid, but we have a pretty good concrete base in his own admissions which I would be willing to accept if, in addition to the lie about the $10,000 a year, Judge Nelson hadn't also lied about his relationship with the building service union, whose president, George Scalise, the white-slaver and underworld racketeer, has recently been convicted by Tom Dewey. The judge told me—and he has since reiterated to others—that he never represented this racket, but I dug up an official publication issued by the gorillas in 1938 in which he greeted Scalise and referred to his many years of service as counsel for the building service international. There is no doubt about that. It is there under his name and picture.

Well, any way you slice it, there is good thick money to compensate a labor skate for running off at the mouth at political meetings about his undying devotion to Labor with a capital L.

Political Subtlety

By Mark Sullivan

President Answers A Question

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, at his press conference, achieved something which, one feels, will excite wide interest, and some acrimony. If politics be looked upon as an art, a process of maneuvering public emotion, of starting one current of mass thought, or deflecting another—if politics be looked upon as that, Mr. Roosevelt's action had a cleverness rarely excelled. But the incident left, in some at least, an uneasy wonder whether, in the United States at this time, it might not be wiser to pass by some opportunities for political subtlety.

It began with a question from one of the newspapermen, a question rather startling, because it dealt with one of the most delicate aspects of this Presidential campaign—indeed one of the most explosive aspects of a highly explosive world. The question was—I quote from long-hand notes: "Have you any reason to believe, Mr. President, that Germany and Italy are working for your defeat in this campaign?"

The question was so direct, and dealt with a thing so inflammable, that one almost felt vicarious embarrassment for Mr. Roosevelt. It would, one felt, tax the art by which customarily, and quite reasonably, he avoids answering embarrassing questions, especially questions having to do with delicate foreign relations.

BUT MR. ROOSEVELT was not embarrassed, not at all—quite the contrary. By a perfectly marvelous coincidence or a most extraordinary feat of anticipation, he had on his desk before him a newspaper dispatch sent from Rome by the New York Times correspondent. From it Mr. Roosevelt read:

"So far as the United States is concerned, the Axis is primarily interested in keeping her out of the war and trying to prevent or minimize her help to Britain. The three-power alliance was intended to be one step in this direction. It well may be that another step will be taken. Moreover the Axis is out to beat President Roosevelt, not as a measure of interference in American internal politics, but because of the President's foreign policy and because of everything for which he stands in the eyes of Italians and Germans. This election is realized to be of vast importance to the Axis. Therefore it is normal strategy for the Axis to do something before November 5 which would somehow have a great effect on the election campaign."

Instantly there were questions—no newspaperman was likely to miss the possibilities of dynamite in what Mr. Roosevelt had done. The questions were aimed at bringing out amplification from Mr. Roosevelt. But no amplification came. To question after question, his reply was always the same, and always serenely smiling—he had nothing to add to the newspaper quotation.

One question asked whether there was any relation between Mr. Roosevelt's reading this dispatch and the charge made by Vice Presidential Candidate Henry A. Wallace, in his acceptance speech, that Hitler wants the Republicans to win the election. That question almost disturbed Mr. Roosevelt's pleased aplomb. But he made the same reply—all he had to say had been said by reading the newspaper dispatch.

NEARLY EVERYONE present felt, I think, Mr. Roosevelt had done what he did for effect upon the campaign; or at least that he was not unaware—he hardly could be—of the political effect his action would have. Conceivably, if one went to great lengths for justification of the action, a remote extenuation might be found. It might be said that Mr. Roosevelt's motive was not political, but was related to military and diplomatic strategy. It might be said that Mr. Roosevelt merely wished to put America on notice to look out for that "something" which, according to the dispatch, the Axis is going to do before election day, November 5. But to assume that Mr. Roosevelt had only that in mind, that he was not thinking of the political effect, that he quite overlooked the politics of it—to assume that would be such an injustice, to Mr. Roosevelt's subtle political understanding as would be disappointing to himself.

Whatever the motive, or the mixture of motives, Mr. Roosevelt's manner suggested that he was pleased with himself. It was not merely the expression of the cat that has eaten the canary. It was as if the cat, upon being accused, was able to remind his accusers that the death of the canary was a desirable thing.

MR. ROOSEVELT'S indorsement of this Rome dispatch, his implication that it was correct had the added emphasis of contrast with his usual attitude. Ordinarily, when Mr. Roosevelt alludes to a newspaper dispatch, it is more often to deny than to indorse. And so it happened on this very day. Quite a few newspaper stories were called to his attention. All either were incorrect, just newspaper stories, or Mr. Roosevelt had never heard of them. One was about a Democratic campaign meeting to be held in New York October 26, at which it was surmised Mr. Roosevelt might speak. There was nothing in that. One was a dispatch from Tokyo to the effect that Secretary of State Hull might resign next January. Nothing in that either. There was a question about our Ambassador to London, Mr. Joseph P. Kennedy, being replaced by Mr. William C. Bullitt. Nothing in that either. Only the Rome dispatch affecting American politics to Mr. Roosevelt's presumed advantage—only that had validity.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

The Land Of The Daily Double

The latest Government census shows that Miami is the fastest growing city in the United States. Its population jumped 54 per cent between 1930 and 1940. That was despite hurricanes and the cold weather of the last few winters.

It now has a population of 170,988 people, all waiting for the 2,000,000 tourists to show up and ask, "what's good at the track today?"

Miami and Miami Beach constitute the center of the American dizzy zone. They are the capitals of the Winter Razzle Dazzle areas.

Not so many years ago it was mainly a swamp with a few fishermen and Seminole Indians. The Indians were supposed to be savages. That was before the white man began to show up in his winter outing mood with his racing charts, his binoculars and his wild behavior.

Now they bring the surviving Indians to Hialeah once a year so they can placidly watch the antics of the white man and grunt, "White folks heap civilized; Red man wonder how he stand it."

Miami has grown from a tropical village without even a railroad near it into the world's biggest merry-go-round. Flagler brought a railroad line to it in 1906. Fate and a motorboat brought Carl Fisher to it 10 or 12 years later. The Wideners brought the gee-gees to it next. But the climate had been there all along.

It's all a triumph of the Gulf Stream and publicity.

Miami is warmed by the former and served hot by the latter.

Not much more than 25 years ago it was a cluster of shacks, wigwams and coconut groves. The wayside lunchstand, the chain gas station, the jackpot, the electric rabbit and the night club comic and Jack's Green Sheet were unknown.

Nature supplied the climate and man supplied the ingenuity. Fish, dogs and horses did the rest.

Topping the census figures are reports of scores of new hotels, apartment houses and residences all over Miami Beach, a train schedule doubling all past service, better bathing beauties and a promise of two greyhounds in every conversation and a daily double in every home.

Norse Crown Princess Picks Bethesda Home

It's Pretty Definite That Royal Refugee And 3 Children Will Settle in House Of the Merle Thorpes on Rockville Pike

By Dudley Harmon

The ladies of Suburbia have been much agitated lately by the news that a princess was coming to live among them. Every day the telephone of this office has buzzed with the reports of excited matrons who say "positively" that Crown Princess Martha of Norway has just leased the residence of so-and-so at such-and-such a rent a month. By this time at least 12 spacious houses in Maryland and Virginia have been named as "positively selected" by the princess.

"Do you suppose we'll run into the crown princess marketing at the Sanitary Store on the corner?" they ask one another.

But now it can be pretty definitely stated that the princess and her three children will settle in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Merle Thorpe on the Rockville Pike, near Bethesda. The Norwegian Legation, the real estate agent concerned, and the Thorpes are all discreetly mum on the subject, but an official announcement to this effect will be made in the near future by one of them.

Mr. and Mrs. Thorpe—he is a prominent editor—built this house several years ago and named it "Pook's Hill." Around it there are plenty of acres for the two little princesses and their brother to play in. Though comfortable and spacious, the house is simple, and the grounds are minus a swimming pool or tennis court.

The fact that Mr. and Mrs. Thorpe are giving up their house does not mean they will leave Washington, their many friends here will be glad to learn.

Grand Duchess Feted at Tea

While on the subject of royalty, with or without crowns, the visit of Grand Duchess Marie caused quite a flurry this week. The author, recently turned stylist, comes here from time to time on clothes business. One of her friends is Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis, widow of the Senator from Illinois, who has returned here to live at the Mayflower. "Gypsy" Lewis had a few friends in for tea the other afternoon to meet the grand duchess.

Among those who called were Mrs. Eldridge Jordan, Ogden Hammond, Clarence Hewes, Miss Caroline Nash and Miss Dorothy Spencer, of New Orleans. The latter was here just two days, but was entertained at a luncheon given by Miss Nash and a dinner by the John B. Hydes. Miss Nash, incidentally, has gotten herself a full-time volunteer job at the Red Cross.

Mr. Hewes has since left for another stay at Hot Springs, Va. Later he will go on to North Carolina to visit the Hugh Vincents and from there to New Orleans. Mr. Hewes will return here early next month.

Belgian Statesman Embassy Guest

Another prominent visitor to Washington is Franz van Cauwelaert, president of the Belgian Parliament. He had a chance to meet leading members of our Congress at a man's dinner given for him Thursday by Count Robert van der Straten Ponthoz, Belgian Ambassador. Among those who discussed the state of the world were the new Speaker of the House, Sam Rayburn; Senator Key Pittman, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate, and Representative Sol Bloom, chairman of the House Foreign Relations Committee.

M. van Cauwelaert will leave today for New York. He stayed at the embassy during his visit to Washington.

Party Marks Anniversary

Shades of 1920: Wearing her original wedding gown, Mrs. Charles McEnerney and Dr. McEnerney celebrated their twentieth anniversary at a party given last night at the Wesley Heights Club.

The gown, patterned after one from Blossom Time, all the rage in the '20s, was of ivory slipper satin and, of course, short. It had a square neckline edged in chantilly lace, and an apron of the same lace. Completing the ensemble, the former bride wore her long tulle veil.

They received just inside the door, before a screen banked with white flowers. The clubhouse was filled with blooms sent to Dr. and Mrs. McEnerney by their friends. Pretty Miss Nancy McEnerney had chosen a white net frock trimmed in sequins.

Miss Catherine Cushwa had come here from Williamsport, Md., just to attend the party. She had been maid of honor for her sister, but chose to wear a modern frock on this occasion, a gown of pink net with flowers on the bodice. Also at the party from Williamsport were Mrs. McEnerney's parents, Mr. and Mrs. David K. Cushwa, sr.

Invitations had requested "original wedding dress" and many guests turned up in quaint attire. An orchestra played throughout the evening for dancing. Refreshments were served from a table in one corner of the room. A huge white wedding cake had been placed on the table, which was decked with white roses and blue delphinium.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride appeared in a frock of wistaria wool crepe, worn with wine accessories and a veiled matching hat. Her corsage was of orchids and lilies of the valley. Miss Betty Darby, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, wearing a blue wool dress and matching accessories and carrying a corsage of yellow roses. Joseph N. Darby, jr., brother of the bride, was best man.

Following the ceremony, there was a buffet supper, after which the couple left on their wedding trip. The former Miss Darby attended Strayer College here. Mr. Culp attended Pennsylvania State College, where he was a member of Phi Delta Theta Fraternity.

Mrs. Lammers' Wedding Today

At a quiet ceremony today at noon, Mrs. Ann Bailey Lammers will be married to S. Eugene Jackson, of Providence, R. I. Only the immediate families will be present at the wedding, which will take place in Providence and will be followed by a breakfast at the cottage of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Cook at the Lacolis Hill Hunt Club, which Mrs. Jackson has leased for the winter.

The attractive bride made her home here last year in a charming old remodeled home at 1310 Twenty-fourth street in Georgetown. Before that she lived in Newport. Her first marriage to Commander Howard M. Lammers, U. S. N., ended in divorce. She and Mr. Jackson expect to return to Washington next week to attend the wedding on Friday of Miss Mary Louise Marsh and E. Kenneth Jenkins.

Nuptials of Interest To Society Here; Couple to Live in Ohio

Mary Haworth's Mail

Man Takes Gentle-Hearted Bride to Live With His Mother, an Acid-Tongued Tyrant; Girl's Sister Sees Her Often in Tears; How Show Man His Unfairness?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My sister is 22 years old and has been married one year to an "only son," who insists upon their living with his widowed mother because he "feels sorry for her." The mother is 52 years old, in good health, has a position, owns her own home and has other relatives in the vicinity. Apparently she doesn't care for friends.

She wants only her son, whom she monopolizes and dominates. She ignores his wife, who should be his helpmate. She watches over him as if he were a 5-year-old child, instead of a married man 30 years old. She even went with them on their annual vacation trip, a few weeks ago. My sister is no match for her, being considerate and kind. She is very gentle and patient, always trying to help others less fortunate than herself. Her husband has the same type of disposition—just the opposite of his mother's.

After they had been married about a month, Mrs. Blank (the mother-in-law) came running upstairs one day, yelling at my sister that she hated her religion. She said: "You should have found out how I felt about your religion before you came into MY house to live." (As if my sister had married her!) My sister's husband is pleased with her religion and there has never been any trouble between them on any score. There are only the rows created by Mrs. Blank; and my sister never talks back to her. She just weeps all day and lies awake at night.

Last Sunday Mrs. Blank got stirred up again. I had dropped in to see my sister, not knowing there was trouble in the air. But one glance at Mrs. Blank's countenance was sufficient. My sister had been crying. She told me to stay away, as Mrs. Blank hates me because I am her sister. She said, also, that her husband can't see the situation as it is, and has changed toward her because she wants to go elsewhere with him to live. They are financially able to live to themselves, if he would.

Row after row fails to convince him of the importance of moving. He fails to see that his marriage probably will end in divorce as a result of his living with his mother and listening to her talk about his wife. Yet, were it not for his mother's interference, there would be ideal harmony between them. He reads your column. Perhaps your answer will help him to see the situation as it is. Sincerely, E. G.

Tears Are Futile; Fighting Spirit Needed

DEAR E. G.: This young man isn't sorry for his mother. He's just plain scared of her. She has milked him of the courage to sever the umbilical cord. Since the day he graduated from diapers to pants, I daresay she has been alternately clinging to him and pushing him around, so that he can't imagine a scheme of things in which he wouldn't be doing a marionette act on the end of her apron strings.

No doubt he thinks it was mighty noble of her to let him get married at all. But, on the other hand, it's problematic whether he would have had the courage to take the plunge if he hadn't know he could run right back home again to Mama with his bride—taking refuge from the Cruel World under her Sheltering Wing.

Frankly, I don't know whether it's possible to pry him loose from her clutches. Even if he had a tough-minded bride, cast in the spit image of Mama, who made it her business to drag him bodily away, I suppose his heart would continue to turn wistfully back to the scenes of his childhood and that Dear Familiar Dragon who daily devoured him alive. But the fact that he happens to be a Grade-A milksop gives no excuse for your sister's spineless, lachrymose behavior. That's no way to act. It's a cowardly, self-pitying kind of performance—and probably explains why her husband is "changing" toward her.

Instead of meekly urging or tearfully begging him to take her away, she should tell him, in a grimly smiling spirit, that she'd had enough; and her attitude toward Mama should be one of "Nuts to you." If Mrs. Blank feels like throwing a fit, Son's Wife is under no obligation to take it like a slave. If that home is her husband's home, it is also her home, and she should act as if it is. When Mama starts boiling, she should either take herself negligently out of shouting distance or else talk back to her with imperturbable irony.

A stout-hearted resistance to her verbal mauling would soon have Mama demanding of Sonny that he make a choice between them. And when she made that demand, maybe one could get some action out of him. At least, he would have to concede that the three weren't nestling in any bed of roses. And apparently he isn't willing to make that concession as of today.

The proper solution of this situation is so painfully obvious, of course, that I shouldn't have to re-state it for the young man's benefit. He should clear out of Mama's house in exactly the length of time it takes him to find lodgings for himself and wife elsewhere. If he declines to do this, his wife is justified in leaving him, and that's exactly what she ought to do. She's a dunce if she stays there, allowing herself to be periodically steam-rollered along with him. M. H.

Beauty Secrets

Make-Up With Glasses

YOU WHO are over 30 and wear glasses often get the idea that there is some special make-up to make glasses less conspicuous. Not so. If you choose cosmetic shades and use them expertly, the effect will be flattering with or without glasses.

However, here are several suggestions for applying make-up:

Blend cheek rouge lightly up under the eyes to avoid having a hard line of color just underneath the glasses. If the eyes are faded or rather light, or if lashes and eyebrows are graying, darken them discreetly with the eye pencil and mascara. Besides giving depth to light eyes, it will bring them out and make the glasses seem unimportant. In a few cases (you can be the best judge) glasses magnify so strongly that it is not advisable to use mascara; this however, is exceptional.

Take pains to keep the eyebrows neat and trim—not plucked to a thin line or exaggerated in shape, but looking as natural and spruce as if they were drawn on. Be sure to remove any lashes growing down on the upper lid itself. This will make the whole face cleaner looking and will improve the looks of the eyes behind glasses.

Choose and apply your lipstick with great care, for centering attention on your mouth distracts attention from your spectacles. Be careful how you wear your hair. Don't bring it down on the forehead or out on the temples so that even straying tendrils touch the glasses. Don't part your coiffure in the middle. Your hair should look well groomed, but it should not be severe. Severity of dress, manner or coiffure makes you look too pedantic with spectacles.

Attractive Windows and Draperies Add Most To Average Room, Says Household Authority

Here is a way that you can give a warm glow to your living room on winter days. The picture window, framed in flowered chintz drapes and valance, not only gives a dramatic note but allows the vista of the terrace and garden to be a part of the design of the colonial room. The floral hook rug and flowered chintz slip cover on wing chair also provide refreshing decorative notes in a beautiful and simple way

Henrietta Ripperger Says Hangings Can Transform Character of Interior; Should Let In Light and Air and Never Be Skimpy

By Martha Ellyn

WHAT'S WRONG with your windows? Not exactly the windows, but the treatment of them. Are they a concern to you? If so, you will be glad to hear the advice given by Henrietta Ripperger, author of the recent book, "A Home of Your Own," and a visitor in Washington this week.

Martha Ellyn

Mrs. Ripperger knows about the problems of a home from experience, since she has a family for whom she has maintained homes both in the city and country. She is a contributor on household problems to leading national magazines.

This writer considers the home a setting for you, your husband—if there is one—and the entire family. Your background, she says, is how your friends, acquaintances and neighbors judge you. Mrs. Ripperger thinks that one of the most important notes of decoration is draperies. She advises anyone who is decorating a home to look at the architectural character of the windows—especially in a living room since it is usually the most dramatic feature of the room. The purpose of hangings is to drape or enhance the opening, not to shut out light, air and view.

Aid to Illusion

If the builder of the house has framed the glass by putting beautiful woodwork around it, she advises that the frame should not be covered with the cloth, but instead the draperies should be placed unobtrusively inside the frame. A cornice or valance is a great help to window troubles, too. It can make a window seem wider by extending both the cornice and the drapes out on the wall beyond the window trim. It can be mounted above the window to give the opening greater height, and can be built down over a tall window to shorten the length.

"Any drapery to be effective should be ample and luxurious looking and should fall to the floor in folds," said Mrs. Ripperger. "A bad curtain or window hanging is nearly always a skimpy one. Use a cheap material like pongee or even cheesecloth rather than a costly fabric and only half as much. Better two widths of an inexpensive cretonne on a large window than a single width of a more expensive cretonne.

The Bay Windows

"You know, a bay window means not only more air, view and sunshine but also the means to a dramatic grouping of furniture, and the grouping should have an effective and delightful background. When the architect has chosen to build three windows together they should be treated as a unit, and not chopped into three distinct parts. An effective treatment for such a window is glass curtains to cover wall spaces, a swag valance and full draperies on either side. The glass curtains, of course, are not always necessary."

And when you go forth to buy furnishings for a home that you want to have charm and style, this expert counsels the homemaker to have a floor plan and a bunch of swatches. The floor plan will show exactly how much wall space there is to fill; the swatches of material for hangings and furniture covers and samples of wallpaper and colors of paint will all make for easier and more effective shopping for the interior of the home.

Pearl 'Filter' Advises How Gems May Be Chosen to Suit Wearer

By Marshall Adams
The Post Fashion Editor.

EXPERTS are flocking to Washington this month to show women how to be more devastating in the way they do their hair, wear their hats or combine their colors. A comparatively new line of fashion attack, however, is the "pearl fitter" who inspects a customer's type, proportions, coloring and general characteristics before a strand of pearls is tried around her throat.

MARSHALL ADAMS

"Pearl fitting" is the function of Miss Kay Palmer, of the Imperial Pearl Syndicate, who points out that the day is past when women can wear pearls as casually as they would an old tweed skirt. In Washington recently to advise on the selection and wearing of pearls, Miss Palmer brought to our attention one of the most compelling features of the lofty cultured pearls—the fact that they are not necessarily luxury items but can be purchased as low as $7.95 a strand for those who don't want or can't afford the $5,500 variety.

Rules to Follow

Rules to follow, according to Miss Palmer, in pearl selections include:

Small, neatly graduated pearls should be worn by the woman with a full, stocky neck so as not to call attention to dowager's humps, throatiness, etc.

Larger, more noticeably graduated pearls are most flattering to the woman of scrawny proportions as they help fill up skinny collarbones.

The woman of ample bustline must avoid triple strand pearls regardless of her love of worldly show. She should stick to the more modest, more becoming 18-inch strand, which is the best length for almost every woman, since it hits about one inch below the collarbone and is good with almost any type of neckline.

No arbitrary rules can be set forth for complexions requiring definite pearl tints, according to Miss Palmer, but a general theory to work on in selecting precisely the right color and string would be:

Pure white pearls against dark complexions to give a glow to the skin.

Pinkish pearls against pale, dull skins that demand a flood of color.

Golden or creamy pearls against rosy skin to tone down too much pinkness.

Grayish or rare black pearls against milk white skin for contrast.

These rules are general, Miss Palmer adds, since the individual mode of dress, specific coloring and "type" play an important part in selections.

Pearls of Wisdom

Other interesting facts about the cultured pearl supplied by "pearl fitter" Palmer are that cultured pearls are registered so that if broken or lost, perfectly blended jewels can be matched for re-stringing or lengthening. Knots are returning to style, too, another precaution against losses. However, three-quarters of the natural and cultured pearls in the world are "imperfect;" that is, they have a slight rubbled effect to the surface which is really a birthmark due to lying in the "kidney" of the oyster. This "imperfection" actually gives interest to the surface of the pearl.

A final pearly fact to drop from the lips of Miss Palmer is that pearls live on flesh and on the heat and oils of the body. Thus their value is enhanced every year they are worn. That is why it is best, if possible, to wear pearls next to the skin, except in the summer time when perspiration tends to dull their luster.

A Woman's Washington

By Jean Brownell

THE PENCIL silhouette may be popular with women but it's on its way out as far as men are concerned. "The buxom type is coming back," predicts Noel Carter, titian beauty who provided an eyeful for bald-headed row at the Gayety recently. Even the new clothes call for a well-developed figure, she points out. Noel (she was born on Christmas Day) is a blue-eyed redhead who properly goes in for "Deep Purple" tones. Her favorite theatrical costume is of violet, with a lavender ostrich jacket and lavender underskirt.

Noel Carter

She doesn't regret abandoning musical comedy in favor of burlesque. "It's harder work—three shows a day—but it's steady. A good burlesque artist can work 50 weeks out of the year; in musical comedy you're apt to have to wait six months between shows . . . Mary Martin's strip in 'Leave It To Me' went over all right with musical comedy audiences, but I don't think she'd click in burlesque; doesn't know the tricks. I'm still learning them—that's why I like the work. I won't quit till I'm really tops and making lots of money; then I want to buy some theaters and go into business."

BOOK DEPT.—At the recent Chinese Embassy reception, a prominent Washington woman rushed into the room and headed for the receiving line. "I must meet Pearl Buck," she said en route. "Never have I enjoyed a book so much as I did 'Mother Earth.'"

A young mother here has two sons who have reached the acquisitive stage simultaneously. According to the latest census, the household includes a collie, numerous frogs and gold fish, two turtles and two baby alligators. The climax came when she arrived home late one evening and started to raise a window in the living room. She discovered to her surprise and pain that in her absence a cactus collection had been started on the sill.

Maury Maverick, of the hard-riding Texas Mavericks, visited Washington recently on his way home from a Council of Mayors meeting in New York. While here he dropped in at the Woman's National Democratic Club's dinner in honor of Mrs. Roosevelt. After greeting the First Lady he paused at the press table and created a sensation by rolling up his trouser leg to display a large area of skinned calf. He lost the skin, he confessed, during a two-hour horseback with a New York mounted policeman.

The headquarters was set up in the administration building of the local Y. W. after Miss Mills arrived from Geneva a few weeks ago. No sooner was the typewriter installed than was the teapot.

When the offices were moved into the National Education Association Building on Sixteenth street a few days ago, the tea service again found its place even before all of the furniture had been moved in.

Members of the executive staff at the local Y. W. C. A., who often were invited to share a friendly cup of tea with Miss Mills and members of her staff while she was at Seventeenth and K streets, not only miss her but the tea parties and are considering the advisability of adopting the good old English custom.

People of Norway Will 'Stand Fast' for Ultimate Victory

The people of Norway, in the face of Nazi domination and suppression of freedom, are determined to "stand fast, hold out and fight together" for ultimate victory, according to word received here yesterday by Norwegian Minister Wilhelm Munthe de Morgenstierne.

The word came in the form of a statement issued by the Norwegian cabinet following a meeting with King Haakon at an undisclosed place—presumably somewhere in Britain. The statement told of the recent abolition of monarchy and Parliament in Norway by Joseph Terboven, Nazi high commissioner, adding that "the very cornerstone of Norway's constitutional regime has been overthrown and cast aside."

"Act of Brute Force"

"The Reichkommissar," said the cabinet statement, "claims to have received support for this new order from the political parties of the country, but the truth is that what has been thus accomplished is purely and simply an act of brute force by a foreign usurper. The new council has no support in Norway other than the German military power."

Even before Germany decreed the end of monarchy and parliament, Minister Morgenstierne was told in the communication, important departments of Norway's government were placed directly under Nazi control.

"German courts can impose sentences in Norway," the report stated, "German police have control over Norwegian citizens and all military power is vested in the Germans. The whole system of Norway's defense has been dissolved."

"Together . . . Victory"

"The German high commissioner announced he carried on negotiations with representatives of the Norwegian parliament. But it was impossible for him to get a favorable decision in parliament for the order he desired. Not a single member of parliament has placed himself at the service of the Germans by participating in the new council."

A government set up on such a basis, the statement continued, "will fall of itself the day the German occupation troops disappear."

To Norwegian citizens the statement said:

"Stand fast and hold out! Remain true to Norway's free constitution! Together we shall win victory for all Norwegians!"

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown

Phyllis Wheatley Y. W. C. A. presents Carol Brice, contralto, and Sylvia Olden, pianist, in joint recital Friday night in Fifteenth Street Presbyterian Church.

Two talented young musicians who are well on the road of artistry were heard last evening by an audience that filled Fifteenth Street Presbyterian Church and accorded the joint recitalists the cordial reception they deserved. The name of Carol Brice is one to keep in mind, as there are indications in the promising ability of this contralto that she may become as well known as Marian Anderson and Dorothy Maynor. Her colleague and accompanist, Sylvia Olden, has an ease and fluency at the keyboard that presage good things in store for her as well.

BROWN

Miss Brice, a graduate of Talladega College and incumbent of a scholarship at Juilliard Graduate School, opened the program with two Handelian arias from "Radamisto" and "Atalanta" and Durante's "Danza, fanciulla gentile." In her readings of these songs she disclosed a voice of wide range, pure intonation and clarity of texture. Her tone was firmly placed and excellently controlled on the breath, while its crescendo was notably even.

Her second group contained Schubert's "Der Tod und das Maedchen" and "Die Forelle," Faure's "Apres un Reve" and the aria, "Di tanti palpiti," from Rossini's "Tancredi." The merits of her lyric plasticity and evenness of sustained tone were again in evidence, as was the fact that her mastery of floritura is as yet incomplete. Her rapid phrasing lacked the spontaneity and grace which produce the effect of lightness, and three was a certain angularity suggestive of effort.

In her final group was again impressed by her command of a steady and translucent tone, her absolute pitch and her emotional coloring. There was much to be enjoyed in her readings of Harry Burleigh's "Memory," Cecil Cohen's fine song, "Death of An Old Seaman," Ernest Charles' "When I Have Sung My Songs to You" and two spirituals: "Standin' in de Need of Prayer" and "My Soul's Been Anchored in the Lord."

Sylvia Olden, who has studied here at Howard University and at Oberlin, showed a facile technique and musicianly poise in her contributions to the program. Her first solos were Bach's Prelude and Fugue in A minor and Beethoven's "Waldstein" sonata. The Bach was played neatly with a tone color that made it more than mere precision. In the Beethoven sonata one was more aware of digital skill than of interpretational penetration, although the slow movement revealed her command of a singing touch.

Her second group brought together the impudently amusing polka from Shostakovich's "The Golden Age," William Grant Still's "Out of the Silence," Ravel's "Jeux d'eau" and Chopin's B minor Scherzo. In place of the last two pieces, which were treated with dextrous competence, one would like to have heard more of Still's "Seven Traceries" from which but one excerpt was played. "Out of the Silence," for all its harmonic indebtedness to Ravel, is interesting in its thematic ideas and atmospheric feeling.

Capital News In Brief

D. C. Student Missing, Parents Ask Police Aid

William H. Stannard, 16-year-old son of William J. Stannard, former leader of the United States Army Band, was missing last night 16 hours after he had last been seen leaving for McKinley High School, where he is a junior.

"He was going to play a concert on his accordion tonight," his father said at the Stannard home, 4309 Twelfth street northwest, "and he practiced for an hour before going to school. He was in fine spirits."

The Stannards last night asked police for help in locating the boy. He is 5 feet 6 inches tall and weighs 110 pounds. He has light complexion and blue eyes. Yesterday morning he was wearing a plaid jacket, green trousers and tan shoes.

Operating as Mack's Grill, the licensed premise must relinquish its liquor permit on October 14. The board found Trollinger guilty of selling an alcoholic beverage to a minor girl.

In another action, the board suspended for seven days the license of Peter's Restaurant, in the 1200 block of New York avenue northwest, and for seven days the permit of Michael G. Terry, 2106 Eighteenth street northwest.

Boys Club To Give Land Navy Needs

Directors Vote To Donate Sites At Strategic Spot Near Md. Camp

The Board of Directors of the Metropolitan Police Boys Club last night voted unanimously to donate to the Government two sections of land at Camp Ernest W. Brown at Scotland, Md., sought by the Navy Department for national defense purposes. Although it was not disclosed for what purpose the Navy high command intends to use the land, it was pointed out the camp site lies strategically on the Potomac close to the tip of Chesapeake Bay.

It was understood the land might be used either as a naval training station for seagoing trainees or for development of specialized operations such as torpedo range finding.

More than 50 board members with Morris Cafritz, board head, presiding, approved the Navy request in a special meeting at the Ambassador Hotel.

Earlier a committee headed by William L. King had surveyed the camp area and designated the two parcels of land to be given to the Government.

At the meeting a report was read showing a record number of underprivileged Capital youths had frolicked at the camp last summer.

In all, 1,316 campers had spent vacation periods there. Of these, 970 were sent there by the Metropolitan Police Boys Club, 202 were affiliated girls club members, while 144 were school safety patrol representatives.

Out of an appropriation of $14,266 contributed by Washingtonians in the annual sustaining drive, $11,413 was expended for the vacationing youths. The remainder was laid aside for future encampments.

Assisting Cafritz in the camp organization is Dr. M. G. Gibbs, first vice president, while Police Sergt. Forrest L. Binswanger is camp director. James E. Colliflower is camp president.

Public Hearing On Marital Test Bill Ordered

Commissioners Seek Public's View on New Ruhland Measure

The District Commissioners yesterday voted to place Health Officer George C. Ruhland's proposed bill, providing for premarital blood tests in the District, before a public hearing. They did not set a date, but said it would be held this month.

The much-discussed measure, which was prepared by members of the health department staff was declared of "great importance" by the Commissioners. "We are of the opinion that this proposed bill is of too great importance to be passed on without the benefit of public expression," Col. David McCoach, jr., Engineering Commissioner, said yesterday.

Delayed more than a year after a former bill was sent to Chairman Randolph of the House District Committee, the new bill will be handled "as rapidly as possible," after the public hearing, the Commissioners said.

Earlier this week, after a story in The Post revealed that the legislation in question had apparently become entangled in a maze of buck-passing and apathy, Dr. Ruhland explained the delay by stating the matter had to be "cleared" by all interested parties before any action could be taken.

However, he sent the revised bill along to the Commissioners without waiting for criticisms of the bill from "all interested parties."

The proposed bill provides that the blood tests may be made by laboratories other than those of the health department, provided such laboratories are licensed and competently operated.

Sergeant's Body Is Found in River; Verdict Is Suicide

The body of Supply Sergt. Leonard Hollars, of the Army band, was found floating in the Tidal Basin yesterday.

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald issued a certificate of suicide.

Police to Guard Willkie Banners

Alexandria police yesterday were instructed to pay particular attention to political banners at several points, after receiving a report that vandals had torn down a Willkie banner in the Del Ray area late Thursday night.

The complaint was filed by Frederick L. Flynn, chairman of the city Republican committee, who said the banner had been torn down by a group of men in an automobile. The vandals, he added, threatened to tear the banner down if it were replaced, and said they planned to destroy additional Willkie signs.

War Aid Held No Obstacle To Community Chest Drive

PLAN COMMUNITY CHEST DRIVE—Tentative plans were mapped last night for the forthcoming Community Chest campaign at a smoker in the Cosmos Club. Taking an active part were (left to right) Chauncey Parker, jr., general chairman; E. W. Libby, chairman of the Department of Commerce unit, who has served the Chest since its first campaign, and Ernest G. Draper, member of the board of governors, Federal Reserve System, who is chairman of the Government unit

Recent Demands on Public Have Sharpened Consciousness of Need for Sacrifice, Parker Tells Volunteer Workers

Aid given to war victims in Europe will not detract from contributions for Washington's needy through the Community Chest this year, Chairman Chauncey G. Parker, jr., last night told more than 130 volunteer workers at the Cosmos Club.

"The reason for my optimism lies in the fact that the American public is humanity minded," he said.

"Everyone who is not callous to human needs will do his utmost to help the victims of the war, which might mean that there would be less for Washington charities," the Community Chest leader observed. "Were people's lives based upon the self-indulgent levels of ordinary times, this might be true.

"But gradually it is becoming apparent to even the most thoughtless people that these are not ordinary times, but times of crises, demanding self-sacrifice and all the adjustments that this involves."

"So if we are conscious that a crisis faces the world, if we are in earnest about our sympathy, if our privileges and comforts shame us at this time, it will mean that there will be a reorientation in our lives which will express itself in sacrificial giving, both to those abroad and to those in our own city," he asserted.

Needs of the District underprivileged will be viewed with more sympathy than ever before, in the chairman's opinion. "Psychologically, people are conditioned to give more generously than ever at these times, and the needs of the people of this city are going to be viewed through more sympathetic eyes than ever before," he concluded.

The Chest goal of $2,000,000 will be divided into quotas for six soliciting units, workers were told. Highest will be the $850,000 Government unit quota. Next in order will be the business unit, $670,000; residential, $434,000; colored, $8,500; Montgomery County, $22,500, and Prince Georges County, $15,000.

Heads of the soliciting units represented last night are Richard H. Wilmer, general vice chairman; J. C. Folger, chairman of Advance Gifts Unit; Ernest G. Draper, chairman of the Government Unit; A. G. Neal, of the Group Solicitation Unit; Paul D. Sleeper, Metropolitan Unit, and Belford V. Lawson, jr., Capital Unit.

U. S. Gayly Heads for Disaster, Sumners Tells Women of Bar

HONOR DISTRICT BAR PRESIDENT—The District Women's Bar Association last night tendered a dinner at the Continental Hotel in honor of Francis W. Hill (left), president of the District Bar Association. Elizabeth M. Cox, president of the Women's Bar Association, attended, and William Roy Vallance (right), secretary general of the Inter-American Bar Association, was also present

Representative Hatton W. Sumners (Democrat), of Texas, last night told nearly 100 members and guests of the Women's Bar Association that this country is "headed for the rocks" because "we are laughing, playing, merrily going along our way as though nothing has happened."

He spoke at a dinner meeting of the organization at the Continental Hotel at which Francis W. Hill, president of the District Bar Association, was the guest of honor.

"All over the world we hear the crash of democracies, and yet we think we are to be spared the inevitable catastrophe here," Sumners declared.

"We think we're running the business of government when we're chasing Fifth Columnists—a bunch of fleas on the back of the dog," he continued. "If the big watch dog is dying of fatty degeneration and only the fleas will get him into action then it's a good thing to have fleas."

Asserting that "people are less willing to wrestle with problems of government than ever before," the chairman of the House Judiciary Committee said that "we cannot continue as a democracy unless we preserve a citizenship capable of carrying one on."

William R. Vallance, secretary general of the recently formed Inter-American Bar Association, discussed the work of that body. He said it had been formed "to promote and maintain relations between associations and organizations of lawyers, national and local, in the various countries of the Americas . . . to provide a forum for the exchange of views."

Scholarships by the Women's Bar Association to three women for pre-law study at National University were announced. The recipients are Miss Earline Hamilton, Miss Geraldine Pikul, and Miss Eleanor DeLind.

Reports on the annual convention of the American Bar Association held in Philadelphia were given by Miss Mary Agnes Brown, Mrs. Elizabeth M. Cox, Henry I. Quinn, Walter Bastian and Sefton Darr.

Woodley Rd. Bus Line Rerouted

Effective Monday, Turn Eliminated At Kalorama and Columbia Roads

The Public Utilities Commission yesterday ordered rerouting of the Woodley road bus line in the vicinity of Columbia and Kalorama roads northwest following a public hearing at which Representative Sol Bloom (Democrat), of New York, indorsed the change.

The buses, beginning Monday, will proceed east on Kalorama road, south on Nineteenth street and west on Wyoming avenue, thus eliminating a hairpin turn at Kalorama and Columbia roads. The commission ordered bus stops for southbound traffic on Nineteenth street north of Columbia road and on Wyoming avenue on the east side of Columbia road northwest for westbound trips.

Meantime, the commission granted the request of the Congress Heights Citizens Association for extension of the Anacostia-Congress Heights bus service and also directed the Capital Transit Co. to provide a loop service during rush hours at the terminus of the bus line. This order is effective on October 20. The order provides that buses with a headway of 20 minutes during rush hours are to be operated from Fifth street, Nichols and Alabama avenues southeast, so as to go east on Alabama avenue, south on Eleventh street, west on Savannah street, north on Wheeler road and west on Alabama avenue to Nichols avenue.

One further change was ordered by the commission affecting the Mount Pleasant street car line on Columbia road northwest. The street-car stop for northbound traffic will be shifted, beginning Monday, from a point on Columbia road to the west side of Nineteenth street, in order to provide a more convenient place for loading and unloading of passengers.

Mudd to Head Randle Highlands Group

T. Paul Mudd was elected president of the Randle Highlands Citizens Association at a meeting held last night at the Orr School, Twenty-second and Prout streets southeast.

M. H. Clarke was elected vice president. Other officers named included Herbert M. Frazier, secretary; John H. McCall, treasurer, and A. W. Lee and G. E. Pray, delegates to the Federation.

The association requested the Commissioners for increased power in lights on side streets in the Southeast section and for higher wattage in street lights on Pennsylvania avenue southeast beyond the bridge. Opening of the District Highway Department testing laboratory was requested in a resolution adopted.

Removal of an "unsanitary" stable within 500 yards of the Orr School was requested. An eight-room addition and recreation and assembly rooms were requested for the Randle Highlands School. It was urged that the Orr and Randle Highlands schools be operated as a single unit.

Brightwood Oldest Citizens' Group, Organized in 1884

Association Helped to Bring Many Improvements to Area Between Walter Reed Hospital and Maryland State Line

This is the sixth article in a series about citizens' associations in the District, and their efforts to make the community a better place in which to live.

Oldest of the more than 60 associations of citizens in the District is Brightwood. It was organized in 1884 and has been active ever since in helping to build up the area between Walter Reed Hospital and the Maryland line.

The organization in the past has been instrumental in getting Sixteenth street extended from Mount Pleasant, in getting the big trunk sewer run through Piney Branch pike, in bringing electricity to the community and in obtaining the fire engine house at 5760 Georgia avenue.

President of the Brightwood Citizens Association for the last 24 years has been Charles W. Ray. His family was living in the Brightwood area years before the Federal Government moved into the District, and when the community was still composed largely of farms and estates.

Fort Slocum, in the Brightwood area, was erected, he says, on his father's property, and Fort Stephens was partly on Ray land. Another District landmark, Emory Methodist Episcopal Church South, was built on property given by his grandfather before the Civil War, he points out.

As in the past, the citizens' association this fall will continue its fight for suffrage in the District and for revision of the tax set-up. The group has long advocated a Federal contribution of 40 per cent toward District expenses, and election of the District Commissioners.

Locally, they hope to obtain a community center for Brightwood this year. Under consideration now is the old Emery mansion, 5759 Georgia avenue, home of the late Matthew Emery, remembered as Washington's last mayor.

A member of the Federation of Citizens Associations, the Brightwood unit meets on the second Friday of each month in the Paul Junior High School, at Eighth and Nicholson streets northwest.

Officers include Ray, who operates a farm in Sandy Spring, Md.; S. A. Swiggett, of 701 Nicholson street northwest, secretary, and Elmer Johnson, of 831 Rittenhouse street northwest, financial secretary.

Next meeting of the association will be on October 11.

11,003 Enrolled in Red Cross To Set New Daily Record

Setting a new daily record with 11,003 enrollments, the Red Cross Roll Call yesterday came within 884 memberships of equaling the total for the same day of the 1939 drive.

Government units, with the largest single day's returns, realized more than one-third of their goal of 86,000. The 9,467 Government workers enrolling yesterday brought the grand total for that division to 31,336—1,557 more than for the same day last year.

Other Roll Call units exceeding the 1939 pace are Utilities, 882 greater; Professional, 224 greater, and Residential, 325 greater. Roll Call workers in the Reconstruction Finance Corporation turned in more memberships in the past three days than during 18 days of 1939, said Maj. Gen. James C. Magee, Government chairman.

David E. McCoy, chairman of the General Business groups, reported 100 per cent enrollment of the employes of Rich's Shoe Store, Addressograph Sales Agency and Garrison Toys & Novelty Co. He also reported the Southwest division, Joseph H. Schmeider chairman, is now leading all Small Business units with 134 enrollments.

National headquarters of the Red Cross announced meanwhile that it has approved a new style knitting bag to meet the demands of thousands of women volunteer workers. The new style bag will have a separate compartment for a purse, mirror and other feminine belongings.

'Heap Big Palaver' Will Attract 400 D. C. Scouts

Nearly 400 Washington cub scouts will participate in their fourth "palaver" at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at Sixteenth and Kennedy streets northwest, Col. S. C. Godfrey, cubbing commissioner, announced yesterday.

Games and contests as well as a treasure hunt will be held during the afternoon and approximately 200 spectators are expected to view the war dance at 5 o'clock.

Campfire stunts and songs are on the program for the evening.

Members of the arrangements committee are Col. Godfrey, W. C. Robbins, William J. Kurtz, H. F. Brownfield, Norman E. Hicks, Bernard P. Donnelly, Ernest F. Moran, Donald W. Sawtelle, Palmer Byrd, Rock M. Kirkham and Willard Jones. In event of rain today the celebration will be held October 12.

At the same time a 30-year-old colored resident of the District lost his life in a highway accident in Prince Georges County.

Victim of the District accident was Miss Mary Lord, 1808 K street northwest. She was crossing that street near her home when she was struck. Driver of the car, police reported, was John C. Rossa, 30, of 838 Jefferson street northwest. She died at Homeopathic Hospital.

Buster Diggs, 727 Twelfth street northeast colored, died shortly after he was taken to Casualty Hospital last night by the Brentwood Rescue Squad. The accident took place near Riverdale, Md.

Other accidents in the Capital yesterday brought serious injury to Mary Schoneberger, 60, of 1221 Sixth street southwest, and to Michael Creese, 55, 631 D street northwest, both pedestrians.

Mrs. Schoneberger was in a critical condition at Casualty Hospital after being struck by a bicycle as she crossed Seventh street at D southwest. Rider of the bicycle was William Rorie, 22, 405 O street southwest, according to police. Mrs. Schoneberger suffered a brain concussion, a skull fracture and severe scalp lacerations.

Creese was hit by an automobile at Eleventh street and New York avenue northwest, and suffered a possible fracture of the left leg. Police said driver of the car that struck him was Michael Cocchario, 806 E street northwest.

Biddle Denies Bridges Charges Over Newspaper

Solicitor General Francis Biddle denied yesterday assertions by Senator Bridges (Republican), of New Hampshire, that Biddle had sought to "destroy" a Chattanooga newspaper because of his financial interest in a competing publication.

"He suggests," Biddle said, "that I was substantially interested in the Chattanooga News and, for financial gain, tried to kill off that newspaper's rival, the Free Press. As usual, the Senator is misinformed.

"In April, 1939, I subscribed to five shares of the preferred stock of the Chattanooga News for $500—a contribution to George Fort Milton's courageous fight to maintain an independent newspaper, which was openly advocating public power, against the power-dominated press and the public utilities. This is the only investment I ever made in the paper."

He said that while he was counsel for the Congressional committee which investigated the Tennessee Valley Authority "we uncovered the subsidizing of the Free Press by the Tennessee Electric Power Co., a Commonwealth & Southern subsidiary."

James Stewart and Rosalind Russell Play 'No Time for Comedy' at Earle

Film Adapted From S. N. Behrman Play; Roxyettes Return In Stage Revue

Substituting for Nelson B. Bell

"NO TIME FOR COMEDY." Warner Brothers picturization of the stage play by S. N. Behrman, adapted to the screen by Julius and Philip Epstein, costarring James Stewart and Rosalind, with Charles Ruggles, Genevieve Tobin, Louise Travers, Allyn Joslyn, Clarence Kolb, Robert Greig, J. M. Kerrigan, Lawrence Grossmith, Robert O'Connor, Herbert Haywood, Frank Faylen, James Burke, Edgar Dearing and Herbert Anderson. Directed by William Keighley. At the Earle Theater.

Like the Hyde Park Roosevelts, and the Oyster Bay Roosevelts, the screen's "No Time for Comedy" has one thing in common with the stage play, "No Time for Comedy." A name. That's about the only link between the Earle's new film and the S. N. Behrman original, in which Katharine Cornell shone so brightly.

It is obvious that the always astute Warners have sought to democratize Mr. Behrman's sleek comedy, a slender play whose sole raison d'etre was its polished glitter. With James Stewart as the troubled playwright, they have fabricated a sort of "Mr. Smith Goes to Broadway," with Rosalind Russell bringing a brassy sheen to the once-fascinating role of the actress-wife. As a sort of sop to those wretched people who bother to see stage plays and then go shooting off their mouths on what the film carbons left out, the producers have seen fit to include a pathetic little struggle having some vague connection with the thought that our's is "No Time for Comedy."

The first third of the film—40 minutes—we get the background of what happened before the Behrman battle of wits began. We learn that Gaylord Esterbrook was a bumpkin genius, a chap who wrote sophisticated blatherish though a simple Boy Scout uniform covered his childish heart. He comes to New York to see his play produced, captures the love of the great star, insists on invading the subways and runs after the big, long, fire engines. In other words, Messrs. Deeds and Smith all over again.

Then we come to married life and settle back comfortably, for harmless as was what went before, we know that here the play really begins. But no. The Epstein brothers, whose previous scripting assignments have included the "Four Daughters" cavalcade, have decided that we mustn't get too involved in mere thoughts. To be sure, there is still another woman, but she's not the suave Margalo Gilmore, she's a simpering Genevieve Tobin.

One of the interesting features of the Epsteins' adaptation of this play is that the original touches—and lines—which they have retained are the film's bright spots. For instance, you'll enjoy Charles Ruggles' remarks about his wife's penchant for bringing out latent talents: "She's a Lorelei with an intellectual patter." Or Louise Beavers' dulled but still amusing characterization of the maid Gee Gee James originally played so delightfully.

Viewed as a film, "No Time for Comedy" is simply mediocre. But viewed as an adaptation of an S. N. Behrman original, evidently what is intended since title and occasional ideas are retained, "No Time for Comedy" is deeply disappointing.

James Stewart and Miss Russell are quite as they usually are. It's fine to see Charlie Ruggles back again in so different a role and the balance of the cast serves its purpose.

The Earle revue opens with the Roxyettes in military precision and anyone familiar with these maids knows how martial they can be when they've a mind to. Charles Career offers his cocktail juggling for a starter and Ed Rocker follows with some meaty baritoning. His offerings include "Stout Hearted Men" and the reliable "Old Man River," both of which go over neatly.

After a restful parasol number by the Roxyettes, Grace and Nikko are on, starting all over again those equalms which enter the mind of all variety hall followers since the Hartmans embarked on their mad jaunts: "Will they dance it straight or are they going to hoke it?" The more versed one is in such matters, the quicker one catches on that Grace and Nikko are of the hoke variety, for which praise be.

as the slightly baffled and considerably bewildered playwright and his shrewdly clear-visioned young wife, in the Warner Brothers' picturization of the S. N. Behrman stage play, now on the screen at the Earle Theater. These are the roles created on the boards by Laurence Olivier and Katharine Cornell

Miss Durbin Scores Another Hit in "Spring Parade", Keith's

"SPRING PARADE." Universal picturization of an original story by Ernest Marischka, adapted to the screen by Bruce Manning and Felix Jackson, starring Deanna Durbin, with Robert Cummings, Mischa Auer, Henry Stephenson, S. Z. Sakall, Butch and Buddy, Walter Catlett, Anna Gwynne, Allyn Joslyn, Peggy Moran, Reginald Denny, Franklin Pangborn, Ed Gargan, Wade Boteler and Samuel S. Hinds. Music by Robert Stolz, Johann Strauss and Charles Previn. Lyrics by Gus Kahn. Directed by Henry Koster and produced by Joe Pasternak. Reviewed Friday afternoon. At RKO-Keith's Theater.

It's April in October, old Vienna's on Fifteenth street and Deanna Durbin's 14 again! Pardon the incoherency, but "Spring Parade" is the most beautiful and heart-lifting picture of the season and young Deanna Durbin is better than she's been since she first burst upon the celluloid universe.

No single touch of the serious impinges in "Spring Parade." It's all up in a rosy cloud, light as a pastry, right out of another world.

Deanna's an apple-cheeked little peasant of the Austrian Tyrol. Mighty pretty, but she knows how to drive a hard bargain. It's this trait that brings her to Vienna, she and her 15 petticoats. She wagers the family goat on her ability to dance the czardas, wins her bet but is so dizzy that she drops down on a load of hay for a nap; presto! when she wakes up she's practically in Vienna, the city of her dreams, where a gypsy told her she will find her fortune.

All Lightness and Gayety

From here, everything sails. Deanna's a helper in a bijou pastry shop, falls in love with a handsome drummer in a military band. The drummer's also a composer and Deanna writes a note about his work, puts it into one of the Emperor's pastries. This bit of publicity naivete brings down the whole force of the Austrian secret police, the pastry shop is closed and its chubby owner is whisked away in the Viennese paddy wagon, pitifully shouting, "I didn't did it."

All this conveys no idea of the lightness, flash and gayety of the picture's tissue, the legend-like tone of its music and movement. Every sequence, setting and character is in tune. Director Henry Koster has achieved something perilously near to perfection.

The tunes all belong in the hit category, especially "It's Foolish, But It's Fun." There's also "Waltzing in the Clouds," "When April Sings" and a Strauss arrangement called "Blue Danube Dream."

The little Durbin looks unbelievably young (12 or 14) in her peasant costume with unpowdered nose. Here's a hint for the youngsters to tie hankies over their heads and leave off the war paint. Her acting is a delight, especially as she's permitted to be a bit of a saucebox as well as a sugar-pie. And it's a pleasure to hear her in just light and lovely lyrics with the grand operatics omitted.

Support Is Excellent

One of the finest of Hollywood's elder actors, S. Z. Sakall, figures right up with Deanna in the acting honors. His picture of the baker is completely lovable and laughable. Robert Cummings was an excellent choice to play the frisky young drummer lad who lifted Deanna's heart. But everyone was good, especially Mischa Auer, as a Tyrol peasant; Henry Stephenson, as the old Emperor Francis Joseph, and Anne Gwynne, as the Viennese flirt. In a special class are Butch and Buddy, a pair of small boys who play the bakers' apprentices.

"Spring Parade" is the fabled atmosphere of Vienna translated into a story and a song. Vienna by moonlight, Vienna beauties, rushing to their windows to flirt with the passing Emperor's guards; wine gardens, a ball in the palace of the Hapsburgs. It's all in the celluloid. Could there ever have been such a city? History says there was.

MARY HARRIS.

'Foreign Correspondent' Chases Story Second Week at Palace

Balancing its revelations of Nazi methods of espionage and the destructive operations of the Fifth Column in European countries not yet at war with high flights of thrilling adventure designed strictly for entertainment, as opposed to "propaganda," "Foreign Correspondent" continues into a second week at Loew's Palace, with capacity audiences still paying tribute to Alfred Hitchcock's extraordinary skill as a director.

"Foreign Correspondent," as everybody must know by now, started out to be Walter Wanger's translation into celluloid of Vincent Sheean's book, "Personal History"—a practically impossible talk, world conditions being what they are. What Mr. Hitchcock evolved from the idea is a "cops and robbers" yarn that carries a young American newspaper reporter to Europe to run down the biggest story of the day. He runs down a tremendous portion of personal risk while trying to do the same to an international kidnaping case that soon gets him head-over-heels in love with the chief plotter's daughter.

Action Never Lags

Mr. Hitchcock has made his case against Hitlerites by subordinating his timely preachments to elements of screen diversion that long have been recognized as infallible. Into his recipe for pleasing audiences he has tossed a quick succession of minor climaxes, leading to a final catastrophe at sea that is a killer-diller; frequent flashes of quick and spontaneous comedy and the trickeries of surprise and suspense. What has been tritely called the "Hitchcock touch" would seem to be merely an uncanny ability to comprehend why it is that people go to motion picture theaters. Entertainment is Hitchcock's primary objective and he is a past master in the art of achieving it.

This is particularly true in the case of "Foreign Correspondent." Were the direction less skillful and versatile, flaws in the script would stand out like two hands of sore thumbs. The titular character's immuity from harm in the windmill scenes is pretty hard to take and the potential murderer's plunge out of a high tower to his own death is a bit of sheer and unadulterated claptrap. Not all of the characters are too handsomely drawn, either.

Tried But Not True

Although he plays it smoothly and heroically, Joel McCrea's title part will not roar down through the ages as the perfect portrait of the sagacious American newspaper man. He lives just a shade too charmed a life. In the foremost supporting roles, Herbert Marshall, as his country's arch-plotter, and George Sanders, one of his earlier associates, now on the other side, offer exceptionally able and effective characterizations. Laraine Day, as the girl in the case, contributes a portrayal about which one may be as enthusiastic as she was over her role, when a recent visitor in Washington. Albert Basserman, Robert Benchley, Edmund Gwenn, Harry Devenport and Eduardo Ciannelli are other important members of the large and efficient cast.

The supplementary features of the bill, including a FitzPatrick Technicolor tour of the National Capital, continued into the second week with the major attraction.

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, Oct. 4.

SIDNEY KINGSLEY and Madge Evans, his bride, were among the writers and actors who went to Hyde Park to attend Eleanor Roosevelt's picnic. After they had been served hamburgers, discussed the campaign with their colleagues and met the Roosevelts, they made their farewells and started to drive back to New York . . . A few miles from Hyde Park a motorcycle cop halted their car, which Miss Evans was driving, and notified her of a traffic violation. He then instructed her to follow him, to the home of the justice of the peace . . . "That's all right," Kingsley whispered to his bride, "because when we get there, we'll tell the judge we've just been to Hyde Park to see the President and Mrs. Roosevelt and he'll let us off" . . . The judge fined them $5, and they paid, without a word. For Kingsley had noticed, on the judge's car, a Willkie placard.

ARRANGEMENTS have been completed for a series of Sunday night broadcasts, sponsored by the United States Government, over all the hookups. The broadcasts will feature four commentators—Wythe Williams, Walter Winchell, Elmer Davis and H. V. Kaltenborn—each of whom, for 6 minutes, will report to the Nation exactly what the Government has accomplished for national defense during the preceding week. Their reports will be in four classifications: Army, Navy, Air and Industry. Winchell will report for Navy . . . On the Friday before each broadcast the commentators will receive their reports from the Government division assigned him. Each will be free to make his own analysis and criticism, unhampered by any censorship.

RADU IRIMESCO, Rumania's Minister to this country, is being recalled to Bucharest, but plans to remain in this country. His wife is American . . . King Carol is having difficulty obtaining permission to come to the U. S. A., because of the moral-turpitude question. That's why he and Magda Lupescu are expected to go to Canada, where he owns some estates . . . Ed Wynn's nervousness at the premiere of his show was obvious to all the reviewers. He was nervous because his mother, who never has missed a Wynn premiere, became ill shortly before the curtain went up and so was unable to attend . . . Ella Logan will appear in the new Finklehoffe-Monks musical, which will star Max Baer.

WHEN WILLIAM SAROYAN wrote "Inhale and Exhale," he submitted a 400,000-word manuscript to Random House, his publishers. They eliminated more than 150,000 words, and published the book . . . Saroyan's contract gave Random House an option on his next book—and they exercised that option, requesting that he submit his manuscript . . . The author submitted the 150,000 words cut from "Inhale and Exhale," and the publishers refused to accept it. The author, therefore, delivered this manuscript to Harcourt, Brace, which published it as "Little Children." And this book sold as many copies as did "Inhale and Exhale," from which it had been cut.

MRS. DONALD OGDEN STEWART visited the M-G-M lot to see the filming of "Escape," the anti-Nazi film which will star Norma Shearer. On the set she saw Conrad Veidt, whom she last had seen in Berlin in 1922, when she was Ella Winter, the college student . . . At that time Veidt was the toast of Berlin, for he was the great young lover of Germany's stage and screen . . . "Ah, Ella," were Veidt's first words to Mrs. Stewart, "they were so beautiful, those days of our youth that now are dead" . . . Then he returned to take his place before the camera, to have Norma Shearer shriek, before shooting him: "Yes, I'm going to leave you, leave you—for a younger man."

WHEN WARNER BROS. made "Knute Rockne—All-American," they needed the services of a host of football players. Instead of sending to South Bend, for Notre Dame men, they hired the University of Southern California team—Notre Dame's rival . . . Henry Youngman, the comic, now is performing at the Brighton Theater. He lives nearby, in Brighton Beach, but habit is so strong that after his show he drives to Lindy's, for the late-shift there, and then goes home to Brighton . . . Mayor LaGuardia's petitions to reform the city government by abolishing the sheriff, registrar and other county offices will fail for the second successive year. More than 30 volumes of objections to those petitions have been entered . . . Dick Durham is working as secretary of the Democratic National Committee, in place of the resigned Chip Robert, until the National Committee meets after election.

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, Oct. 4 (INS).—I can't bring myself to believe that Shirley Temple's visit to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studio the other day was just an idle stroll around the lot. Of course, Shirley has been to several studios just making the rounds and watching other stars work. But I happen to know M-G-M has been talking business with the Orsatti boys, who represent the golden Temple child, about a contract. The only stipulation Mrs. Temple makes—and very wisely I think—is that Shirley will never make more than two pictures a year—preferably one.

PARSONS

It's just a stray thought and nobody even whispered it to me—but oh, what a hit Shirley and Mickey Rooney would be teamed in a musical! Right now Shirley is attending the Westlake School for Girls and is enjoying her studies. But once a trouper, always a trouper and I'll never believe she doesn't miss her movie work. In the meantime, she's scheduled for a radio appearance in "The Littlest Rebel," one of her most successful movies.

Since Dean Jagger and I made that trip to New York together (don't get excited—it was for the Kate Smith broadcast) I've been very interested in his career. He is such a definite type and made such a vivid impression in "Brigham Young" I felt that it might be difficult for Twentieth Century-Fox to cast him. But thank goodness, he's not going to be typed in biographies, for just today Darryl Zanuck told me that he has bought "Wild Geese Calling," the popular best seller by Stewart Edward White, for his new star. As the lumberman-hero, Dean will once again conquer the great outdoors in typical he-man style. P. S. To Darryl: He looked mighty nifty in a dinner jacket at the Stork Club, too.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: The girl Herbie Kaye married is Betty Rinehart from Dallas. She owns several oil wells. Herbie met her after his divorce from Dorothy Lamour when his band was playing in Texas; the Reginald Gardiner-Mary Parker romance is so warm; Wayne Morris' current heart-throb is Pat Stewart and he seems to have gotten Bubbles Schinasi out of his system; Maria Jontez, Franchot Tone's honey for awhile, at the Brown Derby with Ivan Lebedeff; Nan Grey's very youthful mother will shortly become the bride of Leon Lord, local stage producer; Wesley Ruggles and his bride, Marcel Rogez, met Arline Judge at Eddie Hillman's party honoring the Irving Netchers. Arline thanked Marcel for being so kind to little Wes and what might have been a strained situation was saved.

Andre Charlot, who gave Mrs. Hillman (Lady June Inverclyde) her first chance on the stage, talked about how much he enjoyed putting on the revue here with Hollywood talent; had tea with Gracie Allen and George Burns and they had to rush home to rehearse their lines for the Charlot revue. Gracie and I are playing a gin-rummy tournament all by ourselves; talk in Hollywood is that Zorina and her bridegroom, George Balanchine, are not seeing eye to eye.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

Capitol Flash!

At 8:45 this morning, Loew's Capitol will open its doors and the first showing of Mickey Rooney and Judy Garland in "Strike Up the Band" will begin at 9 a. m.

The first 500 patrons who enter the Capitol this moring will each be given a handsome 9x12 color photograph of Mickey Rooney. This special picture has been reproduced from one of his most recent photographs.

Five stage shows will be presented today at the Capitol, and "Strike Up the Band" will be unreeled six times.

In Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Oct. 4.

Bruce Manning, who's written six of Deanna Durbin's pictures (three in collaboration with Felix Jackson), has now been made a producer at Universal. Durbin's record has never been beaten—eight straight successes. But as Bruce says, Deanna's unique. She has the same quality Mary Pickford had. She's a kid one minute, a woman the next. She's all things to all people. And no matter what you write, she makes it sound as if she had thought of it on the spur of the moment. Bruce says Joe Pasternak is like a quarterback. He calls the plays, the whole gang plays the game. And the thing you like most about Bruce is that he says, "I don't deserve any credit, because there's only one Deanna Durbin."

HOPPER

No one can deny that Bob Montgomery is one of the most patriotic actors in the industry, and a great credit to it. He's now given his home in Connecticut over to the former Mrs. Laurence Olivier and her child, and Mrs. Emlyn Williams and their two children for the duration of the war.

Barbara Stanwyck turns the tables and asks the fans for pictures. Barbara is making up a scrapbook and needs pictures of herself in three old movies: "Ladies of Leisure," "Baby Face" and "Mexicali Rose." So if you've got 'em, send 'em—not to me, please, but to Barbara.

Hedy Lamarr tried on 25 nightgowns before finding one suitable for a Soviet sister. And what do you think it's made of? Burlap. And that is her nuptial gown when she becomes Mrs. Clark ("Comrade X") Gable. And the funny part of it is, Hedy doesn't wear nighties. She prefers pajamas.

Bill Fields tells the story about three men who had just bought a theater. One said, "We want to make the place look classy—let's cover the seats with leather." Another spoke up and said, "I think velvet would look better." The third said, "Listen: First we get good pictures, then we cover the seats with customers—and who cares what they're sitting on?"

Producer Irving Asher left a typical Wodehouse "Jeeves" butler named Kirby in his English home, and cabled him recently, "Has house been bombed yet?" Reply came back: "We are aware of activity in the vicinity. Kirby."

Alec Templeton, the blind pianist, has been taking rhumba lessons at Arthur Murray's Chicago studios. Teacher there says Alec has the most accurate sense of rhythm of any of their students.

My radio sponsors will be happy to hear that Hollywood has discovered a new energy builder-upper from lemons. Eddie Robinson and wife, Gladys, started it. you soak 20 raisins in the juice of 2 lemons overnight. Next morning eat the raisins and drink the lemon juice. And if it doesn't pep you up, you'd better see your local doctor—for there's something the matter with you.

When Ann Sothern and George Murphy went to the County Fair the other day, Ann fell for a pair of Angora bunnies, bought them, and likes to see anything but rabbits, come spring.

Requests are pouring into Metro for information on how to do the La Conga dance as done by Garland and Rooney in "Strike Up the Band." I suggest they charge 10 cents a lesson by mail and give the money to the Red Cross.

Medical Preparedness

National Institute of Health Fights a Life-Saving Battle

This is the first in a series of picture-stories showing the part medical science is playing in National defense.

By Gerald G. Gross
Post Staff Writer

Science, in the service of Mars, has stepped up the efficiency of killing and disfiguring human beings since the first World War.

But science, too, has made long strides in keeping human beings healthy and, once they are laid horizontal by disease, putting them back on their feet, a tour through the National Institute of Health reveals.

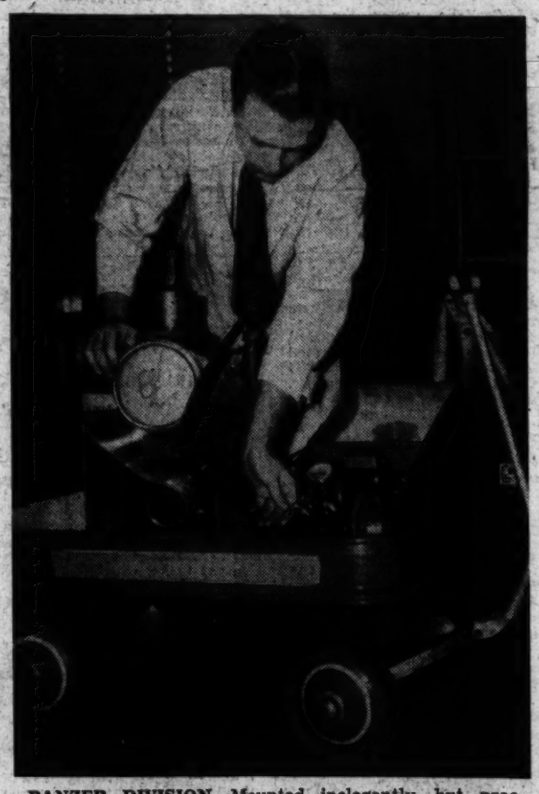
As every seasoned soldier knows, the fighting man's worst enemy is not the fellow wearing the wrong uniform, but bugs. Bugs which they can see—and feel—and bugs (doctors call them viruses) which can't be seen even under a strong microscope. Bugs that produce influenza, pneumonia, syphilis, gonorrhea, measles, malaria, yellow fever, typhus, meningitis, and the host of other disabilities which have laid whole armies low.

To put these microbes in their place, to hold their depredations down to the minimum, American scientists are now engaged in a momentous offensive. Germ-fighting has been traditionally an international responsibility, recognizing no political boundaries, but the wars in Europe and Asia and Africa have changed that. Belligerents have put the lid on medical, as well as military, intelligence. In addition, the hijacking and threatened hijacking of small countries by big ones, and the North Atlantic blockade have cut off or reduced shipments of some medical needs, notably opium and quinine, forcing the Western Hemisphere's men of science to depend more than ever before upon their own ingenuity and industry.

WHERE PERSEVERANCE COUNTS—James Robinson, working under supervision of Dr. Lyndon F. Small, head of National Institute of Health investigations to find substitutes for morphine and quinine, determines the melting point of a newly synthesized compound. Hundreds of chemical mixtures have been tried but so far the ideal replacement has not been achieved in either case. Reason for the laborious research: Morphine, though indispensable in medicine, has the bad feature of being habit-forming and, besides, our supply of opium, from which it is derived, is in danger of being cut off because of the war. Chaotic conditions in the South Pacific are jeopardizing quinine exports from the Netherlands' East Indies, chief source of this antimaleria weapon

Here at the National Institute of Health, research arm of the United States Public Health Service, activity of an intensity unprecedented in peacetime is under way. Its objective is to safeguard the health of our civilian and military populations.

More spectacular, perhaps, is the development of automatically-controlled bombing planes, long-range cannon and diabolically stealthy poison gases, but none of these compares in importance with instruments of defense which will keep fighting men perpendicular and production workers on the home front at their jobs. A sure preventative against pneumonia would return bigger profits, in a long war, than any "secret weapon" conceivable. An effective treatment for typhus fever might mean the difference between victory and defeat.



PANZER DIVISION—Mounted inelegantly—but practically—on a child's coaster wagon so that it may be easily transported wherever needed, this bacteria-sampling device has taken on new importance since the preparedness program began. Roy Dom, of the industrial hygiene division, National Institute of Health, shows how the instrument works: The air is sucked through a tube and whatever bacteria are present are trapped on the agar lining of a dish sealed inside the intake cup, like flies on flypaper

TRAPPING DISEASE—A close-up of the agar-lined dish in the bacteria sampler where air-borne germs are captured. The quantity of bacteria of one or more kinds apprehended in the dish will indicate in what proportions they are present in the room or building being sampled. Army barracks, airplane plants and research laboratories, as well as schools, theaters and other places where large numbers of persons are concentrated, are fit subjects for bacteria sampling as a precaution against the spread of infections

Medical schools, public and private laboratories, research foundations large and small, and even private physicians moved by the urge to investigate have accepted the challenge flung at them by the bugs of disaster. No new problems are the prevention, diagnosis and treatment of diseases, but with this Nation girding for self-defense, great impetus has been given the drive for health.

Perhaps in no other spot on earth is there to be found now a laboratory holding forth such hope to mankind as Uncle Sam's test-tube colony at Twenty-fifth and E streets northwest—the National Institute of Health.

Following articles will describe activities being carried on there, as well as at the institute's Bethesda station and in the field, in connection with the defense program.

DOWN THE WAYS slips the S. S. President Hayes, third vessel of a series of seven cargo-passenger ships to enlarge the merchant marine

The American Presidents liner President Hayes was launched at private ceremonies yesterday at the Newport News (Va.) Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co.'s plant with Mrs. Cordell Hull, wife of the Secretary of State, as sponsor.

Regulations imposed by the Navy permitted only a small party of official guests to enter the yard to witness the launching.

William Gibbs McAdoo, chairman of the board of the line and former Secretary of the Treasury, was present for the ceremonies, as were Rear Admiral Emory Land, chairman of the United States Maritime Commission; Representative S. Otis Bland, chairman of the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, and Mrs. Bland; Commissioner Thomas B. Woodward, of the Maritime Commission, and Mrs. Woodward.

McAdoo inspected the President Jackson and President Monroe, first two of the seven C-3 cargo-passenger steamers which the shipyard here is building for the line's round-the-world service.

Mrs. Hull was dressed in black and wore a shoulder corsage of orchids. Mrs. Paul Hayes, of Staunton, Mrs. Hull's niece, was her matron of honor, and Miss Edith Wright, daughter of a former United States Ambassador to Cuba, maid of honor.

The big orange hull was given the usual christening—a bottle of champagne across the prow. Mrs. Hull swung calmly and unhurriedly and as the bottle crashed and foam spattered against the vessel's side, the ship began to move slowly down the greased runway into the river.

The four remaining vessels the yard is building for the President Lines are the Presidents Garfield, Adams, Van Buren and Polk, whose keels were laid in February, June, August and October, respectively.

The vessels have an overall length of 491 feet with a 69-foot beam and a 42-foot depth, draft of 26 feet, and displacement of 16,190 long tons.

Zivic Decisions Armstrong for Welter Title

Welterweight Champ Loses Bloody Fight

Pittsburgher Upsets Champion in Garden As 11,000 Fans Yell At Knockdown Fracas

By International News Service

New York, N. Y., Oct. 4.—Fritzie Zivic, of Pittsburgh, tonight won the welterweight championship from Hammerin' Henry Armstrong, scoring a unanimous decision in a bruising 15-round battle which found the game little Negro lying on the floor as the bell rang to end the fight.

Bleeding from both eyes and hardly able to see, Armstrong barely stood up in the final three rounds as Zivic danced around shooting hard rights and lefts to Henry's bloody brow.

Passing on like the game champion he was, Armstrong, one of the greatest modern day fighters, kept boring in until the last three seconds when Zivic shot over a sharp right cross to the jaw which felled the dusky fighter. Almost simultaneous with Armstrong's fall to the canvas was the bell which put an end to the gory proceedings. Referee Arthur Donovan merely stepped in and held Zivic back and was not able to start a count.

Thrilling Climax to Career

It was a thrilling climax to the long pugilistic career of the veteran Pittsburgher who comes from a family of fighters. In beating Armstrong, he triumphed over a battler that at one time held three crowns and entered the ring tonight a 3-to-1 favorite.

The battle started off slowly with both fighters getting into a crouch and shooting short punches to the head and body. Zivic was the more aggressive in the first two rounds and put a little welt over Armstrong's right eye.

Although Armstrong, who was making the twentieth defense of his title, came back strongly, winning the third, fourth and fifth cantos, the Pittsburgher kept working away at the swelled eye of his opponent, a strategy which eventually won him the fight and the crown.

Armstrong's best round was the eighth when he hit Zivic a couple of stiff rights to the jaw. This made the new titleholder hold on, but after that he lost his steam and was unable to keep up with the tricky Zivic.

Crowd on Its Feet

A crowd of 12,061, which paid $29,212 to see the championship fracas, was on its feet when the end came, alternately rooting for Zivic and cheering for the gameness of the Negro whirlwind.

For Zivic it was a double victory. Some years back, before Armstrong won the title, he knocked out Zivic's brother, Eddie, in the fourth round of a scheduled ten-round engagement.

Three years ago, Zivic, a family man with two children took pneumonia and was put under an oxygen tent for five days. Attending physicians gave him little chance to live and predicted that if he did pull through the siege he would never be able to fight again. He becomes the second current titleholder from Pittsburgh, also light heavyweight champion Billy Conn's home town. Zivic is the youngest and last of five fighting brothers, who have crawled through the ropes since 1920 in an effort to capture a title.

Fritzie was the first of the brothers to earn a title shot and naturally the first ever to win a coveted crown.

Referee Donovan and one judge gave eight rounds to Fritize and seven to the ex-champion and the other judge gave Zivic eight rounds, Armstrong five and called two even.

In the dressing room after the battle, Armstrong announced he would not fight again for four months. He said he would give his cuts a chance to heal before asking for a return engagement.

Armstrong weighed 142½ pounds and Zivic 145.

Louisville Rally Beats Newark, 5-4

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 4.—In a thrilling ninth-inning rally, the Louisville Colnels defeated the Newark Bears, 5 to 4, in the third game of the "little World Series" at Parkway Field tonight. The Bears had taken the two previous games.

The Colonels won by a four-run splurge in the final inning when they seemed hopelessly beaten. Trailing, 4 to 1, going into the last half of the ninth, Louisville started the rampage with Woody Williams' single. Williams took second on an error, then Lewis singled and Jordan, batting for Pitcher Tex Hughson, singled. Campbell was safe on an attempted sacrifice, Williams and Lewis scoring.

Chet Morgan, center fielder, then produced the victory with a single, scoring Jordan and Campbell.

One of the Bears' four runs came on a homer by Third Baseman Alex Kampouris in the sixth inning. The ball cleared the right-field fence, 345 feet away.

Newark used two pitchers in the fourth, trying vainly to stem the Colonel tide. Steve Peek had gone the route until then, but was replaced by Steve Branch. As the bombardment continued, Branch gave way to Johnnie Johnson, who tossed the ball that Morgan rapped for his winning single to center.

The attendance was 7,114.

Georgetown Runs Victory Streak to 18

Hilltop Eleven Scores in First And Third Periods; Alternate 2 Teams

By Jack Munhall

Post Staff Writer

Philadelphia, Oct. 4.—Gaining momentum with each start, Georgetown University's powerful and well-balanced grid forces crushed Temple University, 14-0, in the presence of 20,000 fans here tonight to complete their eighteenth game without a setback.

The Hoyas, alternating two entirely different teams with almost equal success although the regulars rushed over both touchdowns, tallied singly in the first and third periods, meantime holding the opposition scoreless for the sixth successive game.

Post-game fighting for the Temple goal posts broke out several times as more enthusiastic Georgetown fans among a surprisingly large Hoya contingent of about 2,500 poured out onto the field and were met by twice their number of Owl defenders.

Absence of adequate police protection added to the danger of serious trouble, but at no time did the fracas assume proportions of a riot.

Dousing of the stadium lights as soon as the exit of the departing customers made it possible took most of the fight out of both belligerent parties.

Hoyas Show Power

Sheer power, bulwarked by a staunch defense and some phenomenal punting fetched Jack Hagerty's Hilltoppers their second triumph of the 1940 season and produced Temple's first current loss. Previously the Hoyas had routed Roanoke, 66-0 and Temple had steamrollered Muhlenburg, 67-4, to become two of the highest-scoring elevens in the country.

Generating the principal power for the Georgetown victory was jarrin' Jim Castiglia, 200-pound senior fullback, who was playing perhaps the finest game of his career. Castiglia scored the first G. U. touchdown on a 17-yard buck over his own right guard culminating a 60-yard sustained march.

Twin kicking heroes for the Hoyas were First-string End Mike Kopcik and Reserve Quarterback Lou Falcone who averaged 43 yards from the line of scrimmage. Kopcik got away one sterling boot that traveled 54 yards and was downed on the Temple six in the first period. And then in the third period the 195-pound end, an All-America sophomore choice last season, exceeded that magnificent effort with one that covered 66 yards and was touched dead on the Owls' two. On both occasions the ball was downed by Augie Lio, stellar Georgetown guard, who placekicked both extra points.

Leaders of the two Hoya forward walls that stopped Temple's vaunted running attack cold and harrassed the Owls' fine passer, Andy Tomasic, were Kopcik and Lio and two centers, Al Matuza and Jim Reichey and tackles Earl Fullilove and Al Blozis. Other G. U. linesmen also rendered fine work but these stood out.

Ghecas Scores

Georgetown's second touchdown, coming midway of the third period, was tallied on a 18-yard end run by fleet Lou Ghecas on a sneak

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 4 (U.P.).—Wofford, scoring in each period except the first, beat Oglethorpe's football team, 26-14, today. Oglethorpe jumped into the lead with a first-period touchdown. The score at the half was 7-7.

G. W. Upsets Manhattan by 21-18 Count

Underdog D. C. Eleven Staves Off Late Rush in New York

Special Dispatch to The Post

New York, Oct. 4.—The football game that almost everybody except a few well-informed experts had doped as a set-up for Manhattan College at the Polo Grounds against George Washington tonight ended up as a thriller in which each team scored a touchdown in the last seven seconds of play and Manhattan lost by the margin of three failures to convert points after touchdown—George Washington, 21; Manhattan, 18.

In the second half the lighter Manhattan team, behind, 14-0, got moving and the Colonials' offensive stalled—for a while. Teddy Mazur scored on a pass from John Supulski early in the half, and Dave Farabaugh went over for a score in the last period at the end of a 75-yard Manhattan advance featured by Supulski's 31-yard pass to Don Binder and Ed Wysocki's 16-yard run, but both times Frank Gnup's kicks for the point missed the uprights, leaving the score 14-12, with seven minutes to go.

The Real Wallop

The real wallop of the game, however, came as the second hand of the clock was hitching up to the end of the last minute. At that point, after a series of short Colonial gains, Fedora went through his right tackle, where the Washington forwards had blasted a hole, and raced 35 yards for a touchdown. Again Snyder's accurate toe added a point, and with the score 21-12 it seemed silly to hold another kickoff.

They started to turn the lights out as the teams lined up for the kickoff with five seconds to go. But Supulski took Monclovitch's kickoff, passed it to Mazur, and Mazur ran 72 yards along the left side of the field for the final touchdown—the second touchdown in seven seconds of play. Mazur's kick was blocked and the game ended 21-18.

Got First Blood

George Washington's surprise attack caught the Manhattan College defense unawares and drew first blood in their football game at the Polo Grounds tonight and before the first half was over the Manhattan rooters' fond hopes that this game was going to be a set-up had been dashed and the visitors had a 14-0 lead.

Manhattan's passing attack, so effective last week against St. Bonaventure, broke up on the rocks of the Colonials' powerful defense and their ground attack was equally ineffectual, while some fine, fast running by Walt Fedora and Ken Batson had given the visitors their two-touchdown lead at the half, supplemented by two fine conversion kicks by Dan Snyder.

U. of Detroit Defeats Catholic Eleven, 13-0

19,352 See Pass and Intercepted Lateral Score for Titans as Cardinals Star on Offensive

By a Staff Correspondent

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 4.—Catholic University's first gridiron adventure of 1940 culminated tonight in a 13-0 beating at the hands of University of Detroit before a whooping native crowd of 19,352.

Eager Detroit hands reached into the night air to pull down two passes that produced last-half touchdowns for the Titans. One of the passes was a third-quarter lateral launched by Catholic U. and intercepted by End Howard Keating, who streaked 47 yards to the goal. In the fourth period a last-down pass from Jack McLaughlin to Jack Biringer carried 3 yards across the goal line.

For 41 minutes a C. U. team impotent on the attack staved off the charges of the Titans chiefly by the efforts of little Pete Sachon, 168-pound quarterback, whose booming punts set Detroit back on its collective heels. Three times Sachon hoisted the ball down field for more than 60 yards, once attaining a 67-yard kick. Sachon was a 60-minute player tonight and it was he who made one of C. U.'s only two forays into Detroit territory. He scampered 21 yards around end on a reverse play to the Detroit 29 as the first half faded, but at that point the C. U. passing game bogged down.

Despite 17 first downs to the Cardinals' three, Detroit needed its lateral pass interception to score one of its two touchdowns. C. U. netted only 46 yards-at rushing the ball, to Detroit's 185, and completed only five of its ten passes, while Detroit was making good 10 of 17.

Coach Gus Dorais tested the strength of the invading Cardinals with his second team at the outset, but after his shock troops muffed a scoring chance midway of the first quarter, he shuttled his regulars into the fray.

Detroit's starting team moved down to the C. U. 25-yard line five minutes after the opening whistle, propelled chiefly by a 40-yard pass from Piper to Harrison, who made a leaping catch of the ball. Brendon Stynes, C. U.'s sophomore end, turned back the advance when he broke through to slam Piper for an 8-yard loss on a play at the C. U. flank.

Pete Sachon got off the first of his superb punts at that point—a 64-yard boot from the scrimmage line that set Detroit back on its heels again, but the Titans charged back with the regulars taking charge. Chesquiere ran right tackle for 23 yards and then passed to Biringer for 20 more, but the Cardinals knocked down Ghesquiere's passes and forced the Titans to punt.

Catholic U's. running game was ineffective and again Sachon was forced to punt, getting off a 55-yard boot to the Detroit 30 as the quarter ended.

Take It From Baker: End Is Tomorrow

(See Shirley Povich's World Series Story on Page 1.)

Associated Press Sports Writer.

Detroit, Oct. 4.—The first blast of defiance swept into the World Series today as Del Baker, manager of the conquering Detroit Tigers, led the cheering section in celebration of his club's 7-to-4 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Baker, for the first time, expressed confidence in his "nine silent old men" to belt the Reds out in the next two games.

"We hope to wind it up by Sunday," the smiling and usually reserved Baker said. "If we can hit, we can beat 'em. If their pitchers stop us, that will be something else again, but I don't think they will.

"We don't want to go back to Cincinnati.

"Does anybody here want to go back to Cincinnati?

"Hell, no," he yelled.

Walter O. (Spike) Briggs, jr., son of the owner of the Detroit club, shouldered his way into Baker's cage in a corner of the clubhouse to offer his congratulations. Then the phone rang. It was the elder Briggs, confined to a wheelchair by a recent illness, calling his manager.

"Hello, Mr. Briggs, bless your soul," shouted Baker. "I didn't think that you were out. We've got a great chance now to win. Those old men of mine certainly got a few base hits out of their system."

Louis (Bobo) Newsom, whose father will be buried in Hartsville, S. C., tomorrow, led the procession of victorious Tigers into the dressing room. Then followed Ralph (Red) Kress, peppery Tiger coach, bearing an armload of bats.

WASHINGTON, OCT. 5, 1940

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Detroit, Oct. 4.—Until this afternoon, the left field fences in this World Series were probably beginning to look like a mirage to the right-handed hitters of the Detroit batting order. In the two games at Cincinnati, with the "328-feet" sign beckoning chip-shot homers, the Tigers didn't hit even one pitch against the fence.

POVICH

But home run talents, like truth, murder and Frankie Crosetti, will out. Today's slugging display by the Tigers was the first demonstration of the pre-World Series form. The Tigers were supposed to batter their way to victory and that's what they did.

Detroit hitting won that first game, but it wasn't typical Detroit hitting. The five-runs they made in that second inning against Paul Derringer stemmed from the thrusts of the rapiers, not the blows of the bludgeons the Tigers are supposed to swing. All five of their hits of the inning were singles.

Derringer was supposed to be the prime pitching bet of the Cincinnati club in the series, as Manager Bill McKechnie indicated when he gave him the first-game job in preference to Bucky Walters, but Derringer failed sadly to uphold pre-series forecasts. He was battered out of the box in two innings and had little on the ball.

Similarly, Schoolboy Rowe was the Detroit pitcher supposedly best calculated to baffle the Reds. His control and his slow-stuff and his past World Series experience was recognized as the perfect antidote for Cincinnati hitting. Even Manager Del Baker all but acknowledged that Buck Newsom was given the opening-game job only in recognition of his work-horse role in the Tigers' Pennant triumph.

Well, you know what happened in these two series games. Newsom, pitching in his first World Series, was superb, showed no trace of nerves and turned in a well-pitched victory. Rowe, steeped in World Series lore, was a horrible flop. He was behind the hitters and the Reds sprayed his slow stuff all over the premises, knocking him from the box in less than four innings. Poof! Went the pre-series dope again.

In fact, before today's game, the Reds were outhitting the Tigers, Bucky Walters, on whose fast-balling the Tigers were supposed to dote, stifled 'em with three hits in the second game, and the vaunted Tiger power was taking on something of a myth. The Reds were the hitting club of this series despite the absence of Ernie Lombardi, which left the club with only one man with better than a .300 average.

But today, things sort of straightened themselves out nicely. The Reds were using one of their second-flight pitchers, and the Tigers' power burst into full bloom. Those home runs by Rudy York and Frank Higgins, that wickedly-smashed triple by Hank Greenberg—that was native stuff with the Tigers, who had banged their way into this World Series in the first place.

If you want another demonstration of how the pre-series dope has been kicked around, however, we give you Frank Higgins, Detroit third baseman who has confounded everybody and perhaps himself with his fielding in every game.

Higgins was supposed to be one of the prime liabilities of the Tigers as they entered the series. His batting was acceptable enough, but for three seasons now he has been the kind of a defensive third baseman who has caused his manager to contemplate deals that would bring him a better fielder. That the Tigers wanted to trade Higgins for Buddy Lewis this summer was no secret. The Red Sox traded him to Detroit three years ago because he couldn't field.

But the defensive star of this World Series has been Higgins. His legs were supposed to be creaky and crying for succor, but there must be some mistake about that. Around third base he has been positively gazellelike. Still unchallenged as a fielding play in this series is his contribution on the first ball hit by a Red in the opening game. With a spectacular one hand snatch he grabbed Bill Werber's fierce drive and got the batter at first.

Later in that same opening game, Higgins robbed Werber of another hit and also found time to start a double play on a hot shot by Jimmy Wilson. In yesterday's second game, he made the super-defensive play of the afternoon when he clutched a grounder off Mike McCormick's bat and tagged Werber on the base line with a dive into the runner.

Today Higgins was pretty good also. In fact, he was just about the brightest star in the Tigers' line-up. He whirled around in the fifth inning to come up with a one-handed grab of Bill Myers' seemingly certain hit and make the out at first, and with the bat Higgins was similarly no wall-flower. His seventh-inning homer with a man on base virtually iced the game for the Tigers and it seems also that he banged a double to right. All told he drove in three of the Tigers' seven runs and scored two of 'em personally. What we mean to say is that Frankie Higgins is doing all right in this series.

Baker Lauds Tommy Bridges, Jim Turner for Fine Hurling

Team Doesn't Want to Go Back to Cincinnati; Trout or Newsom Hurls Today

By Del Baker

Manager of the Detroit Tigers (INS.)

Detroit, Oct. 4.—With those so-called "nine old men" of mine hitting that apple the way they did here today in the third game of the World Series, it's hard for me to be anything but optimistic so far as the rest of the series is concerned. None of us wants to take that train ride back to Cincinnati Sunday night, and I don't think we'll be forced to do so.

But to win Saturday and Sunday we've got to keep hitting the ball. If those Reds pitchers ever get our number, and make us stop slugging, well, it looks like a long, hard winter. The boys understand this, of course, and they mean to see that nothing like this happens. There isn't much of that Cincinnati pitching staff that we haven't walloped, and we're certainly not afraid to test the rest.

BAKER

Naturally, I'm feeling very good about the fine pitching performance turned in today by Tommy Bridges. Bridges really had it out there today. I knew he'd come through for us, with that much rest under his belt. I watched him warm up, and as soon as he began pouring them in in practice I knew that it was just a matter of how many runs our fellows could get off Turner.

I guess Tommy sent a little apprehension through the crowd when Bill Werber hit his first pitch for a double, and when Ernie Lombardi led off the second inning with another double. But there never was any doubt in my mind that Bridges had his stuff and soon would show it.

Bridges Thrills Baker

Everybody knows what a fighting heart Bridges owns. But nevertheless it was a thrill to see that fellow swallow his tough breaks and keep his chin up during the game. The Reds got several "numbers" off him—hits that rolled off the ends of their bats. Then, too, several balls hit in the infield took very bad hops, for no good reason at all. That would have discouraged a lot of pitchers. But not Bridges. He gave me one of my top thrills in baseball out there today.

It would be unfair to pass over the fine job of pitching turned in by Jim Turner. For six innings he showed me as fine a quality of pitching as I've seen in years. He had everything. Speed, stuff, finesse. He gave us no good balls to hit; wouldn't walk a man; struck out Hank Greenberg and Rudy York on six straight pitches (how many times will you ever see that done again?) and frankly he had me worried.

But I knew Bridges would go along with him as far as Turner wanted to go, and then some. I knew the game would turn just as soon as we got hold of one. And as soon as the seventh started

Play by Play As Tigers Win Over Reds, 7-4

FIRST INNING

REDS—Werber hit the first pitch into the deepest corner of left field for a double. Trying to bunt, M. McCormick missed one strike, fouled another and then fanned. With the count of one strike, Goodman drove a sharp single to center, scoring Werber. F. McCormick looked at one ball and then lined to Campbell, Goodman holding first. Ripple was called out on strikes, after swinging viciously at four of Bridges' curves, foul tipping two. One run, two hits, two errors, one left.

TIGERS—Myers threw out Bartell by a couple of yards. McCosky waited out a two and two count and then grounded out, Joost to F. McCormick. With the count two and two, Gehringer bounced out, Turner to McCormick. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

SECOND INNING

REDS—Lombardi waited out a two and two count, and then hit to deep right field and hobbled to second base ahead of the throw, sliding into the bag. Joost was called out on strikes on four pitches. Myers took two strikes and then lifted a high pop to Bartell in front of second base. Turner lifted a short fly to McCosky. No runs, one hit, no errors, one left.

TIGERS—As Greenberg came to bat, the fans, some of them still filtering into their seats, gave him a big ovation. The slugger looked at one curve, fouled another into the dirt and then swung futilely at a bad ball on the outside. York was called out, also on three straight strikes. Turner pitched another strike to Campbell, then a ball, and then Campbell doubled deep into left center field. Higgins hit the first pitch directly at Werber and was easily thrown out. No runs, one hit, no errors, one left.

THIRD INNING

REDS—Werber bounced the ball over Bridges' head and Bartell came over fast to make a spectacular pick-up on top of second base and threw him out. With the count two balls and one strike, M. McCormick punched an easy hopper back at Bridges and was

What may develop as the tightest interhigh football race in many years got off to a sprinting start yesterday as Eastern's White Tide, touted as the team to beat, scraped out a meager 7-0 victory over a strangely pugnacious Roosevelt eleven.

Stands at the Eastern Stadium were almost packed for the season's first public school encounter, the game that was to see the first really Rough Riding Roosevelt team in several seasons and the fastest Tide team in just as long. Nobody was disappointed.

For three quarters the clubs pushed and tugged on even terms before Eastern scored its winning touchdown. That and the extra point were all credited to rugged Eddie Teague, fullback, and a series of three dazzling thrusts.

Perlo Forced to Kick

Midway of the third quarter Roosevelt was backed up on its own 18 and Hymie Perlo, a converted basketball star, was forced to kick out of danger. Another former cage ace, Moe Schulman, took the ball at midfield and sidestepped his way 14 yards into Rider territory.

Slicing off tackle on a reverse from Duke Coppage, Teague registered a first down on the 19. Roosevelt hadn't recovered from that rush before big Eddie was off on an identical dash, this one winding up across the goal. Nobody was near him at the end, though at least six tacklers threw themselves in his wake along the way. The seventh point was a low placement, barely over the bar.

The remainder of the game was a practically even battle between the Tide's effective line smashes and the Riders' well-drilled aerial attack. And the star of the latter was raw-boned young Perlo, who never had donned moleskins until this September.

Exactly 15 passes Perlo launched and 8 of them came to rest in the arms of various mates. None was intercepted. A total of 105 yards was advanced through Perlo passes, an average of over 13 per successful attempt.

Good Ground Attack

Eastern coaches boasted of a lightning-like ground attack before the season opened, and they were borne out yesterday. Coppage, Neil Craig and Schulman had the bulky Rider line trying to catch them all afternoon and Teague furnished the necessary straight plunging power.

A few seconds before its scoring drive, Eastern came within 5 yards of a touchdown, but Roosevelt threw up an airtight defense. Teague set up the threat with the first Eastern pass of the game, hurling to Craig from Roosevelt's 45. Craig romped to the Rider 9 behind a block of five interferers. Three plunges and a pass failed to make more than 4 yards, however.

Roosevelt's nearest approach to a score came on the last play of the game when Substitute Bob Stein tossed a 19-yard aerial to Dick Goodman on the Eastern 17. The whistle put a conclusive halt to things.

Dodgers Down Eagles, 30-17; Gain 2d Place

Jock Sutherland's Revitalized Eleven Takes in Philly

By the United Press

New York, Oct. 4.—The revitalized Brooklyn Dodgers made a highly successful hometown debut tonight by smashing through and passing over the flashy but erratic Philadelphia Eagles for a 30-17 triumph that moved them into second place in the Eastern half of the National Professional Football League.

Again demonstrating their marked improvement under the tutelage of their new coach, Jock Sutherland, the Dodgers banged over 17 points for a substantial lead in the second period and then stubbornly held their advantage to the delight of 24,000 partisan fans under the arc lights at Ebbets Field.

It took Brooklyn almost a period to get started and by that time the Eagles vaulted into a 3-0 advantage when Johnny Cole kicked a 45-yard field goal. But once the Dodgers found their stride they marched 67 and 65 yards to touchdowns which culminated from forward passes in the second quarter. Ralph Kercheval then matched the Philadelphia field goal with one of his own from the 38-yard line and gave Brooklyn a 17-3 advantage at the half.

Davey O'Brien, bottled up thoroughly in the first two quarters, flung the Eagles into scoring territory with a 19-yard pass which Herschel Ramsey carried to the Dodgers' 6-yard line, midway in the third. After four smashes at the line Elmer Hackney scored and Fran Murray converted to bring the score to 17-10 at the end of the third.

Brooklyn marched back with Pug Manders plunging over the line on the first play of the fourth period and drew away again at 23-10.

Wilson Eleven Scores Over St. Alban's, 6-0

Woodrow Wilson High's grid team used one play—its first offensive one of the game—to turn back St. Alban's yesterday at the Nebraska avenue stadium, 6-0.

With approximately 1,500 fans looking on, St. Alban's tried three times to make a gain after the opening kick-off, finally kicked and the ball was downed on the Wilson 45. Then occurred the winning play.

Charley Voight, first-year man, plunged off tackle, found himself almost in the clear and eluded numerous Saint tacklers to go 55 yards for a touchdown. Wingman Hardison's attempted placement was blocked by Jim Trimble.

From then until the final horn, the teams struggled with neither getting inside the other's 20-yard stripe. The Saints' ace passing combination, Bob Bondy and Trimble, brought rooters to their feet with what appeared to be the tying points in the second period, but the play was called back. The ball had touched an ineligible player in flight.

Duke, Tennessee Game Holds Grid Spotlight

By Bill Boni

Associated Press Sports Writer.

New York, Oct. 4.—Tomorrow is only the first October Saturday, but it is likely to be peculiarly decisive in the college football season.

Chiefly, it will feature the meeting at Knoxville of Duke and Tennessee, favorites in their respective conferences. The winner is likely to go on to a perfect season.

But as corollary attractions there are such events as:

The unveiling in the East of Cornell, sectional kingpin last year, and of Princeton, touted as the Big Red's main Ivy League threat; of Fordham, expected to battle Boston College for non-Ivy honors in the East; of Northwestern's Bill Decorrevont, who will make his bow as a seasoned junior against Syracuse; The Mid-West homecoming of Amos Alonzo Stagg, who brings his college of the Pacific crew into South Bend to open a promising Notre Dame team's campaign; Minnesota's second succesive chance to knock off the potential leader of an outside conference, Nebraska; high-geared Ohio State's first Big Ten engagement, with fast but outweighed Purdue.

Opportunities, in Dixie, for Tulane and Louisiana State to bounce back against Auburn and Holy Cross, respectively, from defeats suffered last week.

On the West Coast, a tough battle with Oregon State for Southern California's Trojans, hoping to prove that tie with Washington State was all a horrible mistake.

Realizing that even a poor average is better than none at all, this big-game hunter fills both barrels with bird shot in the hope of hitting something and offers the following predictions (probable attendance in parentheses):

Tennessee-Duke (40,000) — Why couldn't they have waited until later in the season? But he who hesitates is lost, so—Duke.

Cornell-Colgate (16,000)—Mindful of last year's close call, the Ithacans are likely to take no chances. Cornell.

Texas Christian-Arkansas (15,000)—The Southwest race is wide open, but in this inaugural it should be T. C. U.

Tulane-Auburn (35,000)—Looking for the Green Wave to roll back to victory. Tulane.

Southern California-Oregon State (50,000)—Southern California, but no money-back guarantee.

Syracuse-Northwestern (23,000)—With Don Clawson to help DeCorrevant, Northwestern is our pick.

Ohio State-Purdue (45,000)—Purdue is smaller and faster, which might go anywhere but here. Ohio State.

Fordham-West Virginia (15,000)—Fordham—despite the "sleeper" stories about the Mountaineers.

Indiana-Texas (18,000)—It seems just about time for Dana Bible to have the Longhorns primed. Texas.

Pitt-Missouri (30,000)—The Tiger defense hardly appears rock-ribbed. Cracum to crack 'em for Pitt.

Michigan-Michigan State (60,000)—Already they're talking of overconfidence at Ann Arbor. The Spartans should take care of that, but we don't think they'll whip Harmon and Co. Michigan.

Louisiana State-Holy Cross (30,000)—This business gets no easier. With a blindfold, L. S. U.

Yale-Virginia (30,000) — Taking Virginia to surprise.

Notre Dame-Pacific (40,000)—The Irish in a prelude to tougher jobs to come.

Navy Meets Cincinnati Team Today

Academy Seeks First Victory Over Strong Ohio Contingent

Special Dispatch to The Post

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 4.—Upward of 20,000 persons are expected to watch the football teams of the Naval Academy and University of Cincinnati tangle in the gridiron field of Thompson Field Stadium here tomorrow afternoon. It will be Navy's second test under fire, and the third for Cincinnati, and one of the first intersectional clashes of the young season. The kick-off is scheduled for 2:30.

The Ohio "Bear Cats" had their final practice on the field of George Washington University in Washington this afternoon, and the squad will arrive here tomorrow about two hours before game time. With two victories under their belt, each scored with comparative ease, the Ohioans, boasting a fast and deceptive back field combination, and a line that is calculated to hold its own, are confident of staging an upset at the expense of the naval lads.

The Tars are ready for the battle, although Capt. Dick Foster, end, and two or three other regulars, who have been on the injured list, are not expected to get into action. Head Coach "Swede" Larson prefers to let them take things easy, in view of the big test with Princeton next Saturday.

Scalpers Suffer As Detectives Halt Series Sales

Detroit, Oct. 4 (AP).—Despite a last-minute attempt to unload at prices as low as $1 for $6.60 tickets, scalpers were caught short with hundreds of World Series pasteboards today.

Prices ranged from $10 to $25 a ticket for several hours before game time but a close watch by more than 50 detectives supplemented by regular officers in plain clothes and private police prevented many transactions. As the starting time neared the scalpers became worried and offered tickets for the list price. Then, after the game got under way, they were selling for whatever they could get.

Mike Avon Sets Pin Mark At Ice Palace

422 Set Is High; Miss Gladding Paces Ladies Leaguers

The Chevy Chase Commercial duckpinners played havoc with records last night at the Ice Palace, with Mike Avon, of the Ramblers, taking high individual set of 422 and setting a league record for the season. Jack Talbert, Hot Shoppes, crashed through to a high game of 153. The Ramblers quintet, inspired by Avon's fine work, took it on themselves to get into high and break two more season records, rolling a game and set of 639 and 1,842, swamping the Mount Vernon Mtg. team for three straight.

BROOKLAND

The Ladies League rolled at Brookland Recreation with Lois Gladding, Brookland Recreation quintet, taking all individual honors in pacing her team to high game and set. Miss Gladding's highs of 135-357 aided her quintet in setting high team game and set for the night of 535-1,524. Carolyn Day rolled a high game of 131 for Gemeny's Flowers but in spite of this Michigan Park took the odd game, helped by Margaret O'Brien's 341 set.

TAKOMA

ARCADIA

Helen O'Day, Tidwell's Senators, crashing through with highs for the night of 145-360, as the Ladies' Independent League rolled. Miss O'Day's high game and set paced her team in taking the odd game from Butler-Flynn Paints and kept it in first place in the league standing. United Typewriters, aided by Mary Ball's 127-333, took two games from Fleishmann's Yeast to tie for second place.

Landon Opens Season With 7-to-6 Victory

Gridders of Landon School launched their season on the home field yesterday with a gratifying 7-6 victory over Baltimore's Friends School.

The Landoners tallied their only touchdown in the second stanza when Paul Baker clung to a pass from Johnny Sager and went 10 yards to the goal. What proved to be the winning point was credited to Halfback Brawner, when he took Sager's extra-point pass across.

The Baltimoreans came back in the fourth quarter, but not quite far enough. A long run accounted for 6 points, but the conversion was unsuccessful.

Keller's Tonsils Go; He Listens to Series

Special Dispatch to The Post

Frederick, Md., Oct. 4.—Those troublesome tonsils which Charlie Keller blames for his 1940 batting slump were removed yesterday and the New York Yankee outfielder was well enough to listen to the third game of the World Series from his bed in the Frederick City Hospital today. He expects to return to his home here tomorrow.

Central Wins Up-Down Battle From St. John's

10,000 See D. C. High School Eleven Down Saints, 19-12, After Prep Team Captures Early Lead

By Bill Burnett

Giving 10,000 partisan fans something to thrill about every minute, Central and St. John's High School elevens renewed their rivalry last night at Griffith Stadium, the doughty Vikings of Central eking out a 19-12 victory after an up and down struggle.

To St. John's went first blood, but once the Vikings found the range of goal they hit it three times in rapid succession. Going into the second half on the short end of a 6-0 count, Central pushed over a touchdown early in the third frame, another in the closing minutes of the same quarter, and accounted for the winning seven points with the final quarter only a few seconds old.

Sam Di Blasi, rangy Viking end, was easily the star of the exciting battle, scoring two of his team's three six-pointers and kicking the only extra point. His defensive work, too, stood out like a beacon.

52-Yard Scoring Pass

Di Blasi's first pay effort as the third quarter started was on a pass from Fullback Valanos after Central had run into trouble on its own 48. Valanos hurled a perfect strike to Di Blasi on the Saint 25, and the latter went over to complete a 52-yard aerial.

That knotted things and they remained in the same state after Samperton's placement went low and to the left. But the eventual winners went out front finally only a few plays later when, with the Johnnies unable to advance from their own 10, Di Blasi plowed in to block Steve Burns' punt, pulled the ball out of the dusky air and fell across the goal. Again Samperton's kick was low, this time to the right.

New Team Makes Touchdown

More orthodox football was put into its final score by Central. A long pass, Valanos to Di Blasi for 44 yards, brought the Vikings from their own 42 to the Saint 16, and another heave from Martin to Grosbein put the ball on the 5. A brand new Central team went into action and after two plunges Martin went over the goal. A perfect placement was then contributed by Di Blasi.

With the score 19-6 in its favor, Central felt at ease, but St. John's was still scrapping. A freak fumble through which Central lost 48 yards, the ball being kicked from Martin's hands back to the Central 1-yard stripe, made the final Johnnie score possible. Central's Capt. Tucker recovered, but Di Blasi's kick was partially blocked and St. John's took possession on the 23.

Speiss passed to Flood for a first down on Central's 9, and with three powerful lunges at the center of the line Krugg went over. Chisari's placement was too low.

A solitary pass St. John's tried in the first half, and it alone, was responsible for the 6-0 lead held by the Johnnies at intermission. Straight power plays, with Krugg and Buddy Speiss carrying the burden, kept Central on its guard in the first quarter. Then the Claret came into possession soon after the start of the second stanza on its foes' 46.

Once more the Johnnies began ripping at Central's line. Fullback Tommy Chisari went through for 6 yards, Speiss added 3 more and Chisari brought the ball to the 35 on a center plunge. Central got its big surprise at that point.

Speiss stepped back, apparently to get up momentum for another crash at the line. He was passing, however, and too late Central's Orin Hartman saw the leather sail over his head and into the arms of Dick Hathaway on the 10. Hartman had no chance to catch the former McKinley High wingman. An attempted placement by Chisari was low and to the left.

Yale Eleven Anticipates Hard Va. Clash

By the Associated Press

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 4.—Yale's football forces, warned beforehand that their opening game with Virginia here tomorrow would be far from the breather class, not only anticipated a tough battle but were prepared for any emergency. Some 25,000 fans were expected to view the intersectional encounter.

The reputations of Eddie Bryant and Bill Dudley, star Virginia backs who last week paced the Southeners to a 32 to 0 victory over Lehigh, have preceded them here and they'll be marked men. Neither was in the starting line-up, however.

Yale will take the field with an eleven which the players feel is slated for a highly successful season. Led by Capt. Hal Whiteman, the team is well balanced and includes two sophomores, Spencer Moseley, center, and Jim Potts, blocking back.

Virginia.	Position.	Yale.
White	L.E.	Bartholomy

Le Chat Captures Juvenile Feature at Laurel Race Course

Bud Lerner Colt Scores Over Hanid

Jockey Bierman Pilots Winner, Three Others on Day's Race Card

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Laurel, Md., Oct. 4.—Le Chat, owned by T. D. Buhl, of Detroit, stamped himself as a 2-year-old to watch in the coming Maryland Futurity when he turned back eight eligibles for that race and three other youngsters here today. The good-looking son of Bud Lerner and Chaelet came to the imaginary wire 1¼ lengths in front of J. H. Louchheim's Hanid. It was the second choice and the favorite, first and second in the 6-furlong sprint, named the Magothy Purse.

The young gelding was the first of three straight winners ridden by Jockey Charley Bierman, who has forged to the front of the local riders. Bierman followed with victories on Solatium in the fifth race and Stinging in the sixth race.

Le Chat's backers collected $6.40 for each $2 investment in the tote machine, and the time hung up was 1:14 1-5 for the three-quarters of a mile. The track was still slow as the result of rain that marked the opening-day program, but the weather overhead was perfect for a crowd of 8,000.

Bierman got Le Chat off first and then steadied him in the middle of the track, while Hanid, a nonetigible for the futurity, and Becomly contested for the pace-setting honors. Leaving the back stretch, Bierman allowed Le Chat to move up gradually and in the straightaway he put him to pressure. The youngster came with a rush and Hanid, although closing gamely, could not resist the move.

The daily double paid $79. Happy Hunting, owned by George A. Garrett and second in a recent start at Havre de Grace, came to the wire two lengths ahead of the nearest opposition. Largo Mint was second and Pari-King, a long shot, was third. Happy Hunting paid $14.50.

The A. C. C. Stable's Clingendaal won the third race and completed the double. Jockey A. Shelhamer brought the veteran home two lengths in front of Graeme Cracker, with Crius third in a field of 12 going 6 furlongs. Clingendaal paid $7 in his own right.

Book Plate Takes 'Gansett Race Over Night Editor

By the Associated Press

Pawtucket, R. I., Oct. 4.—Mrs. G. H. Emicks' Book Plate won Narragansett Park's featured overnight handicap today by three-quarters of a length from the heavily favored Night Editor, owned by Mrs. C. C. Winters. In third place, 3½ lengths back, was R. A. Coward's U Boat.

Book Plate covered the six furlongs in 1:12 4-5 and paid $13.40, $5.90 and $3.60. Night Editor returned $3.50 and $2.80 and U Boat $3.40.

Jockey W. L. Taylor had difficulty getting Book Plate in the clear in the early stages of the race. Book Plate gained some ground on the rail coming through the turn but did not do his real running until past the eighth pole and then he rushed down the center of the track to snare the victory.

HANID shook off BECOMLY to open good lead and held on gamely, but was no match for winner. JOHN'S STAR improved position on inside and weakened under punishment in closing stages. BECOMLY forced early pace and weakened.

Selections at Laurel

Dear Al.

Brothers Butler, Bradley and Stryker have a pretty fair program for today at Laurel Park. The feature is the $5,000 added Richard Johnson for 2-year-olds at six furlongs and it involves another clash of Little Beans and Level Best, the colt and the filly who finished noses apart in the Eastern Shore up at the other town. There are 13 other rollicking youngsters eager for the test. Here's some notes on the big race: Today's running will be the thirteenth. The time record for the stake is held jointly by Chickstraw, in 1933 and Johnstown, in 1938, each horse completing the six furlongs in 1:11 4-5. Burning Blaze, 1931 winner of the Johnson carried 130 pounds, the highest weight in the history of the stake and he also earned $13,225, richest prize in the Johnson. Last year's Johnson was won by Victory Morn, owned by the late Ral Parr, Maryland sportsman and this was the last stake in which the Parr colors were carried to victory prior to Parr's death. The colors are still active, however, having descended to Harry A. Parr 3d., treasurer of the Maryland Jockey Club. An entry list of 15 for the Richard Johnson is in keeping with the kind of support horsemen have given the stake in recent years. Last season 12 started while in 1937 there were 16 in the race, 10 in 1936 and 13 in 1935. Only in 1938, was there a small field, with seven going to the post in the race won by Johnstown. Marylanders got away to a flying start at the meeting in the matter of winning purses, despite increased opposition from strong stables from other sections of the country. Lucas Dupps, jockey who was injured recently at Narragansett Park, was a visitor here today. He plans to resume saddle activity during the Florida winter season. A carload of horses belonging to the Dixiana Stable of Charles T. Fisher, of Detroit, arrived in charge of Trainer J. W. Smith, formerly with the E. R. Bradley outfit. William Schamehorn, assistant to Starter James Milton, suffered a bad cut on his head when kicked by a 2-year-old filly which was schooling in the starting gate this morning. The filly, belonging to W. W. Vaughn, reared and one of her fore feet caught Schamehorn. He was removed to University Hospital in Baltimore where it was reported that a gash, about an inch and a half long, appeared to be the only injury he had received. For 14 years, Henry Tait Rodier and the boys have been bowling each Thursday night at the Lucky Strike alleys. For several seasons one of their stars has been Jockey Sonny Workman. Last Thursday was the first match of the fall and Workman flew down from New York to be there. See you on the rail.

BILL.

First race—Royal Teddy closed fast behind Zenana in a sprint to finish second beaten a length. Dropping down in class and going a longer route today, he receives high figure. Brown Twig won his last Havre race in good time and will be the principal contender. Flag Post is on edge.

Second race—Coercion was an odds-on favorite when beaten a neck recently by Bold Irishman at Belmont. This juvenile has performed well against topnotchers on the New York circuit. Light of Morn has been knocking close in late races and shapes up as the one to beat. Daring Lady for show.

Third race—Jessie Gladys won her last in New York in fast time and should repeat if she runs back to that effort. Gold Teddy was outmatched by Birch Rod in his last but rates well in this company. Bright View raced well behind Guerrilla at Havre.

Fourth race—Wood Chopper has scored in his last two heats at Belmont. Meeting better grade company, he retains a slight edge. Clyde Tolson whipped Ariel Toy at Havre which places him among the contenders in this wide open event. Up the Creek also won his last and figures to be close.

Fifth race—Level Best bowed to Little Beans in the Eastern Shore with 122 pounds up, but now to Belmont to be runner up behind King Cole. Under her 116-pound impost today, she will be hard to beat. Nasca was third to King Cole and Level Best in New York after which she rates a trifle better than Misty Isle, winner of the Matron Stakes.

Sixth race—General Mowlee set the pace when beaten a length by Stoney Brush in their recent encounter. He meets cheaper company here and figures best. Tony Steel and Son Altasse are rather evenly matched, but Tony Steel is favored to avenge his recent defeat by the latter.

Seventh race—Alsang appears unbeatable among the cheaper grade platers over this route after his two scores at Havre. Today, he will have Balapin, a successful campaigner in New York, as his chief rival. Five O'Four has a good chance at a fair price.

Best bet—Coercion.

Cottesmore Wins National At Belmont

Bostwick Entry Takes Classic Over Dolly's Love; Victor Pays $6.30

By the Associated Press

Belmont Park, N. Y., Oct. 4.—In as thrilling a finish as ever occurred in the 40 runnings of the race, G. H. (Pete) Bostwick's Cottesmore, top-weight of the ten starters under 160 pounds, nosed out E. B. Schley's Dolly's Love to earn the $14,850 and trophy that went with the Grand National Steeplechase Handicap, biggest event of the season through the field, here today.

Thomas Hitchcock's Oneechee was third, three lengths behind. A crowd of 13,692 saw the grueling fixture of about 3 miles.

Cottesmore, winner of Beverwyck and Meadowbrook 'chases and now victorious in four of his half dozen 1940 outings, was a $6.30 favorite and completed his journing in 5:51 2-5. He took 19 jumps.

Four horses failed to finish. Straw Boss lost his rider after clearing the fifth jump. Gay Charles, depended upon to provide chief opposition to the favorite, did likewise at the twelfth. Mad Policy also tossed his pilot at the fifteenth, while Big Rebel fell at the final obstacle. The four riders escaped injury.

Mrs. F Ambrose Clark's Kelsboro Jack, one of the few American-owned winners of England's Grand National 'Chase (he turned the trick seven years ago and is now 14 years old), led the field to the post. Mrs. Clark's Bachelor Philip then went out and set the pace in today's feature before tiring after the tenth obstacle

Dolly's Love replaced the Clark color bearer in the van, but Cottesmore, which Jockey Slate had brought from last place in gradual stages, hooked up in a duel with the Schley representative in the long drive from the last turn home. Right at the end, it was Cottesmore's nose that bobbed in front. Oneechee easily beat off the others.

Polo Stars to Arrive by Plane

10-Goal Poloists To Oppose Here At 3 P. M.; Ponies Stabled at Fort Myer

With the most valuable collection of polo ponies in the world already en route to Fort Myer, the Bundles for Britain benefit match at Potomac Park tomorrow afternoon awaits only the arrival of the players to be completely prepared for the 3 p. m. game time.

The participants, whose total of 64 goals comprises the highest number of handicaps ever playing on one field, will arrive in Washington by airplane around 11:30 tomorrow morning.

The presence of 10-goal players Stewart Iglehart, captain of the Meadow Brook (N. Y.) four, and Cecil Smith, burly head of the Texas team, has attracted tremendous interest in the outcome of the game, for these two stick-and-ball men are regarded as the best the sport has to offer.

Ebby Gerry at No. 1

Inglehart will have with him Elbridge T. (Ebby) Gerry, eight-goal man, at the No. 1 spot; Robert L. Gerry, jr., at No. 2; the captain himself at No. 3, and Robert Strawbridge jr., at back.

Riding for Texas at No. 1 will be Michael Phipps; at No. 2, J. Peter Grace, jr.; Smith at No. 3 and Winston Guest at back. The outfit is handicapped at 34 goals.

Washington spectators, who have jammed Potomac Park in the past to watch various Army units' brand of polo, are expected to become thoroughly mallet-conscious when they get their first opportunity of seeing the "big time" version of the sport. As it is played by the Inglehart-Smith combination, polo takes on the tense, split-second quality of ice hockey and is no less tame.

Star Texas Back

Winston Guest, British-born but an adopted American, who will play back for the Texas polo team which Cecil Smith will captain in the benefit match for the Bundles for Britain Fund Sunday afternoon at Potomac Park Polo Field against the Meadow Brook team

12th Precinct Tops Police Pistol Firing

The matches are sponsored by the Washington Board of Trade, the Police Department and the Twelfth Precinct Pistol Club.

Total score for the Buchholz award was 1,237. The pistol club prize went to the same outfit for the second successive year, which means that a victory next year will give the precinct permanent possession of the cup.

The matches continue today, commencing at 2:30 p. m., with Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen and Maj. Ernest W. Brown in attendance.

With CONSIDINE

Detroit, Oct. 4.—The more we see of World Series games the more we wonder how the fallacy grew and flourished that "pitching always tells in a World Series."

Please remind me to give myself a mickey the next time that rank heresy is stated here. For there is no substitute for hitting. Just as a combat plane never captured a foot of enemy territory. The greatest pitcher who ever lived couldn't win a ball game—unless he had some gorilla to go up there to knock in a run for him.

CONSIDINE

Today, for instance. As interesting as it was to watch old Jim Turner out there working for the Reds, doing such things as setting the Tigers down in order in the first, third, fifth and sixth, walking no men, and striking out Hank Greenberg and Rudy York on six straight pitches (they didn't even make a foul tip off him) you knew in your heart that sooner or later one of those burly Detroit vandals would come along with his club and smash Turner's science and nimble perfection with one sweep of the mace.

That's just what happened in the seventh. First Hank Greenberg came along to put a perpetual part in Billy Myers hair with a screaming line drive to left center. Rudy York, even bigger and stronger than the gargantuan Greenberg, swung his bat on another delicate Turner offering and bumped the ball into the lower left field stands.

The blast utilized about one-half of York's vast power. It just cleared the 10 foot screen in front of the left field seats—340 feet from home plate. Turner then worked with cold precision on Bruce Campbell, but Campbell swung on what appeared to be a crafty outside pitch and belted it to center for a single.

Then Mike Higgins came up. Turner, an artist who has been pitching and figuring out the mysteries and magic of hurling for nearly 20 years, did what most pitchers would do in a spot like that. He tried to slip one past Higgins on the first pitch. But Higgins wouldn't wait—to look 'em over. He swung from the heels and hit a sky-rocketing homer into the upper left field stands.

So that was the ball game.

As fine as he was, Bridges didn't "win" it, as the record books must say he did. He gave up ten hits and allowed the Reds to score four runs. It was a fine performance mostly in comparison. He had his mob with him, armed, and the other fellow's mob wasn't as tough. Those two Tennessee boys, Turner and Bridges, the first from old Gordonsville and the other from Antioch, would still be out there pitching out their tie with all that wondrous control, and mastery of the physics of flight and deviation in flight, if a couple of crude hooligans with big shoulders and bigger bats hadn't decided the issue.

All of which brings us to the oft-expressed, but still hard to figure, fact that the American League gets the sluggers and the National League doesn't.

Who can explain that?

The leagues have about the same field to choose from. The wealth and profligacy of the leagues are about parallel. Phil Wrigley and Powell Crosley have about as much money to spend on the promising slugger discovered in Hohokus as have Tom Yawkey or the three ladies who own the Yankees.

But, somehow, the National League fails to come up with the slugger. He shows up somewhere in the American League, usually with one of the richer clubs, and when and if he gets into the World Series he makes those National League pitchers reflect idly on the need of more life insurance.

The National League hasn't won a series since that 1934 one. In fact until today it had won only five games.

The answer is "punch." There have been some good American League pitching and some good American League fielding, during these long years of subjugating National League teams in the World Series. But the main thing has been that old sock. One league has it; the other hasn't. The batting average of the American League this past season was only .271 to the National League's .264, but the A. L. boys hit 200 more home runs, 97 more triples and 224 more doubles.

Most National League players will admit all these things and tell you, "but we face tougher pitching." The Tigers, who aren't a power house ball club, are now facing the creme-de-la-creme of National League pitching.

As night falls over Briggs Stadium tonight they seem to relish it.

'Skins Leave For Game At Pittsburgh

Edwards Still Out; Hoffman to Punt In First Game Away

The Redskins will entrain for Pittsburgh this afternoon at 1:10 o'clock for their game with the Steelers tomorrow at Forbes Field. It will be the 'Skins' first game away from home in the National Pro League.

Turk Edwards will again be missing from the line-up Sunday as he still is nursing an injured ankle, hurt before the last game here against the Giants. Dick Todd, also injured, may see action, although he is carrying a brace on his abdomen.

Bob Hoffman will do most of the punting against the Steelers, Coach Flaherty stated last night. The rookie back will be used in the alternate backfield of Filchok, Wilbur Moore and Ernie Pinckert.

A special train will leave Washington for the game at 6:45 a. m., Sunday, and approximately 1,500 fans are expected to make the trip. A section of Forbes Field has been reserved for the Washington fans.

Baker had praise for Bridges' pitching.

"Tommy had great stuff today," he said. "He was real good. Yes, sir! I knew when he warmed up that he had it."

Cy Perkins, coach of the Tigers under Mickey Cochrane in the days of 1934 and 1935 when the Tigers played in world series, came in to congratulate Baker.

"You've got 'em," he told the Tiger leader.

Higgins said his homer clout in the seventh inning gave him the biggest thrill of his long baseball career. His achievement was witnessed by his father, Michael Francis Higgins, a sergeant in the Dallas, Tex., police department.

Baker was not positive about his pitching selection for the fourth game of the series tomorrow. He said that it probably would be either Paul (Dizzy) Trout or Newsom.

Webb Meets McCarthy in Golf Final

Favorites Battle Today At Columbia

Medalist Defeats Wilbur Garrett; Former Champion Beats Roy Pickford

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Favorites fially settled down in the Columbia Club Championship as Tommy Webb, medalist and former champion, and Martin F. McCarthy, four times a finalist, yesterday advanced to the title round. They will meet over the eighteen-hole route for the championship at 1:30 this afternoon.

McCarthy won his semifinal encounter over Roy Pickford, 3 and 2, while Webb met up with the upset sensation of the first two rounds, Wilbur Garrett, and barely held on to the remnants of a 4-up lead to win on the seventeenth, 2 and 1.

McCarthy, who lost to Webb in the 1938 finals and was twice beaten by Miller B. Stevinson in the title round, was two down at the end of three holes to Pickford and the latter missed a short putt on the fourth to miss a chance to go 3 up.

The "iron man" rallied at this point, however, won the fifth and sixth holes with pars to square the match, halved the seventh in regulation fours and then won eight and nine with pars to turn 2 up. Pickford cut it to one on the tenth, but McCarthy won 12 and 13 to take a 3-up lead and held it to the finish.

Webb Has Lead

Webb was enjoying a 4-up lead at the turn of his match with Garrett but the latter, who upset George Miller and Maury Nee in successive days, put on one of his stretch drives at this point. He played the next four holes in one under par, won three of them and Webb was only one up and five to play.

Tommy increased his margin to two on the fourteenth and held on, the players halving the short sixteenth in double bogeys as both dumped their tee shots in the lake.

Although Webb brought more than twice McCarthy's figure in the Calcutta Pool, the title match this afternoon is rated about even. Most of the members feel McCarthy is too good a golfer to go to the finals of his own club championship four times without bringing home a winner.

Crosby to Play Here

Details were being ironed out yesterday at the club for tomorrow's Red Cross match featuring Bing Crosby and Tony Penna against Fred McLeod and Roland MacKenzie.

Officials expect upward of 2,000 fans despite the match being made on short notice. The foursome will have lunch with Dr. Paul Stewart and his committee and the match is scheduled for about 2 o'clock. Crosby's presence is expected to attract hundreds who don't know a golf ball from a croquet mallet, but at the same time they will be treated to a good match.

MacKenzie brushed up on his game in a round with his father, Albert MacKenzie, at Columbia yesterday and, according to his dad, he is hitting the ball as well as ever.

Godoy Still Seeks Heavyweight Title

Philadelphia, Oct. 4 (AP).—Arturo Godoy, of Chile, says he is still after the title "campeon del mundo"—champion of the world—in heavyweight boxing ranks.

The Chilean heavyweight, twice beaten by Champion Joe Louis, arrived yesterday to complete training for his 10-round bout with Gus Dorazio, of Philadelphia, Monday night.

If he gets by Dorazio, Godoy indicated he would like to meet Max Baer, who recently knocked out Tony Galento and Pat Comiskey.

Baker Lauds Bridges, Turner For Pitching

Trout or Newsom To Hurl Today Against Reds

I knew we were rolling. Greenberg's hit touched it off like a firecracker and soon Turner was out of there with two great home runs by York and Mike Higgins.

My pitcher tomorrow will be either Paul Trout or Buck Newsom. If Trout's nomination surprises you, then remember that he is a better pitcher than his season's record shows.

Trout Will Be Ready

His record shows three wins against seven losses. But he pitched one of those all-important stretch-drive games against Philadelphia and allowed the Mackmen only four hits. You can bet that if I call on him he'll be ready. No one on the bench wants to get in there more than Trout.

If I decide that Trout isn't just right before hte game, Buck Newsom will be my pitcher. It will mean using him after only two full days of rest, during which time he suffered the shock of losing his father. But Buck has been our wheelhorse all year. He wants to pitch and I know he's ready. More than any hurler in the American League, Newsom has a gift for recuperating quickly after a tough game. If I decide to use him, he should be as good as he was in the opening game in Cincinnati.

The Tigers lead, 2 to 1, in the series, but they're far from thinking of letting up. They appreciate that the Reds are a stay-in-there-and-fight ball club, else they couldn't have won 41 games in the National League by a single run this past season. The Reds gave us a taste of how they keep fighting late today, when they scored three runs in the last two innings off Bridges who was really pouring the poison to them.

We're not giving these fellows an inch. If it is in our power to lick them tomorrow and next day, we'll do it—and get this series over quickly.

thrown out. Goodman lined the first pitch to McCosky, who made a running catch in short center. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

FOURTH INNING

REDS—F. McCormick topped one ball which rolled foul by inches outside the third base line and then grounded out to Higgins. Ripple took one strike and then was thrown out by Gehringer. Lombardi took two strikes and then grounded to Higgins and was thrown out by 15 feet. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

TIGERS—McCosky looped the first pitch into left center for a single. Gehringer also hit the first pitch through first base, F. McCormick, just getting his bare hand on the ball, and it went on to right field for a single, sending McCosky to third. Greenberg looked at a ball and then grounded into a fast double play, Werber to Joost to McCormick, McCosky scoring. York hit the first pitch sharply to right for a single. Campbell grounded out to F. McCormick, unassisted. One run, three hits, no errors, one left.

FIFTH INNING

REDS—Joost fouled once, waited out a three-and-two count and then lifted a fly to McCosky. Higgins, who was supposed to be unable to go to his left, made a great pickup of Myers' grounder, spinning clear around and then threw him out. Turner hit the first pitch high and far into right field, but Campbell pulled it in. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

TIGERS—Higgins struck out on five pitches, one of them a foul. Tebbetts lined to Werber. On a three-and-one ball, Bridges sent an easy grounder to Werber and was thrown out. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

SIXTH INNING

REDS—Werber waited out a three-and-two count and then walked. It was the first pass he had given. Werber was thrown out, stealing, Tebbetts to Bartell. M. McCormick rapped a single into short center. Goodman sent a grounder to Gehringer, forcing M. McCormick at second, Gehringer to Bartell. F. McCormick raised a high fly to Campbell. No runs, one hit, no errors, one left.

TIGERS—With the count one and one, Bartell flied to Ripple and drew a cheer from the crowd as he ran on around the bases and gave an exaggerated jump on third base before returning to the dugout. McCosky sent a long fly to M. McCormick in right center. Gehringer forced Goodman almost against the fence in rightfield to take his sharp liner. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

SEVENTH INNING

REDS—On the second pitch, Ripple grounded out to Gehringer. Lombardi looked at a couple of balls, fouled off three times and then grounded out to Bartell. On a three-and-one pitch Joost flied to Campbell. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

TIGERS—With the count two and two, Greenberg lined a vicious single down the middle of centerfield. York looked at one ball and then drove a tremeendous high home run over the left-field fence, 350 feet from the plate, scoring Greenberg ahead of him. The crowd roared and threw newspapers and other litter onto the outfield as a dozen or so park attendants sought to clean the field. The game was delayed as the shower continued. The attendants finally left the field with considerable paper and other debris still scattered in center and right fields. Campbell singled to left, Higgins drove the first pitch on a line into the upper deck of the left-field stands, slightly to the left of where York's homer hit, and Campbell scored ahead of him. The crowd again cluttered up the field and an effort was made to clear it while the Reds went into a huddle on the pitching mound. Turner was cheered as he walked dejectedly back to the dugout, and Whitey Moore, a right-hander, came to the slab and warmed up. Tebbetts lined the first pitch to M. McCormick. The crowd applauded and cheered as Bridges came to bat, but on the second pitch he grounded to Myers and was easily thrown out. Bartell waited out a two-and-two count and then singled on the ground into right field. McCosky took one ball and doubled into deep center field, sending Bartell to third. With the count one and one, Gehringer popped up foul to Werber halfway between home and third. Four runs, six hits, no errors, two left.

EIGHTH INNING

REDS—Myers singled off Bartell's glove, the shortstop just barely being able to knock down the ball. Riggs batted for Moore and forced Myers, Gehringer to Bartell. Werber shot a single along the ground into left field sending Riggs to second. M. McCormick singled into short center, scoring Riggs and sending Werber to second. Goodman flied to Greenberg, who held Werber on second with a nice throw. With a count of two balls and one strike, F. McCormick sent an easy grounder to Bartell, forcing M. McCormick at second, Bartell to Gehringer. One run, three hits, no errors, two left.

TIGERS—Joe Beggs, a right-hander, went in to pitch for the Reds and Bill Baker replaced Lombardi behind the bat. After looking at one ball, Greenberg fired a tremendous triple that rolled clear to the wall in center field, 415 feet from the plate. With the count two and two, York looked at a third strike and argued briefly but harshly with Umpire Ballanfant. After fouling twice, Campbell singled to center and reached second safely on M. McCormick's wide throw back to the infield. Then Higgins dropped a double just inside the right field foul line to score Campbell. Tebbetts grounded to Myers and was thrown out at first, and McCormick wheeled and threw to Baker in time to catch Higgins in a double play at home. Two runs, three hits, one error, none left.

NINTH INNIN

REDS—The official attendance was announced as 52,877. Ripple singled off York's glove. Higgins fumbled Baker's bounder. Ripple going to second. Joost shot a single along the ground to center, scoring Ripple and putting Baker on second. Myers struck out on four pitches. Frey batted for Beggs, and lifted a high fly to McCosky, the runners holding their positions. Werber singled into short left and Baker beat Greenberg's throw to the plate, Joost going to second on the play. M. McCormick struck out. Two runs, three hits, one error, two left.

York and Higgins Provide Punch In Seventh Inning

career against one defeat. But it was the lightning-like series of thrusts by the Detroit hitters in that seventh inning that lifted him to triumph.

Big Hank Greenberg, who started the Tigers' winning five-run rally in the opening game, launched today's climactic uprising in the seventh in the same manner—with a single to center. Then the Tigers lashed out at Turner with great violence.

Rudy York watched one pitch sail wide of the plate for a called ball, and on the next three pitches it was murder. York hit the first one for his homer. Bruce Campbell drove Turner's next pitch into left field for a single. Turner's next throw never crossed the plate. Higgins caught it on the business side of his bat and rammed it high into the second deck of left field.

Briggs Stadium's grandstands and bleachers were a mad scene as the long-distance barrage set the Tigers up in a 5-1 lead. A storm of hats and paper littered the outfield. The public address announcement calling for order so that the game could proceed was both booed and ignored. The crowd demanded its right to exult, and play was not resumed for several minutes.

Today the Tigers were giving a full-blown demonstration of the batting power that had carried them to the American League pennant despite a shaky infield. They lashed Turner, Whitey Moore and Joe Beggs for 13 hits. Three doubles and a triple rocketed from the Tigers' bats in addition to their two homers.

Bridges, who was reached for ten hits by the Reds—eight of them singles—made his greatest contribution to the Tigers' victory with his pitching of the first seven innings. He yielded a run to the Reds at the outset and then kept the Tigers in the ball game by pitching six consecutive scoreless innings, allowing only two hits during that interval. He was alternating his fast ball with the league's fastest-breaking overhand curve ball that he guided low and outside for the most part.

Runs were Lucky

After that seventh inning it was not as close a game as the final score of 7-4 indicates. The Reds' last two runs were luck-anointed affairs in the ninth inning, both of them stemming from infield balls that took freakish hops and eluded Detroit infielders.

Bruce Campbell collected three of the Tigers' 13 hits, but Hank Greenberg, despite his absence from the home-run circle, launched the seventh-inning uprising and in the eighth he started another two-run rally with a vicious three-bagger against the wall in right center.

Manager Bill McKechnie sent Ernie Lombardi behind the bat for this third game of the series despite Lombardi's painful limp on his swollen right ankle. The Reds needed his hitting and the strategy appeared correct when big Ernie opened the second inning with a double to right, clumping down to second in obvious pain. But Bridges fenagled the next three hitters into striking out and popping up, and Lombardi's hit was in vain.

As he has done in every game of the series, Bill Werber, Reds' lead-off man, swung at the first pitch of the day, and this time he lammed it into left field for a two bagger. From that blow spawned the run that gave the Reds a 1-0 lead. Mike McCormick struck out, but Ival Goodman didn't. He singled to center, and Werber was home with the run.

Turner Hurls Well

Turner, who labored unheralded for 14 years in the minors before getting a tardy start on a big league career, held the Tigers to one hit—Bruce Campbell's second-inning double—for the first three innings. He was pitching craftily and the Reds' hurling burden appeared to be in good hands.

Then came the fourth, and the Tigers got the tying run. McCosky drove a single to left center, and Charley Gehringer slammed a single into right field that grazed First Baseman McCormick's bare hand. McCosky raced to third on the hit. Hank Greenberg got the tying run home in very negative fashion. McCosky scored while Greenberg was hitting into a double play started by Werber.

It was still 1-1 as the Tigers entered the seventh. Then came the war on Turner. Six hits the Tigers ultimately packed into that seventh inning, driving Turner from the box and saluting Whity Moore with a pair of lusty if wasted blows.

Miami Romps Over Stetson, 19 to 0

Miami, Fla., Oct. 4 (AP).—A first half scoring spree gave the University of Miami's football hurricanes a 19-to-0 triumph over Stetson tonight in the opening game of their 1940 gridiron campaign before a crowd of 19,000.

Miami marched 49 yards in the opening period for its first touchdown with Bill Steiner crashing through center from the one. Russell Coates accounted for the other two tallies in the next period. Coates snaked 18 yards around right end for his first score and bucked over from the 1-foot line for the other after a 23-yard drive.

Although outclassed, Stetson made a stubborn stand in the second half and held Miami scoreless.

Protestants To Extend School Plan

Southeast Council Sessions to Be Open To Anacostia Groups

Protestant congregations and pastors across the Anacostia River will be invited to participate in the program of the Training School in Christian Education of the Southeast Inter-Church Council, the Southeast Ministerial Association said yesterday.

The school's program has been confined hitherto to the council's ten churches of six denominations on this side of the river. Anacostia has its separate ministerial association.

Clerical body of the council, the men were luncheon-meeting guests of Dr. Warren D. Bowman, pastor of the Washington City Church of the Brethren, and Mrs. Bowman at their home, 2910 Twentieth street northeast. Plans were mapped for the school, the tentative dates of which are January 8, 9, 10 and 13, 14 and 15.

The Rev. Bernard I. Barnes, pastor of the North Carolina Avenue Methodist Church, was again chosen dean of the school. The Rev. Robert J. Plumb, rector of St. Mark's Episcopal Church; the Rev. Ralph W. Loew, associate pastor of Reformation Lutheran Church; Mr. Barnes and Dr. Bowman will be committeemen of the school, and the Rev. A. F. T. Baum, pastor of First Methodist Church, treasurer.

Dr. George H. Bennett, pastor of Wilson Memorial Methodist Church, and council president, presiding over the business sessions of the luncheon meeting, proposed addition of a course for lay church officials in the school, pointing out that he has recently initiated such a plan in his own congregation.

Discussion of the National Christian Mission, scheduled for February 2-9, emphasized that the mission program will have "man-in-the-street" appeal, with special breakfast, luncheon and dinner meetings planned for Rotary, Kiwanis, Lions and other service clubs.

Voters League Official Urges Aid to Allies

Mrs. Quincy Wright, Foreign Policy Head, Sees Benefits to U. S.

"It is in the interest of the United States to extend all the aid possible to the Allies," Mrs. Quincy Wright, of Chicago, declared yesterday, defining the stand of the National League of Women Voters, of which she is foreign policy chairman.

Mrs. Wright was here for the day to confer with Miss Marguerite Wells, national president of the league, in preparation for a board meeting to be held here November 11 to 15.

"Just a year ago the League of Women Voters worked for repeal of the embargo so we would be in a position to give aid such as is called for now," Mrs. Wright said. "At that time it issued thousands of fliers pointing out that it was to this country's interest to extend help to England and France. If a situation should now develop in which it was evident that more legislation was necessary in order to give further aid, the league would work for that."

Mrs. Wright explained that this stand was consistent with the statement in the league's program indorsing a foreign policy which allowed discrimination against an aggressor nation and favoring the victim.

The organization's study this fall will be devoted to the inter-American program being developed by the Government, she said.

Mrs. Wright was here only for the day, on her way from Asbury, N. J., where she addressed the State convention of the New Jersey League which closed Thursday. She came East also to enter her daughter, Rosalind, in Bryn Mawr College.

Europe Applies China's Lesson, Y.W. Head Says

World President Here on First Visit To Temporary Office

Lessons learned in refugee work among China's homeless millions are being applied now in Europe, Miss Ruth Rouse, president of the World Y. W. C. A., said here yesterday on her first visit to the temporary offices established in the National Education Association Building on Sixteenth street.

The headquarters in Geneva, Switzerland, is still open, in charge of Miss Ruth Woodsmall, an American, but the actual headquarters work of the organization will be carried on from here for the duration of the war, she said.

The Y. W. C. A. supplements the work of the Red Cross in the war-stricken areas, says Miss Rouse, who came to this country from London last February. Work centers, where the women can sew and knit for themselves and others, have been established and clubs and recreation activities have been organized. The Y. W. C. A. workers also aid in cooking and serving the food provided for refugees.

Red Cross authorities told her, she says: "Our work is no good without yours. Why save people, if we save them only to despair?"

Work in each country is carried on by its own Y. W. C. A. except where the war situation makes this impossible. Then the World Y. W. C. A. steps in and gives aid. In unoccupied France, where there are 11,000,000 refugees, 3,000,000 of whom are Belgians, the national Y. W. C. A. has no funds available, because they are held in the occupied area and have not been released, she said. The French Y. W. C. A. president also is in occupied France and cannot maintain communication with the other officers.

"The misery and destitution in which the refugees arrived has hardly been relieved yet," says Miss Rouse. "They are returning very slowly to the sections from which they came. The Y. W. C. A. is using every means available to restore their morale and give them some hope."

'Axis' Bonds Rise Sharply In New York

Upsurge Viewed Step To Spur Enthusiasm For Triple Alliance

By the Associated Press

New York, Oct. 4.—Sharply higher prices for German and Japanese issues contrasted with a lower slant in the domestic section of today's bond market.

Gains in obligations of the two foreign powers ranged from 1 to 7 points. Declines in the domestic list, generally less than a point, was attributed to profit taking following the steep climb in recent sessions.

Wall Street heard, in connection with the rise in German bonds, that legislative proposals were afoot to attach German assets in this country for the benefit of creditors. It was also rumored that recent buying in these issues following extension of the Axis orbit to Japan was mostly to create enthusiasm in world financial centers for the new setup.

Prominent gainers were Ilseder Steel 6s, German Central Agricultural 6½s, Prussia 6s, Vienna 6s, Berlin 6½s, German government 5½s and Japan 6½s.

Losers in the domestic list included International Hydroelectric 6s at 54, Bethlehem Steel 3½s, at 107⅛; Erie 5s at 15⅝, New York Central 5s at 65½, Northern Pacific 4s at 74½, and Nickel Plate 4½s at 61.

Market Street Railway 5s ran up 6¼ points on moderate demand to 75 and small advances were scored by International Telephone 5s at 28, and Walworth 4s at 73.

U. S. Governments closed 6-32 of a point higher to 4-32 lower.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Oct. 4 (AP).—Continuation of the Chicago wheat price setback which has been under way since the three months' highs were reached Tuesday carried values almost a cent lower today.

Profit taking and selling inspired by easiness of securities, international political news and lagging domestic flour demand as well as restricted world export trade contributed to the decline. There was no particular pressure to sell but the market suffered from lack of aggressive outside support.

Wheat closed ⅛@⅜ lower than yesterday, December 81¼@81¾, May 80⅝@80¾; corn, ¼@⅜ higher, December 57⅞, May 59½; oats, unchanged to ⅛ off; soybeans, ¼@1¼ down; rye, ⅜@¾ lower, and lard unchanged to 5 higher.

Independent strength of corn was attributed to good commercial demand and scarcity of offerings. Handlers sold 60,000 bushels, against which some hedges were lifted, and country bookings were only 27,000 cars.

Weakness which caused October soybeans to slump to more than 12 cents below the two-year level was associated with heating and some short selling.

Oats steadied with corn, while rye followed wheat. Lard was strengthened by action of the hog market and reports of record August consumption.

Wholesale Trade Turnover Brisk, Says Dun Survey

New York, Oct. 4 (AP).—A "consolidation and broadening of the recent gains" in business activity was reported today by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., in its weekly review.

"Increased employment," said the mercantile agency, "is reflected in retail trade reports. Low trade inventories and quickened turnover appear in brisk reorder activity in wholesale markets. . . . Prices continue to move upward slowly. . . . Retailers continue to report evidence of freer spending by consumers.

"Comparisons of total reail volume with trade in the corresponding week of 1939 revealed an average increase of 7 to 12 per cent. . . . For seven major regions of the country, advances over last year's level were estimated as follows: New England, 3 to 5 per cent; East, 4 to 10 per cent; South, 6 to 15 per cent; Middle West, 7 to 18 per cent; Southwest, 6 to 11 per cent; Northwest, 2 to 8 per cent and Pacific Coast, 5 to 16 per cent."

Majority Group In Crucible Steel Approves Merger

Jersey City, N. J., Oct. 4 (AP).—Stockholders of Crucible Steel Co. of America have approved a plan for merger with the company's wholly owned subsidiary, Pittsburgh Crucible Steel Co., in the face of court action to prevent the consolidation.

The plan also provided for a change in capitalization which would dispose of preferred dividend arrearages totaling about $40 a share.

On Monday a Jersey City court will act on making permanent a temporary injunction granted last Wednesday to eight preferred stockholders who sought to block the merger.

Also approved by stockholders were proposals to eliminate a $31,000,000 deficit in the earned surplus by charging the amount against capital surplus, and to revalue the company's properties.

Crucible is a leading maker of high speed and tool steels.

New Security Issues Dwindle in Week

New York, Oct. 4 (AP).—Public offerings of new securities dropped off during the week ended yesterday to $27,017,000 compared with $66,929,500 the previous week, Poor's Publishing Co. reported today.

The lull is expected to be temporary, however, underwriting circles said, as several large offerings are scheduled. Only important corporate issue of the week was $20,000,000 of Great Northern Railway Co. collateral trust bonds.

Moderate Reaction Follows 5-Day Advance; 'Sleepers' in Preferred Stocks Are Hunted

New York, Oct. 4.—Stocks had a moderate and orderly reaction today after their five consecutive days of advance. The recent strength carried the list to the level prevailing last May 14 and on the rise there was a good volume of trading, indicating that at long last there is some public participation. Bullish forces were gratified that the volume dwindled on the reaction today, only 466,080 shares changing hands. The net decline, measured by the composite average, was 0.28 point and at no time did any great pressure appear to be in evidence.

Metals and lower-grade rails did relatively better than the balance of the list. There was also support for the air line issues, with price changes being fractional, and, as on other recent trading days, the bargain hunters were still combing the list for inactive preferreds which may be able to put up their dividend arrears. Loft was the day's most active stock and also one of the strongest, adding about a point.

Business news leaves nothing to be desired and week-end contributions were all of the favorable patterns. Highlighting was the estimate of Ward's on automobile output. This placed the week's output at 105,153 cars and trucks, totally eclipsing the spring production peaks of March and April. It compared with 95,990 units last week and 76,095 a year ago. A further slight increase is looked for next week, but volume is levelling off around this level.

Store sales announced today reflected the quickened pace in retail lines. Sears Roebuck reported a gain of 11.6 per cent over the previous month and 4.6 per cent over a year ago, while Montgomery Ward showed gains of 7.6 and 2.7 per cent.

General Electric reported that in the third quarter it received more new business than in any other three-month period. Business with the United States Government thus far this year has accounted for about one-fourth of the total and exclusive of Government orders the regular commercial business increased 31 per cent in the first nine months over the same peroid a year ago. Obviously a certain portion of this 31 per cent might be traced indirectly to the defense program, as other companies with defense orders would have to increase their electrical equipment. Nevertheless the General Electric reports show that not all of the present increase in activity in the heavy industries traces back to the armament rush.

Despite the five days' advance in the market, the reaction today took only fractions off most of the leading speculative issues. Among the few to lose as much as a point were American Can, Chrysler, Johns-Manville, Procter & Gamble and Sears Roebuck. Wide gains in preferred included Atlas Powder preferred, 3; General Time Instrument preferred, 5½; Interstate Department Stores preferred, 2; McLellan preferred, 1⅞, and United States and Foreign Securities preferred, 4½.

Profit taking was noticeable in the wheat market the same as in securities. Lowered flour demand and restrcted world export trade contributed to the selling and the close was off ½ to ⅞ cent a bushel. Cotton traders awaited the Government crop report, due Monday, and the market moved gradually higher, ending the session up 2 to 9 points.

The Associated Press weighted index of 35 wholesale spot staples, based on 1926 as 100, declined to 73.57 from 73.64 Thursday.

U. S. Building War Chest of Key Metals

By the Associated Press

New York, Oct. 4.—The U. S. Government's war chest of tungsten and antimony, strategic defense materials, will be crammed with important acquisitions next week, shipping circles disclosed today.

The steamship Puerto Rican from French Indo-China was expected to dock next Wednesday with 3,500 to 4,500 tons of these key materials, one of the largest such cargoes ever shipped. The Birmingham City brought in about 3,800 tons of tungsten ore and 1,000 of antimony about a week ago.

In times of peace cargoes of tungsten rarely exceeded 40 to 50 tons. Trade interests estimated the Government now has supplies equal to about two years normal imports. Important function of both tungsten and antimony is to toughen steel.

New York, Oct. 4.—The Grumman Engineering Corp. of Bethpage, L. I., had a backlog as of September 30 of $20,010,818 and letters of allotment from the U. S. Navy for $40,000,000 to $60,000,000 worth of fighting airplanes. New business as of September 30 totalled $14,807,935. Billings as of that date were $3,779,619. The Grummage backlog as of June 30 was $8,982,802.

New York, Oct. 4.—Pratt & Whitney and Wright Aeronautical Corp., major producers of high-powered air-cooled airplane engines, made almost 1,400 motors in September, William S. Knudsen, production head of the National Defense Advisory Commission, learned on an inspection tour in the last two days. Schedules of these two plants call for a step-up in production to more than 2,700 engines a month by the middle of next year.

New York, Oct. 4.—The U. S. Signal Corps' order for more than $2,000,000 of wire, trade quarters estimated today, was the largest wire contract awarded by the Federal Government since the World War.

The order was for 57,917 miles of double wound wire. Stretched into a single strand it could girdle the earth at the Equator more than four times.

Cotton Futures

New York, Oct. 4 (AP).—The cotton market struck ahead for gains of 2 to 9 points today despite more active hedging. Demand appeared to reflect the desire of the trade to guard against the possibility of a tight spot situation later in the season. Demand centered on later deliveries, which might indicate buyers planned to accept delivery on their cotton rather than go into the spot market. The South reported larger percentages of cotton were being held for the Government loan or kept off the market for higher prices. More liberal offerings of futures from the South reflected a pick-up in spot sales. Into-sight movement for the season to date, however, was only about 50 per cent of last year.

Worth Street reported a quiet day in cotton goods.

Exports Thursday, 2,189 bales; season so far, 151,535. Port receipts, 45,417; port stocks, 2,861,188.

Listen! with Glynn

Lovers of top-flight drama will practically be able to make a day of it listening to WJSV Sunday. Well, almost a day then—we'll settle for at least two hours.

At 6 p. m. "Silver Theater" is to make its fall debut over the Columbia net work and its initial production will be a specially written playlet, "I'll Never Forget," starring the famous British star of stage and screen, Laurence Olivier.

At 7:30 p. m. "Screen Guild Theater" is to present the well known Mr. Clark Gable and the popular Miss Ann Sothern in a radio version of "Red Dust," the picture in which Gable starred with Jean Harlow a few years ago.

Mystery thriller fans will have their inning at 8 p. m. when Washington's own Helen Hayes, the first lady of the American theater, demonstrates her versatility by starring in "Love From a Stranger," a spine-tingling melodrama adapted by Frank Vosper from Agatha Christie's novel. Alexander Kirkland and Bruce Lovell have the major supporting roles.

Incidentally, as town crier for WJSV, we want to call the attention of waltz lovers to the fact that Wayne King and his orchestra return to the airlanes tonight at 8:30 p. m. Buddy Clark will be heard again as the program's singing star. Following the custom he established last year, King will play six songs requested by listeners.

The Post Radio Time Table

10 a. m., WRC—Luise Rainer, who made quite a name for herself with the Washington Theater last winter, makes one of her rare radio appearances on Lincoln Highway.

11:30, WJSV—Vera Brodsky and the Dorian Quartet join forces for a half hour of Brahms: Cello Sonata in E minor, Op. 38, Bernard Greenhouse, cello, and Miss Brodsky, piano; Piano Quartet in C minor, Op. 60, Miss Brodsky and the quartet.

2:15, WRC—Ford Pearson airs the Princeton-Vanderbilt football game in Princeton's Palmer Stadium.

2:45, WJSV and WMAL—President Roosevelt dedicates three new school buildings in his native Dutchess County, N. Y., in Hyde Park, East Park and Poughkeepsie. The joint ceremonies take place at the Franklin Delano Roosevelt High School at East Park.

3:15, WJSV and WMAL—Bill Stern and Ted Husing air the important grid match of Duke vs. Tennessee.

7, WJSV—Educators discuss problems created for schools by the United States Defense program on the People's Platform: William Dighton, Rutgers University; Howard H. Brinton, Pendle Hill, Society of Friends graduate school; Charles H. Elliott, commissioner of education for the State of New Jersey, and Robert B. Macdougall, New Jersey State Teachers College.

8, WJSV—Haven MacQuarrie's new and well-liked Marriage Club is taking itself to Bridgeport where they don't have a Mary Haworth to straighten out their sad, troubled, lonely or otherwise twisted lives.

8:30, WJSV—Wayne King glides into a new season with his well-loved theme song. The Waltz King promises to give away six diamond rings each week to persons writing the best letters requesting musical numbers. Besides directing, Wayne also will play his saxophone.

10, WOL—Over Alexandria way they take the Barn Dance in Portners Arena as Saturday night tradition. The Mutual people do too.

Mrs. Gibbs Takes Oath of Office

Mrs. Florence Gibbs took the oath of office as a House member Thursday, succeeding her husband, the late Ben Gibbs, as Representative of Georgia's Eighth District.

Chairman Vinson (Democrat), Georgia, of the House Naval Committee, escorted her to the well of the chamber for the ceremonies. He previously had obtained permission to have Mrs. Gibbs sworn in despite the fact her certificate of election in a special election on October 1 had not been filed with the House clerk.

Industrial Draft Plan Termed Foe Of Dictatorship

Georgetown University students were told Thursday night by Leo M. Cherne that the object of this country's industrial mobilization plan was to avoid, in event of war, the usual military or political dictatorships spawned by inefficiency and economic collapse.

Opening the new course on national defense at the School of Foreign Service, Cherne, who is executive secretary of the Research Institute of America, warned, however, that American economic and civil life "may suffer the pressure of an unrestrained hysteria, unless the intelligence of the country can be mobilized to study and direct the needs of national defense."

The course was attended by a number of especially invited Army and Navy officers and personnel of the National Defense Commission. "Georgetown University is demonstrating by this adjustment of its curriculum to the critical needs of the hour, the flexibility and adaptability which are the greatest assets of a democratic people intent upon the survival of their form of life," said Cherne.
